

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. THE SECOND GENERATION

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS

While this great novel was running serially in SUCCESS Magazine, the editor said that it made such a sensation among the subscribers that, as each instalment appeared, they began

"Fighting for the Mailbags"

"The Second Generation" he further described as "a great American novel, written by an American, with American surroundings, and dealing with a subject lying deep-rooted at the heart of American life."

The plot concerns a self-made manufacturer, who arriving at the end of his life finds his son and daughter spoiled by luxury. For their own sakes he wills almost all his money to a college, leaving his children to work out their own salvation. The novel shows dramatically and romantically how they battle with difficulties and win happiness, love and strength. It is told with all the skill of its gifted and successful author. It is an absorbing story, with a noble motive. All signs point to its being

WHAT ARE WEBSTER'S DICTIONARIES?

We have recently published a pamphlet entitled,

"Further Truth about certain So-called Webster's Dictionaries."

Have you seen it? If not, then let us send you a copy. We think it will interest you. Possibly it may assist you in arriving at a better understanding of the present dictionary controversy. In any event, it will aid you in solving the question at the head of this article. It is yours for the asking. The pamphlet is in answer to a defamatory and misleading circular over the signature G. & C. Merriam Co., which has been scattered broadcast among the trade and in educational circles. You may have seen the pamphlet. If so, then all the more reason why you should read what the other side has to say.

In the issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of Dec. 15, 1906, the G. & C. Merriam Co. have what purports to be a reply to the "substantial points" of our pamphlet. That is, "substantial points" as they choose to consider them. The real issues, however, they carefully avoid. Why? Are they afraid to meet them? It certainly has that appearance.

The burden of the "reply" is, that the Merriam Co. own, as a chattel, the Websterian system of English speech; that they have the sole and exclusive right to prepare text-books from which that system shall be taught; that all dictionaries prepared by them are "genuine," whether conforming to Webster's standards or not; that all books not prepared by them are "spurious," however closely they may adhere to Webster's spellings, definitions and diacritical markings. With strange inconsistency they admit that the original work of Webster and his coadjutor, Goodrich, has become common property, yet they still insist that all books prepared by others than themselves, even though exact reproductions of the originals, are only "imitation Websters." Just how they reach these conclusions is not very clear. Possibly it was not intended that it should be. They further assert, by implication at least, the sole ownership of all lexicographic knowledge; that they alone possess the depth and breadth of "modern scholarship" necessary for efficient work in dictionary compiling, and that no others are qualified to compete with them in this field of effort. It was because of these arrogant pretensions, and the offensively insolent manner in which they were presented, that we were compelled to answer their pamphlet and expose the hollowness and hypocrisy of their claims.

They endeavor, in their reply, to create the impression that we are assailing them. This is untrue. They are the aggressors and we have only struck back in self-defense. During our long career as publishers we never have attempted to sell our own publications by disparaging those of our competitors, and our pamphlet never would have been written were it not that the issue was forced upon us by the malignant character of their attack. And does not their own reply furnish the true animus of that attack? Do they not stand convicted by their own words, when they "freely confess" that their "primary motive" in "criticising" our publication was "simply to sell our own (their) books and make some money"? And MAKE SOME MONEY. Yes, those words explain all.

They assert that their dictionaries are sold only on their merits. If so, then why do they seek to decry and belittle the books of their competitors? These methods are not necessary to market a meritorious article, neither are they resorted to by reputable publishers who rely only on the intrinsic goodness of their publications. They affect also, to make light of our allusions to monopolies, combinations and trusts in the book trade, but it would have been of "some interest to the educated public," if they had explained why they are so zealous in defending the dictionaries published by the American Book Company, the books which directly compete with the Laird & Lee editions.

They say, in extenuation of its faults, that their Webster's (?) Handy Dictionary was "never designed for school use." Then for what purpose was it published? From a careful inquiry among the trade and the school book depositories, it would seem that during the first copyright period (28 years), not less than five or six million copies of this book were sold, and conservative estimates place the number going directly into schools, and the hands of children, at not less than nine-tenths of the entire output. It would also be interesting to the "educated public" to know whether this book is a "genuine" or a "spurious" Webster. If the name of Webster is so sacred, why do they desecrate it by affixing it to a book that the great lexicographer would have spurned? But, it may be said, why have the schools tolerated this imposition? Because, until Laird & Lee published their series of Webster's New Standard Dictionaries, the G. & C. Merriam Co. had a monopoly of the school dictionary business. The schools had no choice. They had to take what was offered or go without.

The Merriam Co. attempt to justify their attack upon us by alleging an infringement of their "moral right" of "exclusive proprietorship in the title Webster's Dictionaries." Where did they get it? Not from Noah Webster, for he explicitly gave his system to the American people. Not because they were the original publishers of his books, for this honor belongs to another. Nor yet merely because they may have owned copyrights which expired years ago. In what way have we injured them, legally or morally? We have not violated any of their copyrights; we have not used any of their trade-marks; we have not imitated the style of their books, nor have we sold our product as theirs. No, we have simply done the same as they have done and are now doing. We have used the original Webster's Dictionary as revised by Goodrich in 1847 as the basis of our books. This we had both a moral and a legal right to do. Like them, we have "employed the most modern scholarship and the results of the latest scrutiny of today's language to enrich and perfect our works." Wherein have we injured them then? Oh! We have broken their monopoly. We have touched their one tender spot, the capacity to MAKE SOME MONEY. We have produced a "genuine" Webster Dictionary for the use of schools. Therein lies our unpardonable sin.

In its final analysis the G. & C. Merriam Co.'s reply amounts to this; that for many years they enjoyed a monopoly of the publication and sale of school dictionaries; that they found the monopoly very profitable; now that the monopoly has been destroyed it is morally unjust that they should be compelled to relinquish the profits which it brought them. That is about the substance of it. And now that the "moral issues" involved have been given to the public, we, too, are willing to rest our case, and we agree to abide by any decision the public may pronounce.

The plot concerns a self-made manufacturer who, arriving at the end of his life, finds his son and daughter spoiled by luxury. For their own sakes he wills almost all his money to a college, leaving his children to work out their own salvation. The novel shows dramatically and romantically how they battle with difficulties and win happiness, love and strength.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly a book entitled "Practical Problems in Banking and Currency," a collection of addresses delivered before the National Banking Association in recent years by about eighty authors prominent in the world of finance. The book is particularly timely, as the past year has been one of the most notable in the history of the currency discussion, while Secretary Shaw's report and the probable discussion of currency conditions in Congress will keep this subject prominently before the public in the immediate future. They will publish early in the spring a new book on the Eastern question by B. Putnam Weale, author of "The Reshaping of the Far East." The new book is to be entitled "The Truce in the East," and is likely to attract considerable attention. Mr. Weale believes that the Eastern question is in many respects more threatening to-day than ever before. The enormous borrowings of Japan, and the likelihood that the Korean question will come up again within a few months, are indications of an approaching crisis in Japanese affairs that make this work particularly timely.

The purpose is to point out clearly—for the teacher, advanced student and beginner—how the most frequently occurring and important combinations of cards are treated by different leading authorities. This is accomplished by means of clearly tabulated forms and supporting explanations introduced throughout the book, and particularly in the article treating of the different leads. Opens with a history of bridge. Bibliography of bridge (6 p.). Glossary. General index.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYFOLDT.

JANUARY 5, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

AFTER THE HOLIDAY RUSH.

As some one once said, immediately after the holiday rush, "these are the days for the salvage corps in store and counting room;" yet, what to the unsophisticated may appear as a wreckage is in reality only a sort of housecleaning. For weeks during the season just drawing to a close—the best in the history of bookselling—it has been possible only to keep the stock from tumbling into absolute chaos, to keep its arrangement in order only sufficiently for the green help to be able to locate a certain book about twice out of five times—a divining rod or a "Sherlock Holmes" being required in the three other cases to locate or unearth the required book. Now at last there is time to restore order, to "line up" the stock, to balance the books.

Never is a better opportunity afforded for reviewing one's wisdom or error of judgment in buying and stocking up than at the close of the year. It is now that the bookseller must face the results of the year calmly and frankly. Success is always gratifying; but what about the failures! To determine for himself in what his error lay in overstocking on certain lines or in not buying enough of others, the bookseller must sit in judgment upon himself as sternly as he would upon his subordinates. If the matter could be shifted upon his manager or buyer the principal might be able to determine his subordinate's fault with almost scientific accuracy. Let him, therefore, apply the same standard of justice to himself and profit accordingly. Discovering in what his error lay may not help him to avoid making other errors in the future; but it should guide him in not making the same mistake twice, because repetition of a mistake is a crime that may lead to fatal consequences.

In the bustle and haste of the holiday rush and the complete attention which must of necessity be given to the proper handling of the many demands for books for gifts, it may have escaped the attention of some booksellers that the first two months of the year may really be made the most productive of all. The regular customer and those new friends won by the bookseller's special provision for the holiday season will now be in need of the more staple and sober books and good editions for which the demand is growing steadily. The bookseller during the last three months has come in sight of hundreds of new faces with which he should become better acquainted, and with whose owners he may become more closely associated provided he has given satisfaction and made a good impression in the beginning. The public is willing to buy books every day in the year and to pay good prices, too, as witness the case of Mrs. King's transactions in books reported in our issue for December 29. It ought to make the legitimate book-trade blush to have such patrons of literature fall into the hands of the Philistines just for the lack of a little enterprise on their part.

Then, in February we have Valentine's Day, which for several years has kept those booksellers who know how to cater to special seasons very nearly as busy as Christmastide; and close upon that frivolous season follow preparations for the Lenten season, when there is always an active demand for religious books. Were we to select the two most satisfactory months of the year for constructive bookselling we would name January and February.

THE dictionary war continues into 1907, as is evident from our advertising pages. On the legal side, there are two main issues. The question whether the use of the word "Webster" can be continued by the G. & C. Merriam Company as the exclusive right in the nature of a trade-mark is still waiting decision in Boston, where an opinion should be handed down shortly. The other point concerns the question whether the omission of the American copyright notice extra-territorially, as on English editions, forfeits copyright. The decision of the Circuit Court of Chicago, mentioned in our last week's issue, holds that this is not the case, on which ground the injunction against the United Dictionary Company on certain minor Webster's dictionaries was granted. It is possible that this case may be appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court for final arbitrament, but whether this will be done seems not yet certain.

BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLER'S DINNER.

THE twenty-second annual banquet of the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers was held at the Waldorf-Astoria, on Thursday evening, December 27. Nearly one hundred of its members and their friends comfortably filled the handsome dining hall, and did full justice to an ample menu. After coffee was served the president, Victor M. Cupples, delivered an address in which he paid tribute to the Brotherhood and felicitated its members upon their loyalty and fellowship. He then introduced an old and popular friend of the Brotherhood, James Clarence Harvey, who gave a first reading of his new poem on the true story of the Garden of Eden. Its free and fanciful style immensely pleased his audience. The poem is not for publication, however, being reserved for a prospective special limited edition of the author's wanderings on Parnassus. The next speaker, Senator P. H. McCarren, of Brooklyn, gave the Brotherhood a general talk that found great favor, and the Senator at its finish was acclaimed "a jolly good jollier." A toast was then drunk to John A. McQuillan and William B. Perkins, two former Knights of the Grip, who are now blind, following which the chairman called upon several of the former presidents of the Brotherhood, including John H. Black, John Hovenden, William J. Kelly and H. M. Caldwell for "short talks," and then rounded out, with interspersed singing, one of the most enjoyable dinners of this ancient order of good fellows.

The menu and souvenir contributed by the publishers, the H. M. Caldwell Company, was a copy of Harvey's "Over the Nuts and Wine," shaped as a bottle in a cooler, with the menu inserted in the front pages.

WM. G. JOHNSTON & CO.'S FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

THE annual New Year's dinner given by Wm. G. Johnston & Co., of Pittsburg, Pa., to their employees was held on New Year's day at the Fort Pitt Hotel. It was quite a pleasant affair, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the firm's large stationery and printing business, now located at the corner of Penn Avenue and Ninth Street. The dining room was decorated appropriately to the occasion, and Mr. Harry P. Pears, manager of the firm, made a very entertaining toastmaster. Short addresses were made by Charles H. Clough and William H. Murphy, who have been with the firm for over one-third of a century. A. L. Keil, the eastern representative of the firm, F. E. Loeffler and L. R. Miller, represented the factory; John Mackay represented the loose-leaf salesmen; J. A. Cooper, Samuel Seemann and Harry Hoffman represented the Stationery Department; and John J. McShane, Jr., Harry P. Pears and Clarence A. Whiteside represented the Accounting Department. Other short speeches were made by a number of the employees, and the dinner was brought to a close by all rising and singing "Auld Lang Syne," followed by three rousing cheers for Harry P. Pears and Wm. G. Johnston & Co.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE GERMAN BOOKTRADE.

THE official directory of the German book-trade, published by the Börsenverein der deutschen Buchhändler, for 1907, records the names of 11,737 firms in the book business, or 490 more firms than were reported a year ago, which is accounted for by the fact that since January 1, 1906, 791 new firms came into existence and 301 went out of business. There were 38 failures, 702 changes in firm names, and 133 deaths. The 11,737 firms are located in 2275 cities as follows: 1584 in the German empire, 299 in Austro-Hungary; 77 in Switzerland; 219 in other parts of Europe; 57 in America; 13 in Africa; 17 in Asia and 9 in Australia. The number of localities represented has been increased during the year by 153.

COMSTOCK NO LONGER POST-OFFICE INSPECTOR.

ANTHONY COMSTOCK, the secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, it is reported, was notified last week by the Postmaster-General that his credentials as Post-Office Inspector had been cancelled. This position, held by Mr. Comstock for thirty-four years, enabled him to go to any post-office and open suspected mail at his discretion. Mr. Comstock at the same time was notified that he would be reappointed as Inspector and carried on the payrolls with a salary of $1500 a year, and a daily allowance of $3, if he would give up all other employment. As Mr. Comstock as secretary of the Society for the Suppression of Vice draws a salary of $5000 a year and is said to have perquisites, it is not likely that he will withdraw from the Society. This action of the Post-Office Department is supposed to be due to the agitation of the Art Students' League, an issue of whose magazine was recently confiscated by Comstock on the ground that it contained lewd and lascivious pictures.

OBITUARY NOTES.

ALBERT W. BERG, organist and composer, died at his home in New York on January 2. Mr. Berg was born in Frankfort-on-the-Main, in 1825, and came to this country when very young. He studied music in Paris and, returning to this country, began to teach music. After some years of teaching Berg in the early '50s became connected with the publishing firm now known as William A. Pond & Co., and remained with them up to the time of his death as musical editor of the works they published. They published much music of Mr. Berg's own composition. This is chiefly church music, but includes a number of songs that enjoyed popularity. He was organist for a number of years at St. Paul's, later at Zion and finally, for fifteen years, at the Church of the Transfiguration. He played at the funeral of George Holland, when Joe Jefferson gave the church its nickname with his "Then God bless the little church around the corner." He leaves a wife and four children. The children are Albert Ellery Berg, the dramatic critic and editor;

Lily D'Angelo Berg, vocal teacher; L. de Coppet Berg, the architect, builder of the Metropolitan Opera House, and Walter G. Berg, chief engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

GUSTAV KRUELL, the well-known artist, died on January 2 at San Luis Obispo, Cal. Kruell, to whom American wood engraving owes a great debt, was born in 1843, in Düsseldorf, and was a pupil of R. Brendamour, of that famous art city. He produced a remarkable series of portraits of Lincoln, Grant, Sherman and other figures in American history, portraits of great vitality, and in technique possessing a breadth and a richness of texture and color suggesting the art of the painter. Some of these were published a few years ago under the title of "A Portfolio of National Portraits," with text by Royal Cortissoz. In general, however, his works were circulated after the fashion of etchings or other prints, or he undertook private commissions. "He was," as the New York Tribune truly says, "an enthusiastic, industrious man, absorbed in his art, and he has left a considerable body of work to his credit. His best portraits are not only masterly in workmanship, but have distinction of style. Though his art [wood engraving] lost its vogue some time ago, and has since been supported only by a limited number of discerning connoisseurs and publishers, there is no danger that what he did for it will be forgotten."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE Anglo-American Executive Committee has purchased the house in Rome, in the Piazza di Spagna, in which Keats died. The purchase price was $12,000. Eight thousand dollars more is needed to pay off the mortgage on the place.

THE wedding of Post Wheeler, the poet, who is second secretary of the American Embassy at Tokio, and Hallie Erminie Rives, the novelist, took place at the Embassy at noon on December 29. The attendance was very large, including many prominent Japanese and foreigners.

E. F. BENSON, the author of "Dodo," has completed a new novel, entitled "Sheaves," which is to be published serially before it appears in book form. Mr. Benson is at work on a book dealing with "English Figure Skating," which is to be brought out in a sumptuous edition with many illustrations.

MAURICE HEWLETT's new story, "The Stoopng Lady," begins its run as a serial in the January Bookman. Upon its completion at the end of the summer it will be published in book form by Dodd, Mead & Co. Mr. Hewlett, it will be recalled, first claimed the attention of American readers with his "Earthwork Out of Tuscany" and "Forest Lovers." As a critic and descriptive writer he is well known through "The Road in Tuscany."

LIKE Thackeray, Mrs. Margaret Deland began her career as an artist, instead of as an author. After receiving her education at one of the best of girls' schools, she—then Margaret

Campbell—went to New York City and studied drawing and designing at the Cooper Institute. She graduated at the head of her class, and her ability was so marked that she was promptly asked to take the place of instructor in design at the Girls' Normal College in the same city. She accepted the offer, and it was while holding this position that she met her future husband, Lorin F. Deland. They were married in 1880, and since then their home has been in Boston. Her real name is "Margaretta Wade Deland," but she prefers to sign her work simply "Margaret Deland."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Atlantic Monthly will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary in November of this year.

The Gentleman's Magazine, which a year ago was taken over by the Harmsworth interests, with the new year loses its editor, A. H. Bullen, the Elizabethan scholar, who during the year of his incumbency of the editorial chair revived the ancient traditions of Sylvanus Urban.

THE New York Hippodrome has begun the publication of a "real newspaper," entitled The Scandalizer, devoted entirely to the interests of the chorus girls, chorus men, principals and stage hands of that institution. It is edited by Rose La Harte and published by Burne O'Sullivan, assistant stage manager, and will include "articles of an unlifting nature," as well as gossip. The first number is dated January 5.

Yachting is the title of a new monthly magazine devoted to water sports of all kinds, just published by the Yachting Company, 206 Broadway, New York City. Among the articles in the first issue is one by Sir Thomas Lipton on "American Yachting." Lawrence Perry contributes the first chapter of a series on "Successful American Yacht Clubs," and Owen Roberts outlines the prospects of the coming aquatic season.

Harper's Weekly with its issue for January 5 enters upon its fiftieth year. The Weekly, founded at the suggestion of Fletcher Harper, begun under the editorship of Henry Mills Alden and George William Curtis, and continued by a line of able successors has deservedly held a high place in the ranks of journalism for its devotion to American ideals, even at times when its championship of these ideals on several occasions threatened its very existence. We greet our contemporary on its birthday, and wish it many happy returns of the day.

BUSINESS NOTES.

COLUMBUS, O.—A. G. Geren has recently enlarged his store, The Varsity Supply Company, at 1602 North High Street, and has added a department of pictures and picture framing, also, a magazine stand. Mr. Geren would be pleased to receive catalogues of both American and English publishers.

Company, by N. M. Ladd, M. J. Ladd, F. H. Ladd, E. Lothard McClure, N. E. Goodrich and M. J. Van Orden.

ELYRIA, O.—Lagron's new bookstore has been opened with a good line of books, stationery, novelties, etc.

REPUBLIC, WASH.—Simon Basinski has purchased the entire stock of books, etc., and the newspaper business of George B. Stocking.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Williams & Kohn, Ltd., bookbuyers and sellers at 306 North Twelfth Street, would be pleased to have publishers' catalogues and lists of desiderata from book-sellers.

WHAT CHEER, IA.—B. A. Clutter & Co., druggists, booksellers and stationers, have been succeeded by B. A. Clutter.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE third annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers will be held in July, beginning on the 15th, in St. Paul, Minn.

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has a new line of Valentine Post-Cards, of which he will be pleased to send samples on application. They sell at $1 a hundred or $7.50 a thousand.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have in press a work entitled "Reminiscences of Men and Horses," by Hamilton Busby, which deals with trainers and breeders of horses and horsemen throughout the country as well as with the horses themselves.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. announce that the published price of Neumes' Art Library has been made uniform with the Treasures of European Galleries series, namely, $1.25 net the volume. This step is rendered necessary by the increased cost of production since the Art Library was initiated.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY have concluded arrangements to publish a new novel by William deMorgan, whose "Joseph Vance" has received such remarkable praise from leading critics both here and abroad. The new book, (about which no particulars have as yet been given out,) will bear the odd title "Alice for Short."

SINCE the completion of Child's monumental work on the ballads it has been supposed that his collection of three hundred and five comprised the whole number recoverable. But in his third series of "Popular Ballads of the Olden Time," just published by A. H. Bullen, Frank Sidgwick claims to have discovered a new ballad, entitled "The Jolly Juggler."

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, Inc., has published a book entitled "Through the Sieve," by the Rev. Dr. Addison Ballard, a striking interpretation of Christ's life and teachings, an analysis of the characters and experiences of the apostles in their bearing upon the religious dogma and spiritual unrest of to-day, and a plea for the oneness of the Bible both in its message and its inspiration.

At the request of the Bishops of London and Southwark the editors of the English Hymnal have decided to issue an abridged edition of their book, which, it is hoped, may be found useful for those who desire an alternative to the complete collection. Henry Frowde, (the Oxford University Press,) is now at work upon this new edition and hopes to have it ready early this year.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY have published a story of New England life entitled "Old Home Week," by James Ball Naylor, with pictures and decorations by F. Gilbert Edge; also "Yarb and Cretine," by Dr. George H. B. Swayze, of Philadelphia, an argument for fairer and better treatment of the negro who works, thinks and studies, in which the Ku-Klux Klan plays an important part.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will celebrate the centenary of Longfellow's birth on February 27 by publishing a volume to be entitled "Henry Wadsworth Longfellow: a Sketch of His Life," by Professor Charles Eliot Norton. The autobiographical matter included in the poet's notes written for the later editions of his poems, his correspondence and his journals, will be laid under contribution for this book.

H. M. CALDWELL Co., of Boston, announces many new and attractive features for this season in the Beaux and Belles Series of Valentine novelties, the volumes selected being particularly appropriate for the valentine trade. The appearance of the original and attractive bindings has been further enhanced by the novel and sumptuous manner in which the volumes are tied with various shades of fine taffeta ribbon. Each book is enclosed in a dainty covered box.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just brought out a work on "Pulmonary Tuberculosis," by Dr. Albert Philip Francine, which presents the subject of the modern and specialized treatment of consumption in a practical and masterly fashion. The volume is addressed to the profession, but, except where the nature of the subject discussed is necessarily technical, it is written in so simple and direct a style as to be readily understood by the laity.

EVER since the day of publication of the "Hohenlohe Memoirs" the Macmillan Company have been racing to keep pace with the demand for the work. The first printing was entirely exhausted in advance of publication, and it was not until last week that the supply of copies caught up with the demand. In the meantime orders from the large booksellers were cut in two by the publishers, in order to divide the available supply of the books as evenly and fairly as possible.

It appears that the original of Dickens's "Little Dorrit" is still alive. According to report she is Mary Ann Cooper, aged ninety-four, living at Southgate, who had "a close boy and girl friendship" with Dickens, who used to call her "little Dorrit," for "he was always great on nicknames," says the old lady. He used to say to her, "I'll write a book about you some day, and I shall call it 'Little Dorrit.'" But it does not appear that her history in any respect resembled the charming heroine of the Marshalsea.

JOHN MURRAY, London, has in press a new series, the aim of which is to trace the growth of English literature and the causes to which its force and wealth are due, introducing just so much biography and incident as may serve to link the narrative to the history of the country. The first volume will deal with the sixteenth century and the early part of the seventeenth, and will be accompanied by three graduated volumes of extracts for classes in schools. The authors are E. W. Edmunds, of Luton Secondary School, and Frank Spooner, Director of Education for Bedfordshire.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just brought out a work entitled "The [English] Army in 1906, a Policy and a Vindication," by the Right Hon. H. O. Arnold-Forster, Secretary for War in Mr. Balfour's administration; "Comedy Queens of the Georgian Era," by John Fyvie, an account of twelve of those notable women, among whom are Lavinia Fenton, who became Duchess of Bolton, Elizabeth Farren, Countess of Derby, Mary Robinson, "Perdita," Harriot Mellon, Duchess of St. Albans, and Peg Woffington; also, "The Book of the Victoria Cross," compiled from official papers, and other authentic sources, by A. L. Haydon.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just issued a new edition of Samuel T. Pickard's profusely illustrated work, "Whittier-Land," of which this is the fourth printing. It contains a portrait of Whittier never before reproduced, it being from an ambrotype taken when the poet was about fifty years old, and it is thought by those who knew him in that period of his intense activity to be a most striking likeness. There is also an addition to the letterpress, including an account of Whittier's personal appearance and manner, written by the English poet and critic, Edmund Gosse, librarian of the House of Lords, who visited this country in 1884.

WORD comes by way of the London Evening News that Clarence M. Jones, of Columbus, O., has been offering for £2,000,000 his book entitled "From Rime to Reason, or, the Great San Francisco Earthquake Rhythmically Orchestrically and Logically Considered." The information to be imparted by this book, according to the author, "besides upsetting existing theories as to the causes of earthquakes and volcanoes, will tend to revolutionize the philosophy of terrestrial physics." At last accounts the book has not yet been placed and the author has returned to this country in the hopes of inducing one of the many billionaire publishers here to undertake its publication on his terms.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY have just ready a volume of verses entitled "For Your Sweet Sake," by James Ephraim McGirt, a young negro of Philadelphia, who promises to become a worthy successor to Paul Laurence Dunbar. McGirt, who is but twenty-nine years old, comes from North Carolina, and takes his name from the family to whom his parents belonged in slavery days. While he was still a boy his father and mother removed from Robinson County to Greensboro, and there they remained, the lad attending Bennett College. After graduating he taught school in Greensboro for a year, and six years ago went to Philadelphia, where he has since been engaged in lecturing occasionally to churches and lyceums, and in editing McGirt's Magazine, a periodical which has a large circulation among members of the negro race throughout the country.

JOHN W. LUCE & Co., Boston, will publish shortly the first complete translation of Dr. Frederick Van Eeden's "The Quest," the first part of which appeared in Holland fifteen years ago. The second came some years later, and the third, which for political reasons did not appear in Holland, is of recent date. In the first part the author discloses the heart and mind and soul of a little boy walking in two worlds, one the structure of his own imagination, one real, but elusive and shadowy to him. In the second part the boy wanders from place to place with a scissors grinder, learning to know the simple folk for whom the man plies his craft, and listening to the message which he bears to them. In the third part he faces the real world, grim, stern, a world of battle, but with a brightening touch of romance for every man, and he makes a happy marriage and enters upon a new life. They will publish in February "The Miracle Worker," by Gerald Maxwell, a strong story in which a great surgeon is the central figure. By his matchless skill, aided by a suggestion of occult power, the miracle is worked.

NOW READY

It is a fact

The serious drawback to a greater interest in valentines is largely due to the perishable nature of the goods usually offered, and the fact that "left-overs" wipe out the profit on what are sold. Yet there is a noticeable increase of business, but expensive and flimsy articles seem "passé" these practical times.

The useful, when combined with the dainty, seems the more effective form of expressing admiration, and good books are always in demand as appropriate gifts at all seasons.

The volumes have been selected as particularly appropriate for this occasion, while the novel and attractive bindings have been further enhanced by an artistically tied and harmonizing satin ribbon. Each book is enclosed in a dainty covered box.

Our line for ingenuity and originality surpasses anything formerly offered the public.

KICKS—NOT PRAISE

WE are human enough to enjoy our customers' frequent letters of praise and good will, but the most useful letters we get are kicks. If we know our mistakes we at least have a chance to correct them; and it is through kicks that we learn about them—sometimes impressively. We invite kicks, therefore, as salutary and helpful to us in making our establishment the most efficient wholesale book house in the country.

HALF A ROGUE

By the author of
THE MAN ON THE BOX

Illustrated by
HARRISON FISHER

449 pages, $1.50

Half a Rogue is a big story. It has charm and force—all the charm of lovely women and all the force of manly men. It is more than an interesting story and a fascinating romance—it is a novel with a definite purpose and the purpose is splendid in conception and clear and decisive in its development. It is, in a word the best novel yet written by Harold MacGrath.

SAUL^{of} TARSUS

Saul of Tarsus will make for itself as permanent a place as Ben-Hur. Its theme is mighty, its action swiftly rushing, its incidents closely packed, its plot intricate, its setting brilliantly wrought, its characterization masterly, its spirit passionate. Saul of Tarsus is a book of unmistakable sincerity and distinction, greatness and power.—WILLIAM R. LIGHTON in Omaha World-Herald.

THE MYSTERY

By Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams, is "going" as strong with the reviewers as it is with the trade. Here are the first four press opinions:

New York Sun:

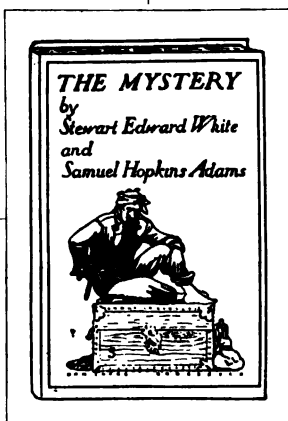

☞ Messrs. White and Adams come out of their venture with distinct credit. The characters stand out clearly; the story keeps the reader on the alert; the art shown in the construction is excellent. Altogether "The Mystery" is an excellent, readable tale of adventure, constructed with skill and provided with original incidents. It affords great relief after a long season of mediocre novels.

New York Globe:

☞ "The Mystery" is a first-rate piece of collaboration, well written, ingenious, and extremely exciting from first to last. There is a modern scientific twist to it that is wholly new. The wheels of invention are likely to turn a good while before they produce a more satisfactory plot of mystery and adventure. "And you can kiss the Book on that," as Handy Solomon would have said.

New York World:

☞ A story of awesome lights, strange doings and weird destinies at an unmapped point in the Pacific "The Mystery" abounds in thrills and surprises and introduces a group of characters rendering full justice to the combined creative powers of the authors, Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams.

Brooklyn Standard—Union:

☞ A mystery there is, and a mutinous crew, and wreck and fighting and a touch of the weird, and a sense of movement and vigor withal that keeps the reader's finger eager to turn the pages ahead of the hurrying eyes. A great success of its kind in this story, and it is a kind that is ever popular.

FOURTH LARGE EDITION

WHISPERING SMITH

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Illustrated in colors by N. C. WYETH.

THE spirit of this thrilling story which continues to be one of the best selling novels and is establishing itself more firmly every week as one of the best stories of the West ever written, was well expressed in the Cleveland Leader:

"'Whispering Smith' is just a plain story. It is a book of incident, instead of introspection. When you read it you don't give a hang about soul struggles. What you wish to know is, is Smith going to get the drop on Du Sang in that fight to the death in the Williams Cache, or is he going to cash in before the bullets of that ruffian?"

"That is the attitude throughout all the book. You are always expectant; you are always stirred. Things are happening and their outcome is doubtful. If Smith is cool-headed, imperturbable, and absolutely fearless, the men who are stacked up against him fear neither God nor the devil, though they do have an inward trembling over Smith. It is quite likely that they will beat him."

"'Whispering Smith' is a picturesque, exciting, vivid tale, strong throughout, with a strength which is a part of the sureness, poise and mastery of an author who has lived in the realm of his subject and understands it because of love for it."—Phila. Telegraph.

"With the very first page the reader is plunged into a tale of engrossing action."—Record-Herald.

"Of its kind the book is almost unrivaled."—Living Age.

NOTES IN SEASON.

MACMILLAN Co. will publish shortly "Newer Ideals of Peace," an important new book by Miss Jane Addams, the head of Hull House, one of the earliest and the most efficient of social settlements. Her new book is described as a study in the gradual development of the moral substitutes for war.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY are getting up a number of their illustrated books in a special style to make them available as Valentine souvenirs. Among them are Riley's "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," "Love Lyrics" and "While the Heart Beats Young;" "The Lover's Mother Goose," by John Cecil Clay; "The Courtship of Miles Standish," with pictures by Christy; "The Loves of Lady Arabella," by Molly Elliot Seawell, and others. These books, tied with a satin ribbon, wrapped with a band of watered paper printed in gold, "To My Valentine," make very attractive and suitable valentines.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce a unique series of standard books in what will probably be known as the large print edition. The suggestion for such an edition came from a man whose son's eyesight was defective and who was unable to find for this boy a copy of one of Charles Reade's stories that he could read with comfort and safety. The books of this edition will be printed from large Scotch face type on thin white Bible paper in a form easily carried and easily read. The series will be inaugurated with "Wuthering Heights" and "Love Me Little, Love Me Long," by Reade, and will include many standard books.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish early next month Mark Twain's book on "Christian Science." It is said to be a book of vital seriousness—an impartial record of a great and growing movement in the world's history, the result of years of painstaking study, and a noteworthy presentation of sincere views on a subject of widespread interest. It is not a work of humor, although humor now and then gleams and scintillates as an undercurrent beneath the seriousness. It is an earnest volume, presenting with strength and forcefulness the arguments against Christian Science and against the claims of its founder and her followers. Although questioning the inspired basis of Christian Science, and although analyzing remorselessly the claims set forth, the book is not in any degree an attack upon religion, nor does it question the potential power of the mind in case of sickness.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish in the spring the work entitled "Reminiscences of Men and Horses," by Hamilton Busbey, for thirty-eight years connected with Turf, Field and Farm, one of the foremost authorities on the horse in America, who has been the intimate of all the great breeders and trainers. The book will contain many interesting portraits of men and horses. They also announce a sequel to "Mr. Barnes of New York," by Archibald Clavering Gunter, to be entitled "Mr. Barnes, American." "Mr. Barnes of New York" has probably had more readers and been published in more different languages than any other novel in the past thirty years. On the day it was issued not a single copy was sold, but within seven months the sales amounted to one hundred thousand a month. "Mr. Barnes of New York" has also been extraordinarily successful as a play, and is still being performed. At one time no less than ten companies in England were giving various versions of it, the copyright not being protected there. Mr. Gunter's new story will be illustrated by B. Martin Justice. To correct certain unwarranted rumors, they desire to announce that for the present George Barr McCutcheon's "Beverly of Graustark," "Nedra" and "Jane Cable" will not be issued in any cheaper form than the regular $1.50 editions.

Since "Richard Calmady" the author has published no novel. Her scene is London when the Boer war shook politics and finance to their foundations. The hero is fifty-five when he retires from the head clerkship of a bank with a pension. His father was a Spanish Revolutionist who unhinged his mother's mind. He is of poetic nature, which has never had scope. Great loneliness steals upon him when his work is done, and this poetry and loneliness bring him back to the Catholic church in which he was reared. Psychological studies of worldliness, self-esteem, narrow-minded Puritanism, greed; and political and social studies of England and the world to-day are worked into the plot. The tired bank clerk escapes it all by going beyond "the far horizon."

Authors are of the Chemical Department of Harvard, and their treatise is the result of over two years' experimentation with an "amalgam cell," in which the amalgams are of zinc and cadmium. Previous research in this direction is inadequate in that the accuracy of the gas law at infinite dilution remains unproved. Messrs. Richards and Forbes have obtained an approximation to the gas law closer than any yet reached in the study of solutions. Other results of the investigation deal with densities and temperature changes hitherto not accurately known.

By the author of "Hurricane Island," etc. Seven persons only are involved in this story, four carrying out the chief parts. Sylvia Lovell is a beautiful English girl, who, unknown to herself, is the heiress to a controlling interest in an American railroad. She is pursued by two unscrupulous American stock-brokers, who aim to get possession of her and marry her if possible. Their plans are frustrated by Lieutenant Kerslake, of the English navy, who tells the story, and finally wins the girl for himself. The girl is kidnapped, hidden away in dreary old uninhabited houses, carried aboard one yacht and then another, often threatened with death, and made most miserable and unhappy.

An argument in favor of the viscous theory of the motion of glaciers, as against the granular theory which denies to ice any viscous character, or the ability to flow. The viscous theory is supported by "an exact definition of fluid" and by the contention that the granular theory overlooks the dispersal of energy by, and the forward advance of, a glacier.

ent medicine decision, the courts have gone far in justifying a general notice of restriction. The German courts have been disposed to apply the same rulings to copyrighted as to patented articles, but the American courts have been slow to follow the same rule.

The only limitation imposed in the United States Constitution upon copyright protection is that it shall be for limited times; and after the expiration of the statutory period there can be no statutory protection. The pending copyright measure proposes, following previous precedent, that existing copyrights may be continued through the longer period proposed in the new law; but it would not, and could not, revive lapsed copyrights. Mark Twain's proposal to extend the period of books on which copyright may have lapsed by including in his edition parts of his autobiography, has no basis of law. The new copyright would protect his autobiography, but could not prevent any one from reprinting the original work as originally published. In the same way any one is entitled to the use of the material of the original Webster Dictionary, which long ago went out of copyright; and no copyrighted revision can indirectly protect that original work or prevent its entire use.

The endeavor of the original proprietors of Webster's dictionaries, in view of their acquirement of a certain moral right by their development of the Webster series, to maintain the sole right to the use of the word Webster, on grounds partly of copyright, partly of trade-mark, goes a point beyond copyright law, and the decision of the Boston court this week, to the effect that the word Webster can be freely used by others, is not unexpected. This would not mean that the word Webster could be applied to dictionaries not based on the Webster method; but it does leave an open field to other publishers who issue Webster's dictionaries based on the Webster methods. They cannot use the new material copyrighted by the Merriam Company in later editions of Webster, but they are entitled both to full use of the material in the Webster's dictionaries on which copyrights have expired, and to the use of the word Webster in connection with such dictionaries. The Boston decision, of which the full text has not yet come to hand, is evidently to the effect that copyright has expired, and that there is no ground for protection of the word as a trade-mark.

It is understood that the Committees on

Patents of the two houses of Congress are hard at work in putting the proposed copyright measures into modified shape for report to Congress. It is interesting that so much light is being thrown by the courts upon copyright questions, and much light has come also from the recent hearings. Whether or not it may prove possible to carry a law through Congress during the present short session, it is certain that great progress will have been made toward such a law during the present discussions.

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the Stationers' Board of Trade, held Tuesday, January 8, was called to order by Henry C. Bainbridge, president, at 3:36 P.M. Roll was called and there were present or represented by proxy fifty members. The minutes of the last annual meeting having been read and approved, the president read his address, which upon motion was received and ordered entered in full upon the minutes.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

This is the thirty-second annual meeting of this organization, and in presenting to you my annual address I want to congratulate you upon the excellent condition of the office, notwithstanding the fact that the expenses during the past year have exceeded the income by about $865. This is not a bad showing under the circumstances, as the cause can be directly traced to trade conditions. The year just closed showed possibly a higher degree of general prosperity than any previous year in the history of our country, and when other trades are prosperous the stationer is bound to be, as he supplies the means for transcribing and preserving the records of all business transactions. Failures and bankruptcy cases during the past year have been unusually small in number and in the amount of money involved. Claims for collection have been of similar character. The result to this office has been that the decrease in the amount of fees from these sources has caused us to run behind, showing that when our members are prosperous and make few or no bad debts this organization must suffer. But reverse the conditions and I fear we will like it less. I give one illustration. In 1905 the fees and rebates in the Bankruptcy Department were $2907.19, in 1906 they were only $1514.03, a difference of $1393.16. Notwithstanding this the board is out of debt beyond current bills, and as the treasurer's report will show we have a handsome surplus.

Our membership shows an increase of three over the previous year, and during the year we have had no resignations which were attributable to dissatisfaction with the service.

The Information Department shows that it is being very generally used by our members and to a greater extent than in former years. due, I hope, to the fact that you are finding the service more reliable and consequently more useful.

The Collection Department shows that it has as usual rendered excellent service at a less expense to members than such service can be procured elsewhere; the demand notice which we sell to members at forty cents a hundred, which can be sent direct to the debtor, seems to have been more generally used than heretofore, we having sold 4000 blanks during the past year. During the year we received 374 drafts for collection, increase over previous year 127, 82 of which were paid to the bank or direct to members, aggregating $7028.03, thus leaving unpaid 292 drafts, which were turned over to our attorneys by the banks for collection.

The Bankruptcy Department has had fewer cases to handle than usual. But what it has had to do it has done to the satisfaction of our members.

My attention has been called to the fact that members frequently use this board for the purpose of getting all the information they can regarding a weak and failing house, and when the crash comes they give the claims to an outside attorney. I know this is within the rights of a member, but this Board was organized to do this work for you and at a lower price than you can have it done by an outside party. Your officers think that the Board can and will do all of this, and the members can help along the work by giving us the work to do. If we do not do it as well and as cheaply as you can have it done elsewhere, you will help the service by saying so. We are trying to work for your interest, but we do not want to be fed entirely on lean meat; a little fat will be appreciated.

During the past year death has removed from our Board the following members:

John F. Van Saun, vice-president of G. W. Dillingham Co., who died April 23, 1906.

Henry O. Houghton, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., who died June 14, 1906.

The books and accounts were as usual examined by Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Co., accountants for the Board, and found correct.

Last April the city of San Francisco was overwhelmed by earthquake and fire. Every dealer in every trade we represent was wiped out completely. Our members, to their credit, responded liberally to the call for assistance by sending financial aid to the hungry and homeless, and by sending stocks of goods to merchants to fill the temporary sheds which they had hurriedly built to start business again. Too much cannot be said about the heroism and integrity displayed by the San Francisco merchants. One hundred per cent. settlements, (less 2 or 3 for cash,) were so general that we can almost say it was universal. This at a time when sympathy would have prompted us to accept almost any other offer is most creditable to them.

The second annual convention of the National Stationers was held in this city in June last. The proceedings you are familiar with. I want to thank our members and the trade generally for the very liberal response to my appeal for funds to defray the cost of entertaining the visitors, and congratulate them that the committee who had the matter in charge did their work of entertainment to the satisfaction of everybody, and have returned to the contributors to the fund 50 per cent. of their donation.

Your Dinner Committee have arranged to hold the annual banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria on the evening of February 14, 1907. Hon. F. H. Crane, Hon. George L. Record and Mr. Ralph Rounds have accepted invitations, and the committee are in correspondence with other speakers of note. Our annual dinner has become a fixture, and I have no doubt will this year receive the usual hearty support.

I take pleasure in extending to the trustees and the office force my sincere thanks for their assistance during the past year. The universal good fellowship which has existed has made what little work I have done a pleasure.

The following reports were then read and approved and ordered to be entered upon the minutes:

HERBERT M. CONDIT, Treasurer.

We have examined the accounts of the Stationers' Board of Trade for the past year and have prepared the above balance sheet and accompanying income and expenditure account. These, (subject to the accuracy of the Collection and Estate Departmental Accounts,) in our opinion correctly represent the financial condition of the association at November 30 last, and its transactions for the year ended that date.

The year ended with a balance of $7247.76 in the treasurer's hands. This amount, less the redemption and dinner fund accounts and estate receipts undistributed, leaves the amount at the disposal of the treasurer $4368.60.

Your Executive Committee respectfully suggests that during the coming year the members use their best efforts towards increasing the membership of the Board, so that at the end of the coming year we may be able to show a large increase over that of the past year.

JAMES C. AIKIN,

Chairman Executive Committee.

The meeting then went into election for trustees, and the former trustees were unanimously elected with the exception of William Keuffel, of Keuffel & Esser Co., who declined renomination. Carl M. Bernegau, of Keuffel & Esser Co., was elected in his stead. The chair appointed Charles S. Kiggins and Lyman B. Surgis to act as tellers at the next annual meeting.

A special meeting of the trustees will be held on Thursday, January 17, for the purpose of organization, election of officers and committees for the ensuing year.

THE NAME OF WEBSTER NOT PROTECTED.

ACCORDING to telegraphic word to the New York Times from Boston "any publisher has the right to use the name Webster in connection with the publication of a dictionary, according to a decision by Judge Colt, of the United States Circuit Court, announced [in Boston January 9.] the copyright giving the exclusive right to the use of the name having expired in 1889.

"The decision was in the case of the G. & C. Merriam Company, of Springfield, which sought to retain the exclusive right to use the name of Webster in the title of dictionaries in the English language and asked the court to restrain George W. Ogilvie, of Chicago, from using the name. The action was based on the ground that, as the Merriam Company had the original copyright, the firm's name had so long been associated with the publication of Webster dictionaries, that the title had acquired a secondary meaning, and had come to indicate to the public the book published and sold by the publisher who took out the copyright.

"The court decides that after the expiration of the copyright Ogilvie had the same right as the Merriam Company to use the name Webster in issuing a dictionary."

LITERATURE IN ADVERTISING.

SPEAKING at a dinner of the Sphinx Club at the Waldorf-Astoria, on the evening of January 8, on "The Art of Advertising," Robert C. Ogden, of Wanamaker's, said it was a fact that advertising presented a peculiar field for literary art, and he advised the members of the club to take the art seriously. He asserted that a simple definition of advertising literature was the presentation of goods or services by means of the English language, and continued by saying that it was the letting down of the standard in advertising that permitted miserable drivel, bad English and overstatement, leading to the sneer, so often heard: "Only an advertisement." Advertising should be dignified, he said, because it was the basis of journalism. Just as the Irishman justified the presence of the pig in the house by saying, "The pig pays the rent," so advertising supported newspapers, he said, and he had often wondered why the newspapers did not have editors of advertising, on the theory that in quality of English composition the advertising pages should equal the editorial page.

Mr. Ogden warned members of the club against such badly judged advertising as "Use this jar and you will never use another," or, "Examine our goods before purchasing."

Arthur Brisbane said that the advertising writer had a harder job than the purely literary writer. "The literary writer has already sold the goods when his writing is printed," he said. "The advertising writer's job has only begun at that stage. He has to persuade people to buy something else. The advertising writer, as the voice of the merchant, the most active agent in solving the great problem of distribution, is doing a great work."

MRS. ATHERTON TO THE LONDON TIMES.

GERTRUDE ATHERTON's final contribution to the London Times's "Book War" controversy is the following letter addressed to the editor of "The Thunderer" in reference to certain questions raised in regard to her novel, "Rezánov," by the manager of The Times Book Club, and printed in its issue for January 4:

"I here invite you and all your absurdities, in my second-best Californianese, to go to the devil. I am sick of the whole controversy, and am too busy with my new book to bother with you any further."

The letter was called out by invidious comparisons made by the manager of The Times Book Club between the edition of Mrs. Atherton's novel "Rezánov," brought out in this country by the Authors and Newspapers Association at fifty cents and the regular edition published in England at 4s. 6d., claiming that the book should have been priced at 2s. Of course, no mention was made by The Times Book Club manager of the fact that the publishers of Mrs. Atherton's book in the United States are handsomely recouped for their investment by first publication in newspapers, regarding book publication of minor importance, and that the English publisher must depend upon his profits in publishing the book only in the regular form. But then that is not the way in which undersellers make war, hence Mrs. Atherton's excusable though unladylike retort.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

At the annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association, held on the 10th inst., important action was taken as to the future plans of the Association, of which a full announcement will be officially made in our next week's issue.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE ANNUAL DINNER.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE, as already announced, will give its annual dinner and Ladies' Night on the evening of the 16th inst. at the Aldine Association, New York City. A very interesting programme has been prepared and an enjoyable evening is promised. Among the guests of the League on this occasion will be Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell, of Labrador, who has recently been honored by King Edward in being made a Companion of St. Michael and St. George, the first time, it is believed that a "Birthday Honor" has been given as a reward for heroic missionary work. Dr. Grenfell, as The Outlook notes, fills many offices on the Labrador coast. He is surgeon, master-mariner, a magistrate, an agent of Lloyds in running down rascals who wreck their vessels for the insurance—in short a general opponent of all vice, fraud and oppression, an upholder of all good, and a friend and comrade to everybody who comes into contact with him. Dr. Grenfell will address the League on some phases of his work among the deep-sea fisher folk of Labrador, with stereopticon views and moving pictures, and a rich treat is in store for those who will attend. Other speakers will be Robert Watch-orn, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, who is no stranger to the League; Ellis Parker Butler, author of "Pigs is Pigs;" also Charles B. Gilbert, a well-known writer.

Those who wish to attend will bear in mind the rule that unless they notify the committee promptly of their intention no place will be reserved for them at the tables for dinner, though they may be present at the entertainment after the dinner. To avoid misunderstanding we are requested to call attention to the fact that the price of the tickets for members of the League, as well as their guests, is two dollars.

THE PITTSBURGH BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION.

As already announced, the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association will give its annual dinner on the evening of the 22d inst., at the Union Club. H. Lee Mason, Jr., is the chairman of the Banquet Committee, and a most enjoyable evening is assured. It is hoped that the representatives of the stationery and publishing houses will arrange their Pittsburgh trip so as to be in that city on the evening of the dinner. The Pittsburgh members of the trade are proverbially hospitable, are always glad to have their friends "on the road" with them. A large representation is looked for.

COMMUNICATIONS.

UNITED DICTIONARY CO. TO TEST LAW RE OMISSION OF U. S. COPYRIGHT NOTICE EXTRA-TERRITORIALY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In the editorial on "the dictionary war" in your issue of January 5th, you say: "It is possible that the case," (of the United Dictionary Co.'s contention that they have a perfect legal right to publish Webster's Brief International Dictionary, being the High School Dictionary published abroad under the former title with G. & C. Merriam Co.'s knowledge and consent and without the copyright notice) "may be appealed to the United States Supreme Court for final arbitrament, but whether this will be done seems not certain." Where you secured such misinformation is not certain. That is the only uncertain thing about the matter so far as the United Dictionary Co. is concerned, for the appeal has already been taken by us, and it is our unalterable determination to have a Supreme Court decision on the question just as soon as we can get it. We are very anxious to ascertain whether a decision contrary to law and reversing a previous decision, by a Judge who knew what he was talking about when he decided that the United Dictionary Co. had the right to publish the book, will be confirmed or reversed when it gets out of the lower federal courts and into the United States Supreme Court, where every American has been taught from time immemorial that he can, and he himself believes he can, get a "square deal."

If G. & C. Merriam Co. can get decisions in the lower federal courts because of whatever cause you may attribute it to, we shall soon ascertain whether they are to be given to them "higher up." If by private contract the Merriam Co. can override a public law we want to find it out. If they cannot override public laws by private contract it's worth all it costs to teach them a lesson they should have had some one to teach them long ago; we may be a little late, the contribution plate may have been passed, but the doxology has not yet been sung; we have undertaken the contract and ask only a strict construction of the statute, whether for or against us. We are not asking favors; we want none, and we want none given to our antagonist. The law is clear on the point at issue, as follows: "No person shall maintain an action for the infringement of his copyright unless he shall give notice thereof in every copy published." Did G. & C. Merriam Co. give such notice "in every copy published"? No, they did not. Admittedly, in whole editions they failed to do so and the notice was left out not inadvertently, but as a result of the contract made by the Merriam Co., agreeing that it should be left out of the books. Notwithstanding the first Federal decision that the Merriam Co. by such omission had vitiated their copyright, it was reversed on appeal; fortunately we can appeal from such a reversal, and we have done so.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD AGAINST CONVENTION TO PROMOTE FOREIGN TRADE

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In your issue of December 22 you urge the booktrade to send representatives to the convention for "The Promotion of Foreign Trade," so called, to be held in Washington, January 14.

Now, I would beg leave to ask what examination you have made as to the origin and the originators of this scheme? Who are they and what are they really driving at? Have these people any sinister and underhand purposes in view and in regard to which they have not enlightened the public? Are the New York agents of foreign manufacturers manipulating the springs of action of it? Does the foreign agent of the manufacturer hope to "promote foreign trade" by bringing about the repeal of the laws under which the foreign open-market price of a commodity and not the invoice price, is made the basis on which the duty is to be levied? Does he seek to revive the conditions existing between 1847 and 1861, when this country was made "the swill-tub of the world"? Does this "promotion of foreign trade" aim to drive the American importer wholly out of the import trade in favor of the foreign agent? Or does the movement really mean to aid legitimate exportation without the sacrifice of any American industry? I, for one, doubt this last proposition.

All such schemes originating in New York City, with its powerful foreign influences, perpetually sapping and mining and especially now that we have an importer at the head of the Department of Commerce and Labor, must be under grave suspicion.

This movement, if it be honest, would now seem especially inopportune, when we consider that the domestic market is so great that the rolling stock of the railroads and even their trackage are unequal to the demands upon them.

Further than this, while England has, for three centuries in the interest of the trade, been engaged in subjugating the peoples of the world, we have at last overhauled her in the matter of exports, thus:

FOR THE TWELVE MONTHS ENDING JUNE 30TH, 1906.

Exports of the United States..... $1,717,953,382
Exports of the United Kingdom..... 1,727,172,026

Evidently our export trade is in need of no convention to aid it, and we trust that the convention will be forced to keep its hands off. Great as these figures of ours are, they bear no comparison whatever with our home commerce, which latter is greater far in one week than the former in a year.

The basis of commerce, domestic and foreign, is production, and the proposed convention, of ignorant or designing men, may easily so damage production and domestic commerce as to cripple seriously that foreign trade in behalf of which it claims to be about to assemble.

The American market is by far the greatest in the world, and the vast army of beggarly foreign manufacturers and traders labor and scheme night and day to get access to it and thereby to wax fat on it and escape from their beggarly condition; and there is no limit, fair or foul, to the means which they will employ to accomplish their ends.

Therefore, let the American booktrade consider well before they commit themselves to this scheme which, ten chances to one, conceals a snake and a venomous one, too. The trade has trouble enough on its hands, with the aggressive cutter and his ways, without seeking new trouble in aiding the foreigner to get access to our market for books and other merchandise. This convention is not for him, and he had better give it the cold shoulder, as has been done by one of the greatest of our productive industries.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD.

PHILADELPHIA, January 2, 1907.

[The movement for calling the convention to consider measures to extend our foreign trade, which has the endorsement of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, is not local but national, and certainly needs no apology; nor can the Americanism or patriotism of its movers be impugned, while the New York committee includes such names as Cornelius Bliss, Franklin Murphy, Henry W. Peabody, Charles A. Schieren and others. We hardly think that Mr. Baird's argument that the United States is already busy enough to need no further expansion will be accepted by the wide-awake American whose motto has never been "let well enough alone." We are very much afraid that if our friend will persist in looking for them he will always find "snakes" in everything.—ED. P. W.]

OBITUARY NOTES.

ERNEST HOWARD CROSBY, the well-known social reformer, died on January 3, in Baltimore, Md. Mr. Crosby was born in New York City, November 4, 1856, and graduated from the New York University in 1876. He was admitted to the bar two years later, and practiced law intermittently until 1899, when he retired. He was elected to the New York Assembly in 1887. In 1889 he was appointed by the Khedive, at the recommendation of President Harrison, Judge of the International Court of First Instance at Alexandria, a place he held five years, when he resigned because, having come under the influence of the writings of Tolstoy, he believed his mission to be social reform. He founded the Social Reform Club and the Anti-Imperialistic League. He was a prolific writer. The best known of his books is "Captain Jinks, Hero," in which he seeks to point out alleged absurdities in military life. Among his other works are "Plain Talk in Psalm and Parable," "Swords and Ploughshares," "William Lloyd Garrison, Non-Resistant and Abolitionist," "Broadcast" and "Tolstoi as a Schoolmaster."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The African Monthly is the title of a new magazine devoted to literature, history, exploration, science, art, poetry, fiction, etc., the first number of which, dated December, 1906, has just been published by the African Book Company at Grahamstown, Cape Colony. It is the object of the magazine to bring to the notice of South Africans matters of special interest and importance to the people in those colonies, and to afford opportunity for the expression of the latent talent which undoubtedly exists in South Africa.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PROFESSOR HUGO MÜNSTERBERG, of Harvard, author of "Psychology and Life," "American Traits," etc., has been honored by the German Emperor with a Crown Order of the second class.

THE new Williamson book now in course of construction will probably be entitled "Princess of Virginia." The only distinctive thing known about the book is that it will not be a motor story.

THE American Committee of the Keats-Shelley Memorial Association which has just bought the Keats house in Rome is making arrangements to give two authors' readings early in March in New York to aid in raising needed funds to cancel the mortgage on the house and to pay the other expenses. It appears that when the final arrangements for the purchase of the Keats house were made that $22,000 instead of $16,000 were necessary. The association raised the $16,000 and the Messrs. Plowden, of Rome advanced the other $6000, for which they have taken a mortgage. The English Committee proposes also to give authors' readings in London to raise funds towards cancelling the association's indebtedness.

CHICAGO, ILL.—William H. Ives has been elected managing director of the Chicago office and field of D. C. Heath & Co., to succeed W. S. Smyth, who has retired from active service after a long and successful career. Mr. Ives was for ten years associated with the Macmillan Company, and was for the last four years manager of its Educational Department. He is one of the most widely and favorably known men connected with educational publishing.

DALLAS, TEX.—The trustee of the Ginn, Myers & Perry Book and Stationery Company has paid a fourth dividend of ten per cent. A final dividend will be declared in a week or two.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.—Cooper & Wyatt, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Teolin Pillot, the proprietor of Pillot's bookstore, in recognition of the splendid services of M. J. Lyon and Henry W. Hamblen, incorporated his business as the Teolin Pillot Company, and allotted them a goodly portion of the stock of the company. The business was originally established by G. W. Baldwin, in 1869. When Mr. Baldwin died, sixteen years ago, Mr. Lyon as executor of the estate, continued the business, selling it to Mr. Pillot in 1897. The business has steadily grown in size, so that Mr. Pillot was obliged last year to double the space of his quarters with an entrance on Preston Avenue as well as on Main Street.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published Dr. Arthur Wentworth Eaton's book, "The Lotus of the Nile, and Other Poems." Dr. Eaton is the author of "Acadian Ballads" and "Poems of the Christian Year."

JOHN W. LUCE & Co. will publish in February "The Miracle Worker," by Gerald Maxwell, a strong story in which a great surgeon is the central figure. By his matchless skill, aided by a suggestion of occult power, the miracle is worked.

ACCORDING to the Neue Hamburger Zeitung General Kuropatkin's history of the Russo-Japanese war, which was confiscated in Russia last month because of its criticism of the Russian army system, will be published next April by a Leipzig firm. It will be in four large volumes, with many illustrations, diagrams and maps.

SAMUEL A. NELSON, Summit, N. J., who formerly published the Wall Street Library, has in press a new book on finance, entitled "How to Buy Bonds." It contains a description of every bond in the American security market. This will be followed shortly by a work on "The Bear (or Short) Operation in Stocks."

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish shortly "By the Light of the Soul," a new novel by Mary E. Wilkins Freeman, a story full of those perfect descriptions, those touches of inimitable insight, of which, in her chosen field, only Mrs. Freeman is capable. The book will have eight full-page illustrations by Harold M. Brett.

THE ZNANTZ COMPANY, of St. Petersburg, have just brought out the first volume of Maxim Gorky's impressions of the United States. It is entitled "The City of the Yellow Devil," the city being New York and the yellow devil—gold. The book is made up of short stories describing the poorest part of the American metropolis. Succeeding books are to be called "The Kingdom of Boredom," "The Mob" and "Charley Maine."

HENRY HOLT & Co. will issue at once two new volumes in J. A. D. Doyle's well-known series on English Colonies in America. They will cover, respectively, the Middle Colonies and the Colonies under the House of Hanover. They have made arrangements to bring out in this country a work of more than usual importance, entitled "Morals in Evolution," by L. T. Hobhouse, author of "Mind in Evolution," also, "The Theory of Knowledge."

It is worthy of note that Ralph Connor's "The Doctor," published by the Revells, attained during the last few weeks of the year a popularity far in advance of any other piece of fiction. Indeed, it is hard to find any book that in six weeks reached anything like such a total. In Canada it established a new record, as no book by any other author ever equalled the success accorded to this story by the Canadian minister. Among the three millions of English-speaking Canadians more than thirty-five thousand copies were circulated, more than one to every one hundred persons.

THAT intensely readable book by Dr. Edward A. Steiner, "On the Trail of the Immigrant," has created a new impression in regard to the quality of the persons who come to our shores. It is pleasant to note that the Jewish part of our reading population declare that no writer has so well grasped the true nature of the Hebrews now coming in such great numbers. This is not surprising, since it appears that Dr. Steiner, though holding the Chair of Applied Christianity in a Protestant university, is yet of purest Hebrew parentage; and thereby hangs a tale that may some day prove dramatic reading.

E. F. DUTTON & Co. are publishing a new edition of Heinrich Heine's works, translated by Charles Godfrey Leland. When Leland undertook the task in 1890 he expected to put all the writings into English, presenting them in twelve volumes, but at the time of his death he had finished only the prose. This fills eight volumes. The remaining four in the present edition, which are given to the poetry, were translated by T. Brooksbank, who did "The Book of Songs," and by Margaret Armour, (Mrs. W. B. Macdougall,) who did the "New Poems," the "Germany," the "Romancero" and the "Last Poems."

We have received the following interesting literary note from Watt & Dohan, attorneys-at-law, in the Real Estate Trust Building, Philadelphia: "We beg to inform you that John Armstrong Chanler, Esq., is the author of a book, the title of which is 'Four Years Behind the Bars of Bloomingdale,' and the sub-title is 'The Bankruptcy of Law in New York.' The book will contain 484 pages and the publisher's price, that is, the price at retail, will be $2.50, out of which the bookseller will receive 85 cents. The terms are a little tight, owing to the fact that the book was written while Mr. Chanler was confined in a 'mad house' and the expense was therefore greater."

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish on the 19th inst. Elizabeth Luther Cary's long-expected volume on Whistler, an elaborately-presented work which will contain a number of exquisite Whistlers never before reproduced in any way. They will publish later in the month a book on "Wireless Telegraphy," by Professor A. H. Kennelly, of Harvard, which sums up to date for the man in the street as well as for the student, the whole accomplishment of the world's latest scientific wonders; also, an American edition of the complete German poems of George Sylvester Viereck, the young German-American whose work made such a sensation last year here as well as in England and Germany.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY announce that the "Standard Bible Dictionary," which has been long in course of preparation, will be definitely published early in the spring. The chief characteristic of the work is that it is strictly a dictionary of the Bible and not a volume of speculations about the Bible. It is prepared from the standpoint of reverent criticism and evangelical faith, and will present in convenient form the facts found in the Scriptures, including a treatment of history contemporary with Israel. Matters in which the interpretation of Scripture is involved and which are subjects of critical controversy are treated with a serious and impartial scholarship. The work will be extensively illustrated.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & Co. will publish shortly a timely work entitled "Foods and Their Adulterations," by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, to be immediately followed by a companion volume, by the same author, on "Beverages and Their Adulterations." Dr. Wiley is chief chemist to the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, and his wide researches in the interests of purity in food commodities give anything he might write on the subject an authoritativeness that is unquestioned. The fact that the new national food and drugs law have become effective since January 1, and that public interest in it is now at white heat, will no doubt result in quite a demand for both volumes. The books will be generously illustrated from original photographs and drawings.

F. M. BUCKLES & Co., New York, will publish shortly "Hugo," a new novel, by Arnold Bennett, an author new to American readers, but who is well known in England. In his new novel Mr. Bennett, according to a competent critic, has adroitly combined two of the most popular phases of modern fiction—the commercial romance and the detective tale. Hugo, the central character, is founder and proprietor of the greatest department store on earth—a London establishment which combines every retail function. The action of the story begins with Hugo's sudden infatuation for a beautiful girl in his millinery department, but from this somewhat flimsy start the plot proceeds to interweave until it accumulates mysteries within mysteries that would puzzle the most inveterate student of the intricacies of crime. Mr. Bennett co-operated with Eden Phillpotts in writing "Doubloons," published last November.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS is bringing out a book entitled "Animal Micrology," by M. F. Guyer, professor in the University of Cincinnati, which is intended as a laboratory manual in microscopic anatomy and embryology. Details of procedure rather than descriptions of reagents or apparatus are emphasized. Sufficient account of the theoretical side of microscopy is given to enable the student to get satisfactory results from his microscope. While the book is intended primarily for the beginner, or as a class textbook, it will be found useful as a reference book for teachers in the preparation of material for courses in histology, embryology, or elementary zoölogy. Especially valuable features which appear in the appendices are (1) the tabulation of nearly three hundred tissues and organs with directions for properly preparing them for microscopical study, and (2) directions for collecting and preparing material for the microscopical work in an elementary course in zoölogy.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in preparation an interesting biography, entitled

"Robert Clark of the Punjab." The subject was one of those early missionaries in India who by force of circumstances had to become pioneer statesman and the introducer of modern governmental ideas in India. Mr. Clark's influence was as widespread as that of a wise and respected and forceful Christian statesman could well be. His work touched not only Punjab but Afghanistan, Cashmere, and reached even up into the Thibet. The biography is written by Henry Martyn Clark, M.D., an English physician, and is adorned with an interesting style that turns the narrative into a veritable story. They also announce an "Esperanto First Reader," which will consist of sixty-four pages and is designed to follow instruction books. It will contain a story by Mlle. De Beaufort, a short story by Dr. Zamenhof, the inventor of the language, and several extracts after the fashion of the usual school reader.

THOUGH it is only recently that we have heard so much about Arthur Christopher Benson, he is the author of seventeen published volumes—seven of prose, five of verse and five biographies. Mr. Benson's first book, "Memoirs of Arthur Hamilton," published in 1886, was, like all his prose books, with the exception of the biographies, issued anonymously. At the time it was supposed to be a genuine book of "Memoirs," edited by "Christopher Carr," whose name was signed to the dedication. The book very soon went out of print, and has been difficult to obtain for many years; but a new edition, the first in America, will be published next week by Mitchell Kennerley. Mr. Kennerley will publish on the 22d inst., simultaneously with its appearance in London, "Life's Shop Window," the first long novel written by "Victoria Cross" since "Anna Lombard." The book is said to be a vivid presentment of the varying phases of a woman's life. The scene is laid chiefly in England and the wild regions of America, where the author spent several years of her early life. There is a problem in "Life's Shop Window" that is new to fiction—but then "Victoria Cross" is nothing if not daring.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish to-day the first volume of an important literary work in "The Censorship of the Church of Rome and its influence upon the production and distribution of literature." The work is by the senior member of the firm that publishes the work, which will be in two volumes, namely, George Haven Putnam, who has already laid scholarship under a heavy debt by his contributions to the history of literature and the making of books—his "Books and Their Makers in the Middle Ages," for example, and his "Authors and Their Public in Ancient Times," etc. Censorship as described by Mr. Putnam has been by no means the simple thing that it is apt to appear to modern eyes, and that action was not always consistent. "In the stormy times of the relative youth of modern society," as pointed out by a reviewer of the book, "it took a very wise and broad man, or an indifferent one, to see that competition is the life of the commerce of minds, and that combinations in restraint of such commerce could only choke, confuse, and retard it. But, as Mr. Putnam very clearly shows, reaction, even immediate, was strong, becoming constantly stronger with the passage of time. Mr. Putnam shrewdly gives specific instances, of which the eye of a publisher detects the significance, where prohibitions of particular books set the presses going in towns beyond the prohibitory jurisdiction turning out editions by tens of thousands. He does not, however, fail to see that on the whole the tangled system of repression, prohibition, expurgation, guidance, was injurious to the orderly development of religious thinking and healthy religious sentiment. That was inevitable, though the system itself, taking into consideration the material interests involved, the human passions aroused, the low stage of social organization was also inevitable."

This rich and beautiful book surveys the field of Whistler's accomplishment, embodying an account of his methods so far as they may be made clear to the general reader.

Miss Cary's remarkable insight and rare critical abilities, combined with her unusual capacity to interpret art, even in its more elusive aspects, to the appreciative mind unskilled in the refinements of criticism, are here illustrated at their best, resulting in a volume of great distinction.

THE FAR HORIZON

By Lucas Malet, author of Sir Richard Calmady

"If the quality of readableness alone can give large distinction to a new work of fiction, Lucas Malet's novel, "The Far Horizon," will easily take its place as the book of the year. It is readable in no ordinary way. One does not hurry through its pages intent only on the story, but it both invites and repays leisurely attention. One reads, also, with no very distinct sense of the author's style, which is unobtrusive and free from vagaries."

A Story to Make You Sit Up.

"The Mystery," by Stewart Edward White and Samuel Hopkins Adams (McClure, Phillips & Co.), comes like a bracing breeze over the desert sands of prisoner-of-war romances. It is a wind off the ocean, singing of the open spaces and the world where elemental forces and passions clash and grind against the hopes and aspirations and the tamed powers of civilization. That the story inevitably invites comparison with "Treasure Island" is not at all to its discredit and not so very much to its disadvantage. Stevenson was the pioneer in a fiction that all too few have followed, and the success which "The Mystery" achieves is not only deserved, but is all the more remarkable because it is a success of collaboration. It may hold its head up in the good company of Joseph Conrad's "Youth" and "Lord Jim" and not be too much ashamed.

There is no love interest in "Mystery." That is straight and unadulterated Stevenson, of course, and it may be that in striving to avoid absolutely all sentimental effects the authors have a bit overdone the raw-head-and-bloody-bonesness of it, but there will be many who will welcome the sheer unrelieved nakedness of this tragedy of scientific endeavor on a globe still infested by human brutes. The humorous aspects of Dr. Karl Augustus Schermerhorn's indefatigable pursuit of the chemical and physical sources of power in an environment composed of such as Ezra Selover, the repulsive skipper with a mania for a clean ship; "Handy Solomon," of the steel hook substitute for a hand, perpetually trolling out piratical "Barbaree" staves; Nigger Robinson, Pula and Perdora, will, perhaps, be missed by some and more will fail to appreciate the grimness of the humor, but this romance of benevolent intelligence racing against the blind, uncomprehending forces of volcanic nature while struggling at the same time to cope with un-intelligent greed is emphatically calculated to make a jaded novel-reading public sit up, and in more senses than one.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in preparation a new volume in their True Biographies series on the great Virginian, Patrick Henry, by George Morgan, author of "The Issue," and other historical novels. The book, which will be ready in the spring, has a timely interest in view of the forthcoming Jamestown centennial celebration.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish in February Edith Wharton's "Madame de Treymes," a brilliant story of a young American who marries into a French family of high position, in which Mrs. Wharton is said to show in the most subtle, discerning and striking way the contrast between the French and American views of family relations and the consequences. The volume will have illustrations in color by Alonzo Kimball.

DUFFIELD & Co. will publish in February a new novel by Charles Egbert Craddock, entitled "The Windfall"; also, "The Spirit of Labor," the biography of a Chicago workingman and trades-unionist, by Hutchins Hapgood, author of "The Autobiography of a Thief." In his new book much curious information, given from the inside, has been gathered by Mr. Hapgood on the subject of labor unions and the laboring point-of-view generally. They also announce for the spring: "The Dower Woods," by Emma Bricoke, author of "The Engrafted Rose," and "A Winged Victory," by Professor Robert Morse Lovett, of the University of Chicago, author of "Richard Gresham."

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will publish on the 29th inst., "The Lonely Lady of Grosvenor Square," a delightful new story by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, author of "Peter's Mother," which received a very cordial reception in England and in this country. They have just ready a work on the "Recent Progress in the Study of Variation, Heredity and Evolution," by Robert Heath Lock, Fellow of Gonville and Cains College, Cambridge; "Queen and Cardinal," a memoir of Anne of Austria and of her relation with Cardinal Mazarin, by Mrs. Colquhoun Grant; "Studies in Biography," by Sir Spencer Walpole, including sketches of Peel, Cobden, Disraeli, Bismarck, Napoleon III., and others; "The Children of the Nation: How their Health and Vigor Should be Promoted by the State," by the Right Hon. Sir John E. Gorst; also, "Infant Mortality, a Social Problem," by George Newman, Lecturer on Public Health at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY expect to publish at an early date, two books of special interest in view of the approaching tri-centennial of Jamestown, Va. One is the "Travels" of the famous Captain John Smith, or, to give the formidable title in full: "The Generall Historie of Virginia, New England, and the Summer Isles, with the Proceedings of those Severall Colonies and the Accidents that Befel them in all their Journyes and Discoveries. By Captaine John Smith, Sometymes Governour in those Countreys, and Admirall of New England." The rare works that make up this volume are here assembled in convenient form for the first time since their original publication in 1624-30. The edition will contain facsimile reproductions of all the maps and illustrations in the originals, including the rare portraits of the Duchess of Richmond and Pocahontas. The other book is "The Birth of the Nation: Jamestown, 1607," by Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, author of "The Mother of Washington and Her Times," etc. Mrs. Pryor's admirable style and unflagging enthusiasm for Colonial history should find fitting employment in this story of the first Virginia Colony.

 Both authors are English. The lady who furnishes pt. 1, "The artistic view," is a teacher of singing of great experience and broad intelligence, licentiate of the Royal Academy of Music and associate of the Royal College of Music. She writes of sound, the preparation of the instrument, production, storage and control of motive power of resonance, tone production, etc. Pt. 2, "The medical view," by Patrick Daniel, is the contribution of an English surgeon, who adds chapters on the quackery, anatomy, physiology, mechanism, healthiness and hygiene of singing; on some impediments to singing; notes to the registers of singing; on some evil results of singing and some errors in singing. Under "Practical hints" are general exercises, and some physical exercises for singing and local muscular development.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 19, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT CONTRACT AND CONSPIRACY.

COPYRIGHT protection, as set forth in last week's editorial discussion, secures to the copyright proprietor, whether the original author or the publisher as his assigns, the exclusive right to "vend" his copyrighted book—a comprehensive term of which any proposed change in the pending copyright measure would be merely declaratory. How that right shall be protected and enforced is, as we have indicated, a question of the law of contract. If a purchaser buys a piece of land, or a patented article, or a book, without due legal notice of restriction of sale he is entitled to the full and unrestricted use of his purchase—except, of course, that he may not copy or reproduce the patented article or the book. In the case of land the restriction can be enforced and perpetuated without difficulty because the title passes through a deed, which is a matter of public record and in which both private and public notice of the restriction may be given. In the case of a patented article or a book, while the patent or copyright notice is measurably a warning that restrictions are possible, to an extent not practicable in the case of other and ordinary chattels, it is not legally quite clear or practically quite easy to give proper notice to successive buyers of any restriction which it is desired to enforce and perpetuate.

In the endeavor to protect the retail prices of books, three methods have been recently employed. The first was that utilized by the Bobbs-Merrill Company in the case, for example, of "The Castaway," where a notice was printed on the book, based on the copyright, setting forth the restrictions of sale. The second was that adopted by the Scribners in giving general notice of restriction on their catalogues and bill heads rather than on copies of the book. The third was the agency system used by the "Authors and Newspapers Association," in whose series of 50-cent fiction John Wanamaker, for example, was made sole selling-agent in New York and Philadelphia, with a provision in the agency contract that the 50-cent retail price should be maintained for one year, notice of which was printed in each book.

Each of these methods has been passed upon by the courts, though not yet finally settled by the ultimate authority. In the first case, the Circuit Court of Appeals in New York pointed out specifically that any such restriction must be based on contractual rather than copyright law. In the second case, the same court held that the notice of restriction was not sufficient to bind successive purchasers under the law of contract, and expressed doubt whether the principles upheld by the courts in respect to patented and proprietary articles would apply to copyright articles—a doubt which we are disposed to think is likely to be resolved by the final tribunal, in accordance with decisions in other countries, that the same principles apply to all. In the third case, the Providence decision held that an underseller who had obtained copies of the book for the purpose of cutting prices had sufficient notice of the restriction to be held responsible, and an injunction was granted, though the court expressed doubt as to how far further purchasers could be held to knowledge of the restriction. It is evident, from these cases, that the courts are more or less disposed to uphold a restricted sale, not as a question of copyright, but under contractual relations, provided sufficient notice is given; but just what constitutes the right kind of notice and how far this notice can be carried to successive purchasers, is by no means settled.

The right of each publisher or dealer to control the sale of his own books, to the full extent permitted under the law of contracts, has not been challenged by the courts; but we come now to a third question, i.e., at what point this restriction becomes a conspiracy or a restraint on trade, bringing it under the ban either of the common law or of the anti-trust legislation. The Philadelphia decision in the druggist cases may not be finally upheld and may not be adjudged applicable to the conditions of the booktrade. The decision is to the effect that what may be lawful for an individual proprietor is not lawful when one proprietor endeavors, under mutual agreement, to protect the interest of another proprietor; this is likely to constitute conspiracy under the common law or be a restraint of trade, under ban of the anti-trust law.

It is because of the doubts aroused by this decision that the American Publishers' Association at its annual meeting last week decided to rescind its previous action and place the plan of reform in the shape of recommendation, leaving its execution to the honor and fairness of each member. Thus the danger is obviated of arraignment as a conspiracy or as a combination in restraint of trade.

These recommendations have the individual support of the foremost houses of the trade, each for itself; and the result will be simply that if any dealer undersells he is likely to be cut off from trade discounts by the house on whose publications he cuts prices. The Macy house, for instance, would be able to obtain books, but only at retail prices—so that it would have little fighting ground and would simply have to face the loss on selling at cut prices books for which it must pay full rates. The American Publishers' Association has practically adopted closely the scheme of the English Association, which has worked, on the whole, effectively and with less friction than the American plan. The prosperity of the past year has been dependent in no small measure on the practical application of reform principles, and we believe that there is no practical danger that the reform will not continue under the new method. Every fair-minded bookseller who appreciates fair dealing and has a backbone of his own should continue to uphold the net price system.

THE opinion of Judge Colt, of Boston, on the use of the word Webster, of which the text is given in full elsewhere, is a clear presentation of the facts and a lucid statement of the law, which, we believe, is likely to be upheld by the Circuit Court of Appeals and by the U. S. Supreme Court, to which, we understand, it is the intention of the Merriam Company to appeal the case. Judge Colt reverts to the original decision in the Merriam cases of 1890-92, as cited with approval by the U. S. Supreme Court in the Singer patent case, all of which denied the right of a proprietor of a copyrighted or patented article to hold a monopoly in a name as a trade mark after the copyright or patent on the article had expired. The question was again brought into court because Mr. Ogilvie sued to restrain the Merriam Company from sending letters to retailers, impeaching his use of the word Webster, and because the Merriam Company, in a cross-bill, set up the claim that the word Webster was now associated with their Webster's International Dictionary, rather than with the old Webster's Unabridged Dictionary which went out of copyright in 1889. The pith of the decision is that the word Webster may be used on dictionaries by others than the original copyright proprietors and cannot be protected as a trade-mark, but that the publishers of rival Websters must make clear that the Webster Dictionary is their publication, and not that of the original copyright proprietor. Mr. Ogilvie, the judge holds, has done that on his Webster's Imperial Dictionary, but not in certain of his circulars and advertisements. Wherefore the court enjoins the Merriam Company from interfering with the Ogilvie customers and enjoins Ogilvie from sending out circulars and advertisements which may mislead the public into confusing his Webster's Dictionaries with the Merriam Webster's dictionaries. Under Judge Colt's decision, at least until it is definitely reversed by a higher court, the retail trade will be fully justified in handling either or both lines of Webster dictionaries.

DECISION AS TO THE RIGHT TO USE THE NAME OF WEBSTER.

WE give below the opinion of Judge Colt, of the Circuit Court of the United States, District of Massachusetts, rendered on January 9, 1907, in the suits brought by George W. Ogilvie against G. & C. Merriam Company, and by the G. & C. Merriam Company against George W. Ogilvie, as to the right to use the name of Webster in the title of dictionaries of the English language:

THIS bill and cross-bill present two general questions: Has the defendant, the G. & C. Merriam Company, the exclusive right to the use of the name Webster in the title of dictionaries of the English language? And, second, has the complainant, George W. Ogilvie, unmistakably informed the public that his dictionary is a Webster's dictionary published by George W. Ogilvie, and not a Webster's dictionary published by G. & C. Merriam Company?

The dictionary published by Ogilvie is entitled Webster's Imperial Dictionary, and he seeks by his bill to enjoin the Merriam Company from sending out threatening letters and circulars to the trade to the effect that the Merriam Company has the exclusive right to the use of the name Webster upon dictionaries. On the other hand, the Merriam Company, by its cross-bill, seeks to enjoin Ogilvie from the use of the name Webster upon his dictionary, and from sending out misleading circulars and advertisements respecting his dictionary. It is claimed by the Merriam Company that this use of the name Webster and these circulars and advertisements are an infringement of Webster's International Dictionary, which is the latest edition of Webster's dictionary published by the Merriam Company.

The evidence shows that the Ogilvie dictionary is an enlarged and revised edition of Webster's dictionary, based upon Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, which was published and copyrighted by G. & C. Merriam in 1847, and upon which the copyright expired in 1889. The evidence also shows that the Merriam Company, and its predecessors in title, G. & C. Merriam & Company and G. & C. Merriam, have been the publishers of Webster's dictionaries for more than fifty years, having acquired all the rights in Webster's dictionary from the heirs of Noah Webster previous to 1847, and that since that time they have published numerous editions of this work.

It further appears from the evidence that on the back or cover of every copy of each edition of this book published by Noah Webster and by the Merriams, beginning with the year 1806, have appeared the words "Webster's Dictionary," and that this is the generic name by which this book has always been known and described.

It further appears from the evidence that from 1847 to 1889 the Merriams were the sole publishers of Webster's dictionaries, and that in 1889 the name Webster, as applied to dictionaries, had acquired a secondary meaning, and indicated to the public the dictionaries published and sold by the Merriam Company. It further appears that, since the expiration of the Merriam copyright in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary in 1889, various editions of Webster's dictionary have been published and sold by other publishers; but, notwithstanding this circumstance, it is shown by a preponderance of evidence that the name Webster still indicates to the public the dictionaries published and sold by the Merriam Company.

We have then to inquire what are the rights of Ogilvie with respect to the use of the name Webster upon dictionaries after the expiration of the Merriam copyright in 1889, it appearing that the name Webster has a two-fold signification, in that it is the generic name of the dictionary, and also indicates to the public the dictionaries published and sold by the Merriam Company.

A copyright, the same as a patent, is a monopoly created by statute. This monopoly is granted upon the implied condition that at the expiration of the copyright the book, and the name by which it is designated, are dedicated to the public; in other words, at the expiration of the copyright, both the book and its generic name become public property. To say that the public have the right to publish the book, and not the incidental right to use the name by which it is known, is in effect to destroy the public right, and to perpetuate the monopoly. For instance, to hold that the Merriam Company, after the expiration of its copyright in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, still has the exclusive right to the use of the name Webster on some theory of trademark or trade-name, or unfair competition, would be to nullify the public dedication, and perpetuate the monopoly secured by the copyright. It follows, therefore, as a necessary result, that at the expiration of the copyright any person has the right to publish the copyrighted book, and to call it by its generic name.

But it may so happen, as in the case at bar, that, at the expiration of the copyright, the name by which the book is known has also acquired a secondary meaning, and has come to indicate to the public the book published and sold by the publisher who took out the copyright. In such a case, another person must so use the name as to protect individual property rights, and to prevent injury to the public. While no restrictions can be imposed upon the right to use the name, such person must, so far as is consistent with such use, protect the good-will and business of the original publisher, and guard the public against deception. The duty, therefore, is imposed upon such person of accompanying his publication with such indications as to the source of publication as will unmistakably inform the public that the book is published by himself, and not by the original publisher. After having taken these precautions, if any injury results to the business of the original publisher, it is damnum absque injuria. Such injury is analogous to the incidental injury to the business of another which may result from the absolute right of everyone to use his own name in his own business.

It follows, in the case at bar, that Ogilvie, upon the expiration of the Merriam copyright, has the right to publish the copyrighted book, or a revised edition thereof, and to call it Webster's Dictionary, or Webster's Imperial Dictionary, provided that he clearly indicates to the public that it is a Webster's Dictionary published by him, and not a Webster's Dictionary published by the Merriam Company.

In 1890, or soon after the expiration of the copyright in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, the Merriams brought several suits in which they set up their exclusive right to the use of the name Webster in the title of dictionaries. In these cases the decisions were adverse to the Merriam Company upon this point, the courts holding that to give the Merriam Company this exclusive right would be to perpetuate the copyright monopoly.

In Merriam v. Holloway Publishing Company, 43 Fed. Rep. 450, decided September 26, 1890, Mr. Justice Miller said:

"I want to say, however, with reference to the main issue in the case, that it occurs to me that this proceeding is an attempt to establish the doctrine that a party who has had the copyright of a book until it has expired, may continue that monopoly indefinitely, under the pretence that it is protected by a trademark, or something of that sort. I do not believe in any such doctrine, nor do my associates. When a man takes out a copyright, for any of his writings or works, he impliedly agrees that, at the expiration of that copyright, such writings or works shall go to the public and become public property. . . . The grant of a monopoly implies that, after the monopoly has expired, the public shall be entitled ever afterwards to the unrestricted use of the book. . . .

"I will say this, however, that the contention that complainants have any special property in 'Webster's Dictionary' is all nonsense, since the copyright has expired. What do they mean by the expression 'their book,' when they speak of Webster's Dictionary? It may be their book if they have bought it, as a copy of Webster's Dictionary is my book if I have bought it. But in no other sense than that last indicated can the complainants say of Webster's Dictionary that it is their book."

In Merriam v. Famous Shoe & Clothing Company, 47 Fed. Rep. 411, decided September 10, 1891, Judge Thayer said:

"I have no doubt that defendant is entitled to use the words 'Webster's Dictionary' to describe the work that it is engaged in publishing and selling. Those words were used to describe Webster's Dictionary of the edition of 1847, and, as the copyright on that edition has expired, it has now become public property. Any one may reprint that edition of the work, and entitle the reprint 'Webster's Dictionary.' The latter words, which appeared on the title-page and on the outer cover of books of the edition of 1847, have become public property, as well as other parts of the work. Defendant's right to call the 'Famous Reprint Edition' 'Webster's Dictionary' is as clear as the right of complainants to give that title to books of the edition of 1864."

In Merriam v. Texas Siftings Publishing Company, 49 Fed. Rep. 944, decided March 15, 1892, Judge Shipman said:

"The plaintiffs are not entitled to an exclusive use of the name 'Webster's Dictionary' upon copies of editions the copyrights of which have expired, for the name is not a trademark. Mere copies of the edition of 1847 and 1859 can be reproduced by a publisher, over his own name, provided he makes no misrepresentations to induce the public to believe that it is another book, the right to publish which is the exclusive property of the plaintiff."

Merriam v. Holloway Publishing Company and Merriam v. Famous Shoe & Clothing Company were cited with approval by the Supreme Court in Singer Manufacturing Company v. June Manufacturing Company, 163 U. S. 109.

Singer Manufacturing Company v. June Manufacturing Company was a patent case, and related to the exclusive right to the use of the name Singer upon sewing machines after the expiration of the patent, which was claimed on the ground that the name Singer indicated to the public the machines manufactured by the Singer Manufacturing Company. In the opinion of the Court in that case, Mr. Justice White said:

"It is self-evident that on the expiration of a patent the monopoly created by it ceases to exist, and the right to make the thing formerly covered by the patent becomes public property. It is upon this condition that the patent is granted. . . . It equally follows from the cessation of the monopoly and the falling of the patented device into the domain of things public, that along with the public ownership of the device there must also necessarily pass to the public the generic designation of the thing which has arisen during the monopoly. . . . To say otherwise would be to hold that although the public had acquired the device covered by the patent, yet the owner of the patent or the manufacturer of the patented thing had retained the designated name which was essentially necessary to vest the public with the full enjoyment of that which had become theirs by the disappearance of the monopoly.

In other words, that the patentee or manufacturer could take the benefit and advantage of the patent upon the condition that at its termination the monopoly should cease, and yet when the end was reached disregard the public dictation and practically perpetuate indefinitely an exclusive right. The public having the right on the expiration of the patent to make the patented article and to use its generic name, to restrict this use, either by preventing its being placed upon the articles when manufactured, or by using it in advertisements or circulars, would be to admit the right and at the same time destroy it. It follows, then, that the right to use the name in every form passes to the public with the dedication resulting from the expiration of the patent. . . . But it does not follow, as a consequence of a dedication, that the general power, vested in the public, to make the machine and use the name imports that there is no duty imposed, on the one using it, to adopt such precautions as will protect the property of others and prevent injury to the public interest, if by doing so no substantial restriction is imposed on the right of freedom of use. . . . It is obvious that if the name dedicated to the public, either as a consequence of the monopoly or by the voluntary act of the party, has a twofold significance, one generic and the other pointing to the origin of manufacture and the name is availed of by another without clearly indicating that the machine, upon which the name is marked, is made by him, then the right to use the name because of its generic signification would imply a power to destroy any good-will which belonged to the original maker. It would import, not only this, but also the unrestricted right to deceive and defraud the public by so using the name as to delude them into believing that the machine made by one person was made by another. . . . On the other hand, to compel the one who uses the name after the expiration of the patent, to indicate that the articles are made by himself, in no way impairs the right of use, but simply regulates and prevents wrong to individuals and injury to the public. This fact is fully recognized by the well settled doctrine which holds that 'every one has the absolute right to use his own name honestly in his own business, even though he may thereby incidentally interfere with and injure the business of another having the same name. In such case the inconvenience or loss to which those having a common right are subjected is damnum absque injuria. . . ."

"The result, then, of the American, the English, and the French doctrine universally upheld is this, that where, during the life of a monopoly created by a patent, a name, whether it be arbitrary or be that of the inventor, has become, by his consent, either express or tacit, the identifying and generic name of the thing patented, this name passes to the public with the cessation of the monopoly which the patent created. Where another avails himself of this public dedication to make the machine and use the generic designation, he can do so in all forms, with the fullest liberty, by affixing such name to the machines, by referring to it in advertisements and by other means, subject, however, to the condition that the name must be so used as not to deprive others of their rights or to deceive the public, and, therefore, that the name must be accompanied with such indications that the thing manufactured is the work of the one making it, as will unmistakably inform the public of that fact."

The Merriam Company contend that these cases are not applicable to the case at bar, because it is shown by the evidence that Webster's dictionary now indicates to the public the latest edition of this book published by that company. This position is untenable. The fundamental ground on which these decisions rest is that at the expiration of the statutory term in a copyright or a patent the thing copyrighted or patented, together with its generic name, becomes public property. It follows that, since 1889, or upon the expiration of the copyright in Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, Ogilvie had the same right as the Merriam Company to publish and sell that edition of Webster's Dictionary, or a revised and enlarged edition of that book, and to use the name Webster in the title. And this public right cannot be taken away or abridged on any theory of trademark or unfair competition such as is now advanced by the Merriam Company. This is only another way of seeking to perpetuate the monopoly secured by the copyright. When the word Webster as applied to dictionaries has once become dedicated to the public, it is not again subject to exclusive appropriation as a trademark or trade-name, nor can the public be deprived of its use on the ground of unfair competition.

It only remains to consider whether Ogilvie has clearly shown that his dictionary is published by himself and not by the Merriam Company. Upon the back or cover of the Ogilvie book is printed "George W. Ogilvie," and upon the title-page is printed "George W. Ogilvie, Publisher." The form of the book is the usual form which characterizes unabridged dictionaries. With respect to the book itself I think Ogilvie has done all which the law requires to distinguish his book from the dictionaries published by the Merriams, including Webster's International Dictionary. As was said by Judge Shipman in Merriam v. Texas Siftings Publishing Company: "The mere form or size of the volume in which Webster's Dictionary has ordinarily appeared does not in the mind of the public connect the plaintiff with the manufacture of the dictionary, and there is no characteristic of a trademark in such ordinary form or size." 49 Fed. Rep. 944.

With respect to the Ogilvie circulars and advertisements, the case is quite different. It is evident that these circulars and advertisements are misleading and deceptive. They convey the impression that the Ogilvie book is a new edition of Webster's Dictionary published by the Merriam Company, and that it is the successor of Webster's International Dictionary; and, further, Ogilvie has taken portions of the printed matter in the circulars and advertisements of the International Dictionary, and inserted them in his circulars and advertisements. All this goes to show the intention of Ogilvie to trespass upon the reputation of the Merriam Company, and to deceive purchasers into purchasing his dictionary for one of the series of Webster's dictionaries published by the Merriam Company. It is clear, therefore, that Ogilvie should be enjoined from sending out these circulars and advertisements in their present form. These circulars and advertisements should be so reformed as not in any manner to convey the impression that Ogilvie is the successor of the Merriam Company, or that his book is a new edition of any of the series of Webster's dictionaries published by the Merriam Company.

The conclusions I have reached are that the Merriam Company should be enjoined from sending out circulars to the effect that they have the exclusive right to the use of the name Webster in the title of dictionaries, and that Ogilvie should be enjoined from sending out his circulars and advertisements in their present form; and a decree may be drawn accordingly.

THE AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION ADOPTS A NEW PLAN.

THE annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association was held at the rooms of the Aldine Association in New York City, on January 9, (not the 10th, as inadvertently stated last week,) with President Frank H. Scott in the chair. There were present, in person or by proxy, thirty-one firms. The minutes of the annual meeting of February, 1906, were read and approved, as was also the report of the treasurer. It was reported that the membership of the Association was made up of 26 charter members, 14 associate members and 20 annual members—a total of sixty.

The president addressed the meeting, and stated that the Board of Directors had voted to recommend to the Association the passage of the following resolutions:

I. Resolved, That the Plan to correct evils connected with the cutting of prices on copyrighted books adopted at a meeting of the American Publishers' Association, held February 13, 1901, together with all votes and resolutions since adopted, amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, be and the same hereby are rescinded and revoked.

The president explained that the purpose of this resolution was to repeal all the existing rules and regulations of the Association having any reference to the prices of books.

II. Resolved, That the following Plan be adopted by the Association:

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION PLAN.

(1) That the members of the American Publishers' Association agree that all copyrighted books first issued by them after January 1, 1907, (excepting school books, subscription books, and other books not sold through the trade, and also, if desired, new editions, works of fiction and juveniles,) shall be published at net prices; and it is recommended that the retail price of a net book, marked net, be printed on a paper wrapper covering said book. Each member is at liberty to fix such net prices on his copyrighted books as may seem to him proper. The only purpose of this agreement is that the public shall be informed of the real price of each net copyrighted book, which otherwise would be difficult.

(2) It is recommended to the different members of the Association that each member thereof shall sell his copyrighted books at wholesale only to book dealers and others who will maintain for one year after publication the retail price of his net copyrighted books, and who sell his net copyrighted books, (except at retail) to no one who cuts his net prices.

A dealer or bookseller may be defined as one who makes it a regular part of his business to sell books and carry stock of them for public sale.

(3) Believing that the interests of each individual member of the Association will be furthered by selling his copyrighted books only to booksellers who will allow no greater discount on copyrighted works of fiction (not net) and on copyrighted juvenile books (not net) than 28 per cent. during one year after publication, it is recommended to each member of the Association that he shall act upon this suggestion and that he carry out the same in the manner above suggested in the case of copyrighted net books. The conditions governing the sale of fiction are such that the Association only suggests a maximum discount on retail sales which, however, it is hoped may rarely be given.

The purpose of the Association, so far as it can accomplish such purpose by recommendation, is to secure plainly stated prices of net copyrighted books, and to bring the actual selling price of copyrighted books nearer the stated price as far as reasonably and fairly possible; and to avoid special rebates and discounts and to provide for equality in the treatment of retail purchasers.

(4) Nothing contained in the foregoing recommendations shall be considered as applicable to sales made to libraries, although it is recommended that Libraries be allowed a discount of not more than 10 per cent. on net books or 33 1-3 per cent. on copyrighted fiction and juveniles (not net). By libraries is meant libraries to which access is either free or by annual subscription. Book Clubs are not meant to be included in this description.

(5) It is suggested that a publisher of net copyrighted books selling the same at retail should add to his retail price the cost of postage or expressage when books are sent out of the city where he does business.

(6) It is recommended to each member of the Association that he shall not offer nor sell his copyrighted books to any one who offers such copyrighted books in combination with periodicals at less than the trade subscription price of such periodicals, plus the net or minimum retail price of such copyrighted books.

(7) Nothing contained herein shall be taken as applicable to any book after the expiration of a year from its publication.

(8) Nothing in the above recommendations shall be considered in the nature of an agreement, and no penalty shall attach to a disregard of any of them.

(9) The directors of the Association are authorized to establish and maintain an office and engage a suitable person as manager who shall act as an assistant to the secretary and perform such duties as shall be assigned to him by the directors.

The president called attention to the fact that under this resolution and plan there is no agreement except as to calling books of a certain class "net books" and designating their prices as "net prices," the rest being solely in the nature of recommendations which the members are wholly free to disregard if they choose. These resolutions and the plan were favorably voted upon.

A third resolution to amend the by-laws by striking out Article VII., looking to the removal from the by-laws of all provision for penalties excepting only those for non-payment of dues was deferred for action to a special meeting of the Association to be held within a month from the date of the annual meeting.

The election of directors resulted in the reelection of G. B. M. Harvey, of Harper & Brothers; Albert F. Houghton, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co.; Frank N. Doubleday, of Doubleday, Page & Co., and Craige Lippincott, of J. B. Lippincott Company.

Before adjourning, the secretary read a communication from the American Booksellers' Association, consisting of resolutions passed at the annual convention of that Association held in 1906, requesting the American Publishers' Association to issue in the future all works of fiction on the net price plan, suggesting that $1.20 net be such net price on books that would otherwise ordinarily be issued at $1.50 list, and suggesting a similar proportionate net price on such other works of fiction as would ordinarily be listed at $1 or $1.25. The resolutions also requested the American Publishers' Association to grant to retail dealers a discount of at least 30 per cent. on net books of all sorts and to discontinue cataloguing on the net price basis all non-copyright imported books.

It was voted to instruct the secretary to write to the American Booksellers' Association stating that the American Publishers' Association regrets that it finds it inadvisable to act at this time as recommended in the resolution.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 17th inst., Frank H. Dodd, of Dodd, Mead & Co., was elected president; Charles Scribner, first vice-president; Frank H. Scott, of the Century Company, second vice-president; and Albert F. Houghton, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., treasurer. The election of secretary was deferred to another meeting of the Board of Directors.

Resolutions were passed complimenting the retiring president, Frank H. Scott, for his efficient services in a most trying period of the Association's existence.

THE UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING CO. CONTINUES IN BUSINESS.

We regret that through a misunderstanding of a report concerning a certain transaction between the University Publishing Co. and the American Book Company we should have been led to think that the University Publishing Co. had sold its entire plant instead of only a certain part of it. The facts are that the University Publishing Co., by a vote of its stockholders, decided to sell to the American Book Company the plates and publishing rights of its readers, spellers, arithmetics, geographies and similar grammar school textbooks. They still have, however, a considerable list left, which they will continue to publish under their old firm name at its present quarters, 27 West Twenty-third Street, New York City.

FAREWELL DINNER TO HENRY B. BURROWS.

A FAREWELL dinner was given to Henry B. Burrows, retiring vice-president of the Burrows Brothers Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, at the Hollenden, in that city, on the evening of January 3. Three hundred employees of the concern were present. A solid silver loving cup and a silver coffee set were presented to Mr. Burrows by his former associates. President C. W. Burrows addressed his employees, and other talks were given by officers of the firm.

Henry B. Burrows has been for thirty-five years a member of the firm with his brother, C. W. Burrows, and aided largely in the expansion of its business, which reaches across the sea. He will in future make his home in New York, where he will have charge of the American agency of Hooper & Jackson, Ltd.

C. W. Cathcart will become manager of the firm to succeed Mr. Burrows.

GEORGE V. L. MEYER APPOINTED POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

GEORGE V. L. MEYER, of Massachusetts, now Ambassador to Russia, has been appointed Postmaster-General to succeed George B. Cortelyou, whose nomination as Secretary of the Treasury in place of Leslie M. Shaw was confirmed on January 15. Mr. Meyer's term of office is to begin March 4, when Mr. Cortelyou assumes his new office.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

AMENDMENTS AND COMMENTS ON PROPOSED COPYRIGHT BILL.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, (Library Branch,) has published for the Copyright Office, Part 2 of the "Amendments

Proposed to the Copyright Bill (S. 6330, H. R. 19853,) together with other Criticisms and Suggestions received and notes to date by the Copyright office, December, 1906," (108 p. 4") also, Part 3, "Comment upon the Bill and upon Certain Criticisms thereof by the Copyright Committees of the American Bar Association (First Committee,) and the Association of the Bar of the City of New York,"

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN RUSSIA.

A SPECIAL cable despatch from St. Petersburg to the New York Sun announces that the Minister of Justice has prepared a scheme for Russia's adoption of the international literary and musical copyright, which hitherto has been non-existent here. It will be laid before the Council of Ministers.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE annual dinner and Ladies' Night of the Booksellers' League was given at the Aldine Association on the evening of January 16. There were present 150 persons, the members of the League and their ladies having almost equal representation. On entering the banquet room a few minutes before eight o'clock each lady received a bunch of violets and each man a white carnation. At each plate was a menu printed on a handsomely decorated folder, with a recipe for a "New Year's Brew," by R. B. Howell, with design in gold and colors by Spencer Wright, presented to the League with the compliments of Paul Elder & Co.; a copy of "The Cheerful Year Book," presented by Henry Holt & Co., and a copy of "Pigs is Pigs," presented by McClure, Phillips & Co. After the excellent dinner of nine courses had been served, the chairman, Edward G. Lawrance, announced that W. G. Preston, the president of the League, who had been seriously ill, had quite recovered, and was expected back from Atlantic City in a week or two. Mr. Lawrance, in a few well-chosen words, then introduced Robert A. Watchorn, Commissioner of Emigration at Ellis Island, who spoke eloquently and optimistically of the men and women who in increasing numbers are yearly entering our ports. Mr. Watchorn dwelt on three points concerning which he claimed much misinformation had been circulated, namely, (1) immigrants do not come to this country at the rate of 1,000,000 a year, but at the rate of about half that number, as many also leave America to return to their homes in very large numbers; (2) the immigrant does not lower the standard of living, to prove which the speaker gave a number of illustrations showing that the laborer who was content in his foreign home to plod along, year after year, for a mere pittance, after he had become acclimatized in this country, and often much earlier, ranked himself with the American so far as the rate of wages demanded was concerned; and (3) the immigrants who are able to pass the standard demanded by the immigration laws are bound in time to become the main workers of this nation, which Mr. Watchorn foresees will become the nation of all nations. Mr. Watchorn's talk was applauded again and again.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the next speaker, spoke nearly two hours in a most interesting manner about his work and experiences among the Labrador fishing folk. Most of the talk was illustrated with stereopticon views of life in the snow country and with moving pictures of fishing in the deep. Dr. Grenfell's work is described in a neat pamphlet issued by the Grenfell Association, a copy of which will be sent on application to the secretary, Ernest Hamlin Abbott, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City. It has been proposed by several members of the publishing trade to assist Dr. Grenfell in his efforts to establish libraries in his hospitals and homes of refuge, by donating lots of their "hurt" books and travellers' samples. Inasmuch as Dr. Grenfell's work is largely on behalf of hurt people, he himself suggested that the books need not be whole, but that "hurt" ones will do just as well. Those publishing houses who may feel disposed to contribute such reading matter, for children as well as for grown people, may send them in care of the office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

There were two other speakers on the program, but one of them was unable to be present, and the other suggested that, inasmuch as the hands of the clock pointed towards midnight, his "talk" might be left over for another occasion.

PASSAIC COUNTY (N. J.) NEWSDEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

At its regular monthly meeting the Passaic County (N. J.) Newsdealers' Association elected the following officers for the year: William T. Suttle, Jr., president; George Voorhis, vice-president; George Robinson, secretary; Andrew Brennan, treasurer; Richard Noblett, sergeant-at-arms, and John J. Rumler, John H. O'Conner and Philip Nau-man, trustees.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE late Hamilton Aidé was a curiously versatile man. He was the author of many novels, verses and essays; he was a more or less popular composer; he turned out divers successful dramatic pieces, and he painted landscapes described as pleasing. The blood of antipathetic races was in his veins. He was the son of an English mother and an Armenian-Greek father.

H. B. MARRIOTT WATSON, whose new romance, "The Privateers," has just been brought out in this country, was born in Melbourne, Australia, where his father was a minister. At the age of nine he was taken to New Zealand, where he grew up. He was educated in England, where he took up journalism in 1887. He has served as assistant editor of Black and White and of the Pall Mall Gazette. His wife, by the way, is Rosamund Marriott Watson, who has written several volumes of very excellent verse.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Temple Bar, after an existence of nearly half a century, has suspended publication. It was started in 1860, and Thackeray and Miss Braddon were among its earliest contributors.

WILLIAM C. REICK, who has been president of the New York Herald Company for some years, withdrew from the Herald on January 12 and has acquired an interest in the New York Times Company.

JOHN LANE, beginning with the January number, will publish The Independent Review, formerly published by Fisher Unwin. An attractive list of articles and reviews has been prepared, including papers by the Abbé Dimnet on "The Crisis in France," J. A. Hobson on "The Lords of the People," C. F. G. Masterman on "Twelve Months of Parliament," Herbert Paul on "The Victorian Drawing-Room—Lady Dorothy Nevill's Memoirs," Keir Hardie on "The Moral of Huddersfield," while Earl Russell writes a reply to "The Motor Tyranny." The ideals of cultured Liberalism which have distinguished the Review will be maintained, but, as hitherto, articles of general appeal will be included, irrespective of political interest.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will bring out in February in their French Men of Letters series a volume on François Rabelais, by Arthur Tilley, Fellow and Lecturer of King's College, Cambridge, Eng.

THE sale of Henry Austin Adams's book, "The Terrible Truth About Marriage," has been stopped by the Chief of Police of Seattle, Wash., who declares he will arrest Adams for circulating indecent literature.

LUTHER BURBANK, the famous horticulturist of Santa Rosa, Cal., will stand sponsor for a work in ten volumes describing minutely, and defining from scientific standpoint, his labors in the creation of new fruits, flowers, etc.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published a new volume of sermons by the Rev. George Hodges, D.D., Dean of Cambridge, entitled "A Year of Grace," also a book entitled "Churchmanship and Labor," by Canon Scott Holland, Percy Dearmer, G. W. E. Russell, and others.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. report the printing of a sixth impression of Miss Alice Brown's latest book, "The County Road," a new edition of John Esten Cook's "My Lady Pokahontas," issued specially for the 300th anniversary to be celebrated at the Jamestown Exposition.

THE ANTHEM PUBLISHERS, Mobile, Ala., have published the words and music of "Immortals," an anthem written by T. C. De Leon and set to music by F. A. Dunster, sung at the opening of the New Orleans Reunion, U. C. V., in April, 1906. The retail price of the piece is forty cents.

ACCORDING to one of the English booksellers, the greatest success of the season has been Barrie's "Peter Pan," with Arthur Rackham's illustrations. "Peter Pan" has sold out as a two guinea book, and some of the five hundred copies are selling as high as eight guineas. The cheaper edition is being reprinted and it is also being prepared in translation for circulation in France.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish shortly a volume on "The Dangers of Municipal Ownership," by Robert P. Porter, who has condensed the latest facts and figures showing the results of the workings of Municipal Ownership, or Municipal Trading, abroad, more especially in Great Britain. His deductions are that Municipal Ownership is always a mistake and a burden; and he bases his conclusions upon long study and wide observation of actual conditions.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS announces "The Principles of German Civil Law," by Dr. Ernest J. Schuster. This work is intended to assist the study of English law from a comparative point of view; to give an insight into the latest and most perfect attempt to systematize the whole of the private laws of a country, and to give some practical help to the increasing number of practitioners who in the course of their daily work have to deal with questions of foreign and private international law.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. announce for early publication an "Index-Digest of the Interstate Commerce Acts," by the Hon. Charles S. Hamlin, a prominent member of the Boston Bar, formerly assistant secretary of the U. S. Treasury. It contains a comprehensive index of the leading words and phrases used in the Acts to regulate commerce and a comparison of other uses of the same words and phrases found in other parts of the Commerce Act and in other Acts. Each citation is accompanied with a brief digest of that part of the law in which the word or phrase is used. All the Acts digested here have been reprinted in full. The book will be found extremely useful to all who have to do with Interstate traffic.

A. S. BARNES & Co. will publish next month in their New Knowledge Series, a volume on "The Nature and Origin of Life," by Professor Felix le Dantec, member of the Faculty of the Sciences at the Sorbonne, Paris, who treats of the principles of the continuity in living and dead matter, the dangers of too hasty analysis, artificial analysis, the various conditions in which a living body may exist from a chemical point of view, artificial and real functions defined in life, natural selection, equilibrium and order, the phenomena of life compared with the phenomena of non-living matter, the cell in its movements, heredity, appearance of life, etc. A preface is being provided for this book by Professor R. K. Duncan, the editor of the series.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY are just putting to press the 15th edition of "Bob, Son of Battle," which serves to emphasize again the somewhat remarkable career of the book. Although published nearly ten years ago, it has enjoyed a steady sale. Yet, when it first appeared it was almost regarded as a failure. It took nearly a year for American readers to discover the real quality of the book. A somewhat unusual incident attended the taking of the photographs for the illustrated edition. The publishers sent A. Radclyffe Dugmore to England to get the photographs in the sheep country, but it was so foggy that he was forced to return to the United States without them. Undaunted, he returned next year with better results, and was able to find the collie whom Alfred Ollivant used for his now famous dog hero.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish shortly an educational work of considerable interest in "Sixty-five Years in the Life of a Teacher," by the president of Swarthmore College, Dr. Edward Hicks Magill, first Principal of its preparatory department, and ever since connected with it in some capacity. His was the boyhood of struggle so familiar in the biographies of men born in the former half of the nineteenth century—he knew Williston Seminary, Yale, and Brown University as a student, and the Boston Latin School and the Providence High School as a teacher, and he abounds in anecdotes of all of them. As one of the pioneers in new methods of education he has much to tell of the origin of movements of which teachers must understand the origin if they would know their value and probable scope. Portraits of the author and views of the various institutions with which he has been connected illustrate the book.

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., as already noted, has prepared for the Valentine season a number of attractive post-cards. One of these is on Manila card stock, the color of a telegram, printed in red and black, with a message from The Matrimonial Telegraph Co. Besides these Valentine Post Cards, which comprise some forty or fifty designs, at $1 the hundred, or $7.50 the thousand, Mr. Burkhardt has prepared a Valentine Promissory Note, put up ten notes in a clip; a humorous Valentine Letter, printed in facsimile of handwriting; a Valentine Prescription, a facsimile of a regular prescription blank made by Dr. Cupid; a Valentine Invoice, an original idea in imitation of a druggist's bill from a box of chocolates February 14 last year to court plaster and arnica next year; a large red heart, with a miniature broom, the handle of which is a pencil fastened thereon, with the mottoes, "In time of peace prepare for war," and "You have made a clean sweep of my heart;"; a large Yale key card, with a heart-shaped key ring attached, lettered, "This emblem, dear, is sent to thee, that to my heart you hold the key;"; "Valentine Pen Wipers," in five designs, also, several other unique novelties, samples of which will be sent on application.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY expect to bring out in March, in two volumes, "The Life and Letters of Edwin Lawrence Godkin," editor of The Nation and of the New York Evening Post for nineteen years, edited by Rollo Ogden, the present editor of The Evening Post. An important contribution to the study of psychology, shortly to be published, is Professor W. Mitchell's "Structure and Growth of the Mind." Professor Mitchell, who holds the Chair of Philosophy in the University of Adelaide, has written what might be called a universal introduction to psychology. It is not an introduction in the usual sense of an elementary survey, but rather an original investigation of the problems preceding the study of psychology proper. By a striking coincidence a book on "Jamaica" was announced by the Macmillan Company on the day when the news was received of the earthquake at Kingston. The book belongs to the same series, illustrated in color, as Snell's "North Devon," which was published a few months ago. It contains an admirable account by A. S. Forrest of the history and the chief features of interest of Jamaica, and is illustrated with twenty-four paintings by John Henderson, reproduced in color. The book is dedicated to Sir Alfred Jones, who is mentioned in the dispatches from Kingston as active in the work of rescue and reorganization.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish this month the concluding volumes—four to-eight—of the Knutsford edition of Mrs. Gaskell's works, which will contain stories never before published. They will bring out in February William Henry Hoyt's "The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence: a Study of Evidence Showing that the Alleged Early Declaration of Independence by Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, on the 20th of May, 1775, is Spurious." If Mr. Hoyt's contention is recognized, North Carolina must change a holiday, the State seal and flag, and the inscription on the monument to the "signers" of the Mecklenburg Declaration. In March they will publish "The Epic of Paradise Lost, Twelve Essays," by Marianna Woodhull, that treat Milton's masterpiece largely from the technical standpoint. It was the author's intention to prove that the epic form alone was suitable to the subject, and in support of this Milton's attempts to embody the theme in tragedy form are examined. The concluding essay finds in Milton's love of Nature the secret both of his lyrical force and his epical attitude. Owing to the illness of T. C. Brogan, who is translating George Le Quin's "Memoirs of Comte de Rambuteau," Messrs. Putnam will probably not publish this book until late in the spring or early in the summer. The volume, which is to be a fully illustrated octavo, will present the experiences of the chamberlain of Napoleon I., and is said to be a vivid picture of the character of the emperor and of the French society of his reign.

E. P. DUTTON & Co., as usual, have prepared an extensive line of cards and novelties for the Valentine season. Among their line this year is a pond lily on a pad, which when spread out shows a flower in full bloom on the leaves of which are printed cupids with appropriate sentiments. Among their comics is a shaped card showing a cat and a rabbit, with perforated eyes, behind which pupils on a movable card, swinging backward and forward, give a surprising effect to the motto, "I think, my dear, your beauty lies in just those lovely moving eyes." They have a number of attractive folders addressed, "To My Valentine," with attractive pictures and suitable sentiments or verses; shaped cards in all styles with decorations of flowers; large and small heart-shaped novelties; Cupid's Cablegrams, Cupid's Railway Guides; Addresses to My True Love, handsomely illuminated, besides attractive cards of all shapes and post-cards illuminated and with surprises in the way of folders. In their publishing department they announce "The Historical Study of the Mother Tongue, an Introduction to Philological Methods," by Henry Cecil Wyld, Baines Professor of the English Language and Philology in the University of Liverpool; "Six Lectures on Painting Delivered to the Students of the Royal Academy of Arts in London," by George Clausen, Professor of Painting in the Royal Academy; "Aims and Ideals in Art," eight lectures delivered to students of the Royal Academy by George Clausen; "The Roman Capitol in Ancient and Modern Times," a description of the citadel, the temples, the senatorial palace, the Palace of the Conservators and the Museum, by E. Rodocanachi, translated from the French by Frederick Lawton; also, a new edition of "The Thread of Gold," with a new introduction by the author, Arthur C. Benson.

A. C. McCLURG have about completed their plans for the spring campaign and their preliminary announcements are about as important as they are numerous. In March they will have ready a story of the Central Pacific Railroad, by Sara Pratt Carr (illustrated by John W. Norton), in which those gigantic promoters, Leland Stanford, Collis P. Huntington, Mark Hopkins and Charles Crocker, play a part, the plot being full of the lively action characteristic of California, in her early days; "Indian Love Letters," by Marah Ellis Ryan, author of "For the Soul of Rafael," etc. (illustrated by Ralph Fletcher Seymour,) a series of letters written by a Hopi Indian lad who was educated at an Eastern college, which give a new and more personal meaning to the red man's spiritual preferences; "Mission of California and the Old Southwest," by Jesse S. Hildrup, a souvenir for the visitor with full page illustrations of the missions from photographs; "The Story of Bawn," a characteristic Irish story by Katherine Tynan; "Hawaiian Folk Tales," by Thomas G. Thrum, whose acquaintance with the history and folk-lore of the Sandwich Islands is very comprehensive; "Sojourning, Shopping and Studying in Paris," by Miss E. Otis Williams, a useful handbook, especially for ladies who are often without the knowledge of getting the greatest good out of a sojourn in a strange city; "Cosmos, the Soul and God," by the Rev. C. L. Arnold, a profound discussion of the relations of matter, mind and soul, interesting to investigators in the field of psychical inquiry; "Grasshopper Land," by Margaret W. Morley, a text-book on the line of the author's "Bee People," etc., with illustrations drawn by Miss Morley; "Forest Friends," by Dr. John Madden, a book of especial interest at this time when the advance of civilization is so rapidly divesting the once wild places of their animal life; also, "Fingerposts to Children's Reading," by Walter Taylor Field, suggestions as to the most profitable lines of reading for children of all ages. In April they expect to bring out "Langford of the Three Bars," by Kate and Virgil D. Boyles, a lively story of the South Dakota cattle country during the sway of the "rustler," with illustrations in color by N. C. Wyeth; "A Handbook of the Philippines," by Hamilton M. Wright, who provides comprehensive information about the islands, the customs and manners of the people, the resources, climate, productions and commercial importance of our possessions in the Orient, with maps and illustrations; "Life and Correspondence of Thomson Jay Hudson," the author of "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," etc., edited by his son, Charles B. Hudson; the second part of Molmenti's Venice, treating of "Venice in the Golden Age;" also, two new volumes in the series of Literature of Libraries, on "Justus Lipsius" and Gabriel Naude.

GEO. W. OGILVIE DEFEATS THE G. & C. MERRIAM COMPANY

JUDGE COLT, of the U. S. Circuit Court, in Boston, has just decided that Webster's Imperial Dictionary is NOT an infringement, in any sense, of the "rights" (whatever they are) of G. & C. Merriam Co., and from claiming an exclusive right to the name of "Noah Webster" or "Webster" on a dictionary—in short, the court's order forbids them to claim further exclusive rights in Webster's name. In other words, we won the suit we started against them, seeking an injunction to restrain them from interfering with our business.

To those dealers who refused to be intimidated by the Merriam Co.'s threats to sue, and have continued to sell my dictionary, I tender my sincere thanks; to those others who wished to sell it, but were fearful of suits, your spirit was willing but you couldn't afford to get mixed up in my fight. But now that the ban is lifted—it's not too late—the book has seasoned in the meantime—it has gone through a severe test for quality—and WON.

GEORGE W. OGILVIE, Chicago, Ill.

Publisher of the following Genuine Websters

The whole series consists of four books: (1) Webster's Imperial Dictionary, 2175 pages, and its abridgments, which are as follows: (2) Webster's Inter-Collegiate Dictionary, 1224 pages; (3) Webster's Adequate Dictionary, 725 pages, and (4) Webster's Sterling Dictionary, 567 pages. Send for descriptive circulars and prices to the trade, or order from your jobber.

MY APPRECIATION OF THE MANNER IN WHICH THE LEGAL END OF THIS BATTLE HAS BEEN HANDLED TAKES THE FORM OF THIS PUBLIC ACKNOWLEDGEMENT: Mr. GEO. F. BEAN, 176 Federal St., Boston, Mass., my attorney, attended to it from the start, and to his devotion, perspicacity and legal ability I am largely, if not wholly, indebted for the victory; while because of his consideration and thoughtfulness throughout the trying two-and-a-half years which the case covered I was the possessor of a degree of peace of mind probably far beyond that that I could have had if represented by any other lawyer of my acquaintance. To my friends in and out of the publishing business I commend Mr. Bean.

The
by
W. A. FRASER

Author of "Saa Za'di Tales," "Thirteen Men," etc.

12mo, ornamental cloth, $1.50

This fascinating novel is the work of a famous writer of short stories. The scene of "The Lone Furrow" is a little Canadian village, and the book has much of the grace of phrase and depth of feeling of Barrie's "A Window in Thrums." The opening of the story shows the village agog with excitement. The minister has disappeared under mysterious circumstances, leaving his wife to the mercy of the gossips and the charity of the neighbors. Through the life of the many picturesque characters, her story runs "like a thread of burnt gold."

THE MALEFACTOR

E. Phillips Oppenheim's latest novel has already outsold every one of his other twelve books which have been published in this country, and it is now

One of the Best Selling Novels in the United States

We are receiving reorders from all parts of the country, for it is generally considered that "The Malefactor" is

Mr. Oppenheim's Best Novel

"Nothing that he has yet produced compares with 'The Malefactor' in point of sheer absorbing interest," says the Saint Paul Pioneer Press, and this is typical of 200 reviews.

An enthusiastic buyer writes us: "It's a thrilling, bright, splendid story; in fact, it is Mr. Oppenheim's best, and surely holds one's interest perfectly. I'm pushing 'The Malefactor.'"

Mr. Oppenheim's Other Novels

When a reader lays down "The Malefactor" he instinctively desires to read another Oppenheim story. When you reorder "The Malefactor," send for a supply of Mr. Oppenheim's other works, all of which are now published by us; several of them having recently been reissued in new illustrated editions:

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of "Pillar of Light" and "The Wings of the Morning."

As a writer of romantic fiction, Louis Tracy has few equals either in this country or abroad. The plot is an ingenious one, and there are many strong situations.

PRISONERS OF FORTUNE

A Tale of the Massachusetts Bay Colony

By RUEL PERLEY SMITH

With colored frontispiece by Frank T. Merrill. $1.50

As did Stevenson in his classic "Treasure Island," the author has exactly caught the spirit of the times in this record of desperate encounter in search of pirate gold, full of the atmosphere of the bold days at the beginning of the eighteenth century.

A straight tale of adventure, sweetened and lightened by the tenderest and truest of romances—the love story of Philip Campbell, the hardy Colonist, and sweet Mary Vane, the adopted daughter of the pirate "Black Dan" Baldrick—it is certain to receive a royal welcome from those who like a real fighting romance of the days when men loved as they fought, with all their might.

"Prisoners Of Fortune" Is Bound To Be A Big Novel

READY AT ONCE

THE ROME EXPRESS

By MAJOR ARTHUR GRIFFITHS

Author of "The Passenger from Calais." Frontispiece in Colors. $1.25

A mysterious murder on a flying express train, a wily Italian, a charming woman and a chivalrous Englishman are the principal characters in a clever detective story, free from the tiresome descriptions and absurd deductions which mar so many stories of mystery.

THE MORNING-GLORY CLUB

By GEORGE A. KYLE

With Frontispiece in Colors. $1.25

Like Conrad's ever popular "The Second Mrs. Jim," the story of the doings of "The Morning-Glory Club," organized to "elevate society," pictures the humor of village life.

Good-natured Mrs. Stout, light of heart tho' heavy in frame, is the village philosopher. Unread but full of practical insight, she saves the club from disruption by her shrewdness and ready wit. Readers who enjoy wholesome fun will find many a hearty laugh between its covers.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE PEABODY COAL COMPANY, 125 Monroe Street, Chicago, has published an important work entitled "The Peabody Atlas—Shipping Mines and Coal Railroads, accompanied by Chemical, Geological and Engineering Data," by A. Bement. The volume contains lists of the operators of coal mines, the location of coal mining operations, with list of coal railroads and mines located thereon, and full data concerning coal mined in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Western Kentucky, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri, with 28 maps. The work also gives coal analyses of the various States, geological and chemical data, with numerous engravings describing and illustrating the most improved and satisfactory types of furnaces for smokeless combustion of bituminous coal.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. are bringing out new and cheaper editions of Ellen Glasgow's "The Deliverance" and "The Wheel of Life," of "The Missourian," by Eugene P. Lyle, Jr., and of "The Indifference of Juliet," by Grace S. Richmond. A very interesting new book will be "Under the Sun," by Percival Landor, author of "The Opening of Tibet," a close friend of Colonel Younghusband's, whom he accompanied on his famous expedition to Lhasa. His new book is made up of chapters written during his wanderings through India in the last five years, and his descriptions of Delhi, Bombay, Lahore and Calcutta will be profusely illustrated. A special chapter will deal with the great historic mutiny of 1857 and offer some hitherto unwritten information.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just ready Ruel Perley Smith's new novel, "Prisoners of Fortune," already fully described by us. This will be followed by a novel by Major Arthur Griffiths, entitled "The Rome Express," "The Morning-Glory Club," by George A. Kyle, the story of a village woman's club; "Mystery Island," by Harry Hurst, a clever account of the romance of two castaways in the Florida Everglades; "Haunters of the Silences," a collection of new animal stories by Charles G. D. Roberts; "An Automobilist Abroad," by Francis Miltoun, a useful book for spring tourists who propose to travel in England and on the Continent; also, a volume on the Italian lakes, their environs and their artistic and romantic associations, by W. D. McCrackan, the well-known traveller and writer, illustrated from photographs.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will bring out on the 5th inst. a volume by Professor William I. Thomas, entitled "Sex and Society." Magazine articles by this author published in this country and Europe on various subjects relating to sociology and anthropology have attracted wide attention. Those of recent note have been entitled "The Adventitious Character of Woman" and "The Mind of Woman and the Lower Races," published in the American Journal of Sociology. The author's new volume approaches the question of woman and her position in society from a new standpoint. It recognizes her sex as a fundamental factor in the origin and development of social institutions and occupational activities, and that a number of social forms and forces are of sexual origin. After a preliminary paper in which the organic differences of the two sexes are analyzed, there follows a series of studies on the relation of sex to social control, the psychology of the maternal system of tribal organization, sex as a factor in the differentiation of occupations in early society, and the relation of woman to early industry and invention, the relation of sex to the origin of morality, the origin of exogamy, and the origin and psychology of modesty and clothing.

The lady turned out a smuggler, and Jane was stranded and took a servant's place. An old suitor she had refused sought her out, was again refused, but settled money on her and helped her to happiness with the brother of her American mistress. Compares English and American conditions quite fairly.

Mr. Prentice's work is a protest against the growing tendency toward centralization and away from local government. Federal control over carriers and corporations he believes a departure from the fundamental division of power between national and state government which is basic in our republic. The remedies for some evils which now exist, such as child labor, Mr. Prentice believes lie in throwing greater responsibility on state and local governments, and not on the federal government. Numerous cases at law are cited and indexed.

THE NEW COPYRIGHT MEASURE.

THE new copyright measure goes before the House and Senate in separate bills, on the same general lines but differing in specific provisions. The measure is broad and effective, although two most serious defects should call for modification before passage, and with these exceptions it seems likely to obtain the general support of the friends of copyright. Both committees are entitled to the highest praise for the carefulness, comprehensiveness and promptitude of their work.

The House bill secures the exclusive right "to print, reprint, publish, copy and vend" (these last words being transferred from the existing law as fully adjudicated); also to translate, dramatize or convert, rearrange or adapt; also of oral delivery of an address, presentation of a drama and public performance for profit of a musical composition. The Senate bill adds: "to make any rearrangement or resetting of it or of the melody of it in any system of notation or any form of record in which the thought of an author may be recorded and from which it may be read or reproduced." The Senate bill thus gives the desired full protection to the musical composer, while the House bill leaves the vexed question of whether sound-records are a copy of a musical composition to be determined by the Supreme Court in the case now pending. Mr. De Koven's attack through the daily press is evidently founded on a misapprehension.

The subjects of copyright are classified as: (a), books; (b), periodicals; (c), musical compositions; (d), maps; (e), works of art, models or designs; (f), reproductions of a work of art; (g), drawings, etc., scientific or technical; (h), photographs; (i), prints and pictorial illustrations; but it is provided that mistakes in classification shall not invalidate copyright. Labels are happily excluded from the act as not properly subjects of copyright.

International copyright is extended to a foreign author or proprietor residing within the United States at first publication of his work, or first or contemporaneously publishing in this country, as well as to those protected by reciprocity arrangements.

Copyright is secured by publication in the United States with notice of copyright affixed to each copy published or offered for sale in the United States by authority of the copyright proprietor, but accidental omission from particular copies shall not invalidate the copyright. Registration is made a prerequisite to the maintenance of a suit for infringement. The House bill provides that if deposit copies are not furnished after due notice the copyright shall be forfeited; while the Senate bill has the less dangerous wording that if the copies are not promptly deposited the proprietor shall be liable to a fine of $100. The copyright notice must include the word "Copyright" or abbreviation "Copr." or letter "C" in a circle with the name of the copyright claimant, and, except on works of art, the date of copyright. Copyright notice must be placed on the original as well as on copies in the case of works of art.

The term of copyright is in general for life and 30 years, with the exception of a 28 years term for photographs and 30 years for posthumous works. It is provided, however, that this term, which will be fairly satisfactory to authors, must be secured beyond the twenty-eighth year by notice from the copyright proprietor during that year that the full term is desired—this being an ingenious device to cover the admitted fact that most objects of copyright die a natural death within that shorter period. The chief defect in the bill—and this is fundamental—is that this term as stated is not applicable to joint or composite, anonymous or pseudonymous works or periodicals, and some further provision seems absolutely necessary, perhaps to the effect that copyright in all cases shall endure for a stated period, whether that be 50 or 30 or 28 years. Provision is made for extension of existing copyrights on the registration by the author if living or by the widow or widower or the surviving children of desire for prolongation.

The manufacturing clause is made more drastic by extension to press-work and binding, and by the obnoxious affidavit clause, abominated by the authors as an unnecessary restriction, though accepted in a spirit of compromise by the publishers. The most serious effect of this extension will be the further jeopardizing of our international copyright relations, already hazarded by the protest originating in the German Reichstag. This second serious difficulty can be remedied by an exception "in the case of the original text of a work in a language other than English," which it is understood would not be unacceptable to the labor interests responsible for the manufacturing clause. Interim copyright is provided for two years in the case of foreign and thirty days in the case of English works—but this foreign period would be rendered unnecessary in case the suggested modification were adopted.

It is provided that importation must be by consent of the copyright proprietor with certain exceptions, the chief of which are that single copies of an authorized foreign edition may be imported, for use and not for sale, by an incorporated educational or like institution or public or official library, one copy in any one invoice, or when forming part of a collection bought en bloc or in the library or personal baggage of a returning traveller.

The remedies provided against infringement seem to be comprehensive and adequate, including the protection afforded by the existing law to dramatic authors against "fly-by-night" infringers. There are minor differences in the details of the two bills which must be studied in this respect from the text.

Provision is made for the administration of the Copyright Office with a Register at a salary of $4000 and an Assistant Register at a salary of $3000, with careful detail as to powers and methods.

It will be seen that the measure is a great stride forward (though with one or two steps backward) in placing this country in line with other nations as to the protection of intellectual property, and it is to be expected that with such modifications as may be found necessary it will receive, preferably in the Senate form, the effective support of all those interested in copyright and be passed by Congress during the present session.

THE Postal Commission has presented to Congress an able report on second class matter which goes to the root of post office reorganization, in emphasizing the importance of putting its enormous business on a business basis. The report recommends that the whole subject of postal administration be referred to a further commission for more full consideration. The pressure of copyright measures unfortunately prevents adequate editorial discussion of the features of this plan at present. The commission makes certain immediate provisional recommendations, and reports a bill which would modify the present postal law in many particulars. It is to be regretted that such general modifications should not be deferred until the final consideration of the matter by the commission proposed.

IN respect to second class rates, the commission proposes modifications which will suit no one, and which will be equally injurious to daily, weekly and monthly, in fact to all, periodicals which include advertising. The provision is that no issue shall be entitled to second class rates of which 50 per cent. or more is made up of advertising. This cuts the feet off tall men in order that all sorts may go through the same doorway, and it will be opposed almost unanimously by the press. The periodical publishers are considering a suggested substitute, somewhat on the lines already indicated in these columns, based on the fact that transportation cost is a cost per pound while delivery cost is a cost per piece. It is believed that the actual cost to the Government of second class matter is less than two cents per pound. It is therefore proposed to continue the one cent per pound rate for the transportation in bulk of periodicals properly "routed," with the addition of one-quarter cent for those not so "routed," with a specific charge, say of one-eighth cent per piece, on each copy whose address calls for local delivery. This is the most common-sense proposition yet put forward, and it is to be hoped that the postal committees will adopt it.

ATTENTION is called to the statement that the decision of Judge Colt in the Webster case cannot be appealed so far as the United States Supreme Court, but only to the Circuit Court of Appeals; on the other hand, it is stated by the opposing counsel that, though not technically "appealable," the decision in the case by the Circuit Court is subject to review in the Supreme Court on certiorari. Judge Colt's decision is, we believe, likely to stand, and its effect, as previously pointed out, is to permit the trade to sell freely dictionaries using the name "Webster," whether published by the Merriam Company or by G. W. Ogilvie or by Laird & Lee or otherwise, so long as the rival editions do not purport to be the Merriams' publications. The course of the Merriam Company in seeking injunctions against individual dealers has not been upheld by the legal outcome, as was indicated as a probability in these columns so long ago as May 6, 1905.

THE TWO COPYRIGHT BILLS.

THE copyright measure was introduced into the House on January 29th as a substitute for H. R. Bill 19853, by Mr. Currier, chairman of the house committee on patents, with a report from the committee; and into the Senate on the same day by Senator Kirtledge as Senate Bill 8190. The Senate Bill is on the same lines, but with some features of difference, which will be scheduled later. The following is the text of the House Bill:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the copyright secured by this Act shall include the exclusive right:

(a) To print, reprint, publish, copy and vend the copyrighted work;

(b) To translate the copyrighted work into other languages or dialects or make any other version thereof, to dramatize it if it be a nondramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other nondramatic work if it be a drama, to rearrange or adapt it if it be a musical work, to complete, execute and finish it if it be a model or design for a work of art, to vary or adapt it if it be a work of art;

(c) To deliver or authorize the delivery of the copyrighted work in public for profit if it be a lecture, sermon, address or similar production;

(d) To perform or represent the copyrighted work publicly if it be a drama;

(e) To perform the copyrighted work publicly for profit if it be a musical composition on which such right of public performance for profit has been reserved as provided in section fifteen of this Act.

SEC. 2. That nothing in this Act shall be construed to annul or limit the right of the author or proprietor of an unpublished work, at common law or in equity, to prevent the copying, publication, or use of such unpublished work without his consent and to obtain damages therefor.

SEC. 3. That the copyright provided by this Act shall protect all the copyrightable component parts of the work copyrighted, and all matter therein in which copyright is already subsisting, but without extending the duration or scope of such copyright.

SEC. 4. That the works for which copyright may be secured under this Act shall include all the literary, artistic, musical, and dramatic works of an author.

SEC. 5. That the application for registration shall specify to which of the following classes the work in which copyright is claimed belongs:

(a) Books, including composite and cyclopaedic works, directories, gazetteers, and other compilations, and new matter contained in new editions; but not including works specified in other subsections hereunder;

(b) Periodicals, including newspapers;

(c) Lectures, sermons, addresses;

(d) Dramatic compositions;

(e) Musical compositions;

(f) Maps;

(g) Works of art; models or designs for works of art;

(h) Reproductions of a work of art;

(i) Drawings of plastic works of a scientific or technical character;

(j) Photographs;

(k) Prints and pictorial illustrations;

Provided, nevertheless, That the above specifications shall not be held to limit the subject-matter of copyright as defined in section four of this Act, nor shall any error in classification invalidate or impair the copyright protection secured under this Act.

SEC. 6. That compilations or abridgments, adaptations, rearrangements, dramatizations, translations or other versions of works in the public domain, or of copyrighted works when produced with the consent of the proprietor of the copyright in such works, or works republished with new matter, shall be regarded as new works subject to copyright under the provisions of this Act, but no such copyright shall affect the force or validity of any subsisting copyright upon the matter employed or any part thereof or be construed to imply an exclusive right to such use of the original works or to secure or extend copyright in such original works.

SEC. 7. That the publication or republication by the Government, either separately or in a public document, of any material in which copyright is subsisting shall not be taken to cause any abridgment or annulment of the copyright or to authorize any use or appropriation of such copyright material without the consent of the copyright proprietor.

SEC. 8. That no copyright shall subsist in the original text of a work by any author not a citizen of the United States first published without the limits of the United States prior to July first, eighteen hundred and ninety-one; or in the original text of any work which has fallen into the public domain.

SEC. 9. That the author or proprietor of any work made the subject of copyright by this Act, or his executors, administrators, or assigns, shall have copyright for such work under the conditions and for the terms specified in this Act: Provided, however, That the copyright secured by this Act shall extend to the work of an author or proprietor who is a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation, only:

(a) When such foreign author or proprietor shall reside within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work, or shall first or contemporaneously with its first publication in a foreign country publish his work within the limits of the United States; or

(b) When the foreign state or nation of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law, to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act; or when such foreign state or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may at its pleasure become a party thereto.

The existence of the reciprocal conditions aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States, by proclamation made from time to time, as the purpose of this Act may require.

SEC. 10. That any person entitled thereto by this Act may secure copyright for his work by publication thereof in the United States with the notice of copyright required by this Act; and such notice shall be affixed to each copy thereof published or offered for sale in the United States by authority of the copyright proprietor, except in the case of books seeking ad interim protection under section sixteen of this Act. In the case of a work of art or a plastic work or drawing, such notice shall be affixed to the original also before publication thereof within the United States.

SEC. 11. That such person may obtain registration of his claim to copyright by complying with the provisions of this Act, and upon such compliance the Register of Copyrights shall issue to him the certificate provided for in section forty-eight of this Act.

Registration may also be had of the works of an author of which copies are not reproduced for sale, by the deposit with claim of copyright, of the title and one complete copy of such work, if it be a lecture or similar production or a dramatic or musical composition; of a photographic print, if the work be a photograph; or of a photograph or other identifying reproduction thereof, if it be a work of art, or a plastic work or drawing; the notice of copyright in these latter cases being affixed to the original before publication as required by section ten of this Act. But the privilege of registration secured hereunder shall not exempt the copyright proprietor from the deposits of copies under section twelve of this Act where the work is later reproduced in copies for sale.

SEC. 12. That after copyright has been secured by publication of the work in the United States with the notice of copyright as provided in section ten of this Act, there shall be deposited in the Copyright Office or in the mail addressed to the Register of Copyrights, Washington, District of Columbia, two complete copies of the best edition thereof then published, which copies, if the work be a book or periodical, shall have been produced in accordance with the manufacturing provisions specified in section fourteen of this Act; or if such work be a contribution to a periodical, for which contribution special registration is requested, one copy of the issue or issues containing such contribution; or if the work is not reproduced in copies for sale, there shall be deposited the copy, print, photograph or other identifying reproduction provided by section eleven of this Act, such copies or copy, print, photograph or other reproduction to be accompanied in each case by a claim of copyright. No action or proceeding shall be maintained for infringement of copyright in any work until the provisions of this section with respect to the deposit of copies of such work shall have been complied with.

Should the copies called for by this section not be promptly deposited, as herein provided, the Register of Copyrights may at any time after the publication of the work, upon specific written demand, require the proprietor of the copyright to deposit them, and after the said demand shall have been made, in default of the deposit of copies of the work within one month from any part of the United States except an outlying territorial possession of the United States, or within three months from any outlying territorial possession of the United States or from any foreign country, the proprietor of the copyright shall forfeit said copyright.

SEC. 13. That the postmaster to whom are delivered the articles deposited as provided in section twelve of this Act shall, if requested, give a receipt therefor, and shall mail them to their destination without cost to the copyright claimant.

SEC. 14. That of a printed book or periodical the text of the copies deposited under section twelve of this Act shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, either by hand or by the aid of any kind of typesetting machine, or from plates made within the limits of the United States from type set therein, or if the text be produced by lithographic process, then by a process wholly performed within the limits of the United States, and the printing and binding of said book shall be performed within the limits of the United States; which requirements shall tend also to the illustrations produced by lithographic process within a printed book consisting of text and illustrations, and also to separate lithographs, except where in either case the subjects represented are located in a foreign country; but they shall not apply to works in raised characters for the use of the blind, and they shall be subject to the provisions of section sixteen of this Act with reference to books published abroad seeking ad interim protection under this Act.

In the case of the book the copies so deposited shall be accompanied by an affidavit, under the official seal of any officer authorized to administer oaths within the United States, duly made by the person claiming copyright or by his duly authorized agent or representative residing in the United States or by the printer who has printed the book, setting forth that the copies deposited have been printed from type set within the limits of the United States or from plates made within the limits of the United States from type set therein, or, if the text be produced by lithographic process, that such process was wholly performed within the limits of the United States, and that the printing and binding of the said book have also been performed within the limits of the United States. Such affidavit shall state also the place where and the establishment or establishments in which such type was set or plates were made or lithographic process or printing and binding were performed and the date of the completion of the printing of the book or the date of publication.

Any person who for the purpose of obtaining registration of a claim to copyright shall knowingly and willfully make a false affidavit as to his having complied with the above conditions shall be deemed guilty of a misde-

SEC. 15. Where the copyright proprietor has sought to comply with the provisions of sections ten and fifteen of this Act with respect to notice, the omission by accident or mistake of the prescribed notice from a particular copy or copies shall prevent the recovery of damages against an innocent infringer misled thereby, but shall not invalidate the copyright or prevent recovery for infringement against any person who after actual notice of the copyright begins an undertaking to infringe it, but in a suit for infringement against such infringer, no permanent injunction shall be had unless the copyright proprietor shall reimburse to the innocent infringer his reasonable outlay innocently incurred.

SEC. 16. That in the case of a book published in a foreign country before publication in this country the deposit in the Copyright Office not later than thirty days after its publication abroad of one complete copy of the foreign edition with a request for the reservation of the copyright, and a statement of the name and nationality of the author and of the copyright proprietor, and of the date of publication of the said book shall secure to the author or proprietor an ad interim copyright. Provided, That within the year next preceding the expiration of twenty-eight years from the first publication of such work the copyright proprietor shall record in the Copyright Office a notice that he desires the full term provided herein, and in default of such notice the copyright protection in such work shall determine at the expiration of twenty-eight years from first publication; but in the case of renewals and extensions of existing copyrights sought under the provisions of section nineteen of this Act, such notice may be given within the year next preceding the expiration of the existing term.

In all of the above cases the term shall extend to the end of the calendar year of expiration.

The copyright in a work published anonymously or under an assumed name shall subsist for the same period as if the work had been produced bearing the author's true name.

[SEC. 21.] That any person who willfully and for profit shall infringe any copyright secured by this Act, or who shall knowingly and willfully aid or abet such infringement, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not exceeding one year or by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court.

[SEC. 28.] That the Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster-General are hereby empowered to make necessary and proper rules and regulations requiring notice to be given to the Treasury Department or Post-Office Department as the case may be, by copyright proprietors or injured parties of the actual or contemplated importation of articles prohibited importation by this Act, and which infringe the rights of such copyright proprietors or injured parties.

[SEC. 57.] That all laws or parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed, but nothing in this Act shall affect causes of action for infringement of copyright heretofore committed now pending in courts of the United States, or which may hereafter be instituted; but such causes shall be prosecuted in the manner heretofore provided by law.

[SEC. 58.] That this Act shall go into effect on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and seven.

UNFAIR COMPETITION IN THE PRODUCTION OF BOOKS.

IN a decision handed down on January 25, by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of New York, a principle has been established which will be of lasting importance in the publishing world. E. P. Dutton & Company, through their attorneys, Morgan & Mitchell and A. L. Marvin, asked Justice O'Gorman to restrain Cupples & Leon from publishing or offering for sale the Eureka Art Series, as being a very close imitation of their Gem or Dainty Series. Justice O'Gorman declined to grant the injunction, whereupon an appeal was taken and the injunction granted by the higher court.

The decision of the Appellate Court was a unanimous one, and opinions were written by Justice Ingraham and by Justice Scott.

About the year 1900, E. P. Dutton & Company formed the project of publishing a set of books especially adapted for sale during the Christmas holiday season, and in the year 1901 did publish and place upon the market a number of such books. The books were small and in each was printed a single, (or in some cases more than one,) short poem or hymn, which had attained general fame and popularity in the public estimation. The books were profusely illustrated with illuminated capitals and type adapted from that used in ancient missals, as well as by pictures in colors, some being originally prepared specially for E. P. Dutton & Company, and some being copies of well known paintings. Each copy was bound in an attractive and highly decorated leatherette cover, one half white and one half in color, with illustrated sides and with a large picture in color appropriate to the sentiment conveyed by the particular hymn or poem contained in the book. The books were possessed of considerable artistic merit, and the workmanship, as to type, coloring, illustrating and binding, was of a high order. Much success attended the publication of these books so that E. P. Dutton & Company in succeeding years not only reprinted the books first published, but added many books in the same general style to the series, and had large sales and reaped substantial profit.

In the year 1906 Cupples & Leon published and placed upon the market a series of books called the Eureka Art Series, against which the injunction has now been granted. It appears from the affidavit of an expert that Cupples & Leon by some photographic process copied the printing, illustrations, borders and pictures contained in E. P. Dutton & Company's books, and bound them in a similar binding, upon which has been copied the illustrations and lettering found upon the Dutton books; in short, it reproduced and published the books as faithfully and exactly as could be done by photography. The colors used were reproduced and imitated. The result has been that these books were cheap and inartistic copies, and were offered for sale at a much lower price. Placed side by side, no one could fail to appreciate the difference between the publications, and yet could not fail to be struck by the careful attempt to produce an imitation. Seen apart from each other, so that they could not be compared, nothing would be easier than for an unsuspecting buyer to be deceived by the resemblance and to purchase one of Cupples & Leon's books, believing that he was purchasing E. P. Dutton & Company's books.

The opinion handed down by Justice Scott was as follows:

"The injury likely to be done E. P. Dutton & Company is two-fold, first, it is threatened with a loss of sales and consequent profit, and, secondly, it is threatened with a loss of reputation as a producer of fine and artistic books. As has been said, E. P. Dutton & Company claim no protection from the copyright laws, and, indeed, few, if any, of the poems and hymns printed in the series could have been copyrighted. It does not claim that the idea of publishing a single hymn or poem in a separate volume, with illustrations, is original with it, nor does it claim originality for the idea of a decorated border for each page, the half white binding with decorations and pictures, or the combination in one book of a number of short songs or poems relating to one general subject. It does claim, however, and its contention is not disputed, that the particular designs of the covers of its books, the particular borders to the pages and the particular illustrations were original with it. It therefore insists that each book, as a whole, distinct from its various parts, to wit: a combination of binding, of type, of illuminated capitals, of illustrations, of borders, is something which belongs solely and exclusively to E. P. Dutton & Company and it has a distinct property right therein.

"E. P. Dutton & Company cannot and does not question Cupples & Leon's right to publish any one or all of the same hymns and poems; to publish them in half white binding with decorated and pictured bindings; to adopt any form of type it pleases; to illustrate the books and to decorate the borders of its pages, but it is contended, with reason, we think, that it is violative of the rule of fair trading and fair competition as established and enforced by law, to exhibit and offer for sale such identical copies (save in artistic merit and workmanship) of the books which E. P. Dutton & Company had published, and for which it had created a profitable demand. The obvious purpose of publishing such copies was to trade upon the favorable reputation which E. P. Dutton & Company had established for its books; to deceive many purchasers into the belief that they were purchasing E. P. Dutton & Company's books and to damage E. P. Dutton & Company by the unfair use of its ingenuity in devising the general make-up of its books and of its success in placing the books upon the market. In such a case, it was unnecessary for the E. P. Dutton & Company to prove de hors the books themselves, that Cupples & Leon were inspired by a fraudulent intent. Nor in so flagrant a case as the present is it necessary to prove that any person was actually deceived by the imitation. It is apparent that there was every probability of such deception, and that is precisely what the law seeks to prevent. Upon the general right of E. P. Dutton & Company to protective relief, we cannot see any reason why the same should not be applied to a book that has been applied to a game, or to cigars, or to anything else which is distinguished by a label, or by the distinctive form or style of the package. The decisive fact is, that Cupples & Leon are unfairly and fraudulently attempting to trade upon the reputation which E. P. Dutton & Company has built up for its books. The right to injunctive relief in such a case is too firmly established to require the citation of authorities. The order appealed from should be reversed."

Judge Ingraham's opinion concurs in every respect with that rendered by Judge Scott.

THE JOINT POSTAL COMMISSION REPORTS.

THE report of the Joint Postal Commission authorized at the last session of Congress to investigate and report to that body on the operation and effect of the existing law in regard to the second-class mail matter, and what changes, if any, are advisable, was made public on January 27. The commission makes a number of sweeping recommendations looking to a reform in the postal service, and has drafted a measure embodying such changes as it favors. Among the most important additions to existing law in this measure are the following:

ADVERTISING SUPPLEMENTS AND SAMPLES.

A newspaper or other periodical may be in part composed of advertisements which are permanently inserted in or attached to the same, but such advertisements shall not constitute more than fifty per centum of the superficial area of any issue of the publication; nor shall any advertisement be printed on card, cloth, or any substance other than paper, nor upon paper of greater weight than the text of such publication.

An issue of a newspaper or other periodical may be composed of parts or sections, but all such parts or sections shall be made of the same size, form and weight of paper, and shall, when taken together, form one complete and identifiable whole. All provisions of law applicable to a newspaper or periodical shall apply equally to each and every section thereof.

With a regular issue of a newspaper or other periodical a supplement may be inclosed or folded.

Supplements shall not be printed on any other substance than paper, nor, except in the case of maps and plans illustrative of the text, shall be of different form from the main body of the publication. No supplement shall be composed of or contain advertisements, but the same shall be confined to matter germane to the regular issue and supplied in order to complete matter left incomplete in the main body of the publication.

With each issue of a newspaper or other periodical the publisher may mail at the second-class rate of postage samples of such issue, but "not to exceed 10 per cent. of the total number of the copies of each issue mailed by him to actual subscribers as the same appears by a sworn statement of such issue" required to be submitted to the postmaster at the office of mailing.

FICTION RULED OUT.

The commission holds with regard to fiction matter that the classification which puts a complete novel in one class and a novel published serially in another class is false.

A POSTAL APPEALS COMMISSION.

A Postal Appeals Commission in the Post-office Department is provided for. It is to consist of three members, one of whom shall be a person who has had actual experience in the publishing business, and one a member of ten years' standing at the bar of the highest court of some State or territory or the District of Columbia. The commission is to enter upon its duties on July 1.

The proprietor or publisher of any periodical publication which the Postmaster-General has refused to admit to the second class may appeal to the commission, and it shall determine such appeal with respect as well to matters of fact as matters of law. The Postmaster-General may require an opinion of the commission regarding questions of law respecting the classification of mail matter.

If in the judgment of the Postmaster-General the class privilege of any publication should be suspended, revoked or annulled, he must submit the case by petition or by information to the commission.

Its findings on any appeal from a refusal to admit second class publications or for the removal from the second class or the suspension, annulment or revocation of its second class privilege shall be final and conclusive.

The construction or application of any law or statute relating to classification of mail matter made by the commission shall be controlling upon the post office and all its employees, unless overruled by some competent court of the United States.

APPLICATION FOR SECOND-CLASS MAIL PRIVILEGES AND WHAT CONSTITUTES A NEWSPAPER.

Proprietors and publishers of newspapers or periodicals may apply to have the same entered as second-class matter, such application to be verified by the oath of the applicant and accompanied by a copy of the newspaper or periodical, as well as a fee of $5. Pending final action upon the application the Postmaster-General is authorized to issue a temporary permit for the transmission of such publication at second-class rates.

With regard to newspapers the commission maintains that the prime defect in the statute defining what constitutes a newspaper is that the purpose described is so broad as to include everything and exclude nothing. "With the exception of a few instances," it says, "where the publication has been excluded because the information was deemed not to be public, no periodical has ever been classified by the application of tests of this kind. Any attempt to apply them generally would simply end in a press censorship."

PREMIUMS OR PRIZES.

The requirement is made that where an article is offered for sale in combination with the subscription for a newspaper or periodical admitted to the second class the price of such article shall be clearly stated in such publication, together with the price of the publication.

A NEW WEIGHING RECOMMENDED.

The commission urgently recommends a new weighing, similar to that in progress, but extended to embrace for the six months beginning on July 1, 1907, as follows: A weighing of all mail matter transported throughout the entire United States, class by class; a counting of all pieces of mail matter, class by class; a weighing and counting combined of the individual pieces of third, fourth and second class matter, according to its natural subdivision, in such manner as to show not merely the average weight of a piece of such matter, but the average weight of the individual pieces according to the classification in respect of character and method of handling; the ascertainment of the average haul of all classes of matter under each subdivision of these classes, and the ascertainment of the average load of railway post office cars, as well as the average load of storage cars.

A GENERAL INQUIRY RECOMMENDED.

Continuing, the report says:

This commission is in accord with the views of the Postmaster-General that the whole business system of the postal service should be examined and overhauled by a set of expert accountants and statisticians to be secured from the ranks of those professions outside the department.

It is believed that this examination can best be made through the agency of Congress. The commission realizes that this is a task of great magnitude, but it must not be forgotten that great interests are at stake. It involves, first of all, the expenditure every year of $175,000,000 of the people's money. It will shortly involve even more than that, for at the rate at which the postal service is growing it will not be many years before the annual expenditure is $250,000,000, or even $300,000,000. The object of this inquiry is not a temporary or provisional one. It is an attempt to get that gigantic enterprise known as the postal service organized once for all upon a sound economic and administrative basis. It involves even more than that. It involves the way in which the burden of that tremendous service is to be adjusted between the various classes and elements of the immense public which makes use of it.

We recommend the scheme of progressive reduction of compensation for mail carried in excess of five thousand pounds per day which is embodied in the accompanying bill. The reduction begins with a weight in excess of five thousand pounds. It leaves untouched the present rate of $171 for the daily average weight of five thousand pounds for the reason that we do not believe that density of that degree only permits sufficient economies in the methods of transportation to justify a lowered compensation. Where the daily weight, however, is in excess of five thousand pounds, we think that the economies above mentioned are now possible, and can be increasingly utilized. The scheme of reduction which we recommend is therefore progressive, beginning with a 5 per cent. reduction between 5000 pounds and 48,000 pounds, and increasing to 10 per cent. between 48,000 and 80,000 pounds, and thereafter at the reduced rate of $18 a ton a mile per annum carried instead of the present rate of $21.37. In our judgment 80,000 pounds may be safely taken as the point where the returns from the industry become practically constant. In other words, increase in the mail handled simply means duplication of traffic, and the next 80,000 pounds cannot be carried any more cheaply than the first 80,000 pounds. It is estimated by the officials of the railway mail service that the total decrease in compensation effected by the reduction above recommended will be, for the fiscal year 1908, approximately $3,000,000.

DEFECTS IN PRESENT SYSTEM.

The commission points out that there are four cardinal defects in the present system of charges for second class matter, as follows:

The difference between the second class rate and the next higher rate, the third class rate, is too great. In other words, the second class rate is relatively too low.

Wholly dissimilar services are performed for the same rate.

Substantially similar services are charged different rates.

The second class rate is probably too low, absolutely speaking.

Concerning the first defect the commission says:

The mere fact that the next higher rate, that for printed matter, is 800 per cent. greater than the periodical rate, creates an almost irresistible temptation to give all printed matter the periodical form. Immense quantities of printed matter are put up in periodical form, not because that form is either essential or proper to it, but for the bald purpose of accomplishing its distribution at the cent-a-pound rate.

It is pointed out that this abnormal disproportion does not exist outside of the United States and Canada. The report then discusses the other defects.

As a remedy for the disparity between the receipts and the cost in connection with the transportation of mail, the commission suggests the discontinuance of the practice of charging on a losing basis the same rate for wholly dissimilar services; in other words, it would classify the rates according to the service. It is suggested that the increment of postage for the increment of weight above the first four ounces should be one-half cent for each additional four ounces.

While admitting that its recommendations do not afford a complete and final solution of the problem, the commission is of the opinion that the changes recommended will accomplish everything that has been claimed for them; that they are exceedingly conservative, and may be put into operation without disturbing to any considerable degree the important interests concerned.

PHELPS PUBLISHING CO.'S PLANT IN SPRINGFIELD DESTROYED BY FIRE.

THE entire plant of the Phelps Publishing Company, comprising four buildings and covering nearly an acre of ground facing West Worthington Street, in Springfield, Mass., was burned on January 28, causing a loss estimated at nearly $1,000,000. In addition to this structure, which was four stories in height, the plant included another four-story building, one five stories in height, another of two and a half stories, all connected by passageways. All the buildings were of brick. The fire broke out before the establishment had started up for the day, and only the watchman was on the premises at the time.

The firm publishes the following magazines: Good Housekeeping, American Agriculturist, Judd Farmer, New England Homestead, and Farm and Home. Arrangements have been made for the publication of these journals in New York and other cities until the plant can be rebuilt.

In the building was a large amount of valuable machinery, including expensive color presses. Herbert Myrick, president of the company, states that the total loss on buildings, machinery and paper stock would be very nearly $1,000,000, but that it was practically covered by insurance. About 450 persons are thrown out of employment by the destruction of the plant, which was one of the best of its kind in New England.

THE "SALE OR RETURN" SYSTEM IN ENGLAND.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co., according to the following circular, have adopted in a modified form the "sale or return system," which it is claimed has contributed so much to the success of the German booktrade:

39 PATERNOSTER ROW, LONDON, E. C.,
January, 1907.

WE propose, in connection with the new books offered on subscription, to allow, if desired, the return of not more than one-third of each book, then subscribed for, by the end of the second month after the month of subscribing.

Returns would have to reach us in good saleable condition, carriage free, and within the stated time. These terms will be applicable to the first order only; subsequent orders will be subject to the usual terms.

We trust this arrangement for diminishing your risk in ordering our new publications will meet with your approval, and will enable you to stock them more largely for the future.

We beg to remain yours very faithfully,
LONGMANS, GREEN & Co.

George Routledge & Sons, Ltd., according to the London Publishers' Circular, on January 10 made a similar announcement with regard to the supply to the booksellers, "on sale or return," of "subscription copies" of their new publications. "We understand," says the Circular, "that they were on the point of doing this—which they regard as an important contribution to a settlement of the book war—when Messrs. Longmans' announcement appeared. Doubtless many of the other leading publishing houses will at once follow suit."

THE LONGFELLOW CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

ON February 27 the 100th anniversary of the birth of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow will be celebrated at Cambridge, Mass., under the auspices of The Cambridge Historical Society and a representative committee, the chairman of which is Professor Charles Eliot Norton. The 27th inst. will be observed with appropriate exercises as "Longfellow Day" in all the schools of Cambridge. In the evening in Sanders Theatre there will be Public Exercises, at which Mr. William Dean Howells will be the principal speaker, and President Charles W. Eliot, Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson, and Professor Charles Eliot Norton will also make addresses. A special chorus from the Public Schools will sing the cantata, "The Village Blacksmith." During the week of the anniversary an interesting public exhibition will be held, at the Cambridge Public Library, of rare and beautiful editions of the poet's works, together with other memorabilia connected with his name, to which the Harvard University Library, Professor Charles Eliot Norton, and other collectors will contribute. On the afternoon of the anniversary there will be a special meeting, to be called "The Children's Hour," for the pupils of the grammar grades at the New Lecture Hall.

As an enduring and valuable memorial of the event, a special bronze medal will be struck, designed by Mr. Bela L. Pratt, who also designed the similar medal commemorating the 25th anniversary of the accession of Dr. Eliot to the presidency of Harvard College. The number of copies of this medal is strictly limited to 200, some of which will be reserved to be given as prizes each year in the Cambridge Schools. In honor of the anniversary the poet's publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Company, will issue two new volumes—one containing an appreciation by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, together with a collection of autobiographical poems; and the other, an exquisitely illustrated new edition of "The Hanging of the Crane."

HOW TO CHOOSE A GOOD BOOK.

"THE other day in a public library in London," according to the Cleveland Leader, "an attendant noticed a young girl sniffing suspiciously at the books. When he asked the reason of her strange conduct she told him frankly: 'I sniff at a book,' she said, 'to see if it smells of tobacco. If it does, then I know it's a book a man has been reading and that it's a good one.' This is a novel literary test, but a wise one in some respects. Horse sense lies behind it and feminine intuition."

COMMUNICATIONS.

AS TO THE MERRIAM COMPANY'S APPEAL FROM JUDGE COLT'S DECISION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Please note the fact that G. & C. Merriam Co. cannot appeal from the decision adverse to them, rendered by Judge Colt in Boston, on January 9, to "the U. S. Supreme Court," as stated in your editorial of January 19. The Supreme Court does not hear cases involving such puny matters—the only appeal possible is one to the Circuit Court, and there it must stop. It would seem to the writer that the time has come to state only that which is fair to both the Merriam Co. and the writer; they have had sufficient advantage in time and as a result of threats; give the other side such advantage now as the facts warrant. We do not threaten to sue the Merriams customers—have never done so and have no more cause to do so to them than they had to threaten to sue our customers, which was no cause at all. Why hold over the heads of the booktrade a Merriam threat that has no possible means of enforcement?

Any good lawyer could have told the Merriam Co. where this case would HAVE TO END, and any poor lawyer ought to be able to do so, too. We are quite ready to defend ourselves whenever and wherever necessary, but please do not in their behalf create scarecrows or give publicity to their baseless hopes.

Yours truly,

G. W. OGILVIE.

CHICAGO, ILL., U. S. A., January 21, 1907.

OBITUARY NOTES.

HERBERT E. GOODISON, who for twenty-two years was connected with the manufacturing department of Harper & Brothers, died on January 26 at the Morristown (N. J.) Memorial Hospital. Mr. Goodison's health failed about three years ago and he was obliged to give up his place. Colonel Harvey, in appreciation of his valuable services, sent him to the Harper farm at Convent, but he was too far gone to receive permanent benefit from the change.

WILLIAM WELLS NEWELL, secretary of the American Folk Lore Society, died in Boston January 21. Mr. Newell was born in Cambridge, Mass., January 24, 1839, and was graduated from Harvard in 1859. He left the Unitarian ministry to become a teacher and writer. Among his published works are "King Arthur and the Round Table," a collection of Arthurian tales, (1145-1191); a translation of Sophocles' "Edipus Rex," and "Words for Music," including versions of Italian folksong and two Danish ballads. For many years Mr. Newell edited the Journal of American Folk-Lore.

PROFESSOR MORITZ STEINSCHNEIDER, one of the best-known authorities on Oriental learning and Hebrew theology, died in Berlin on January 28. Professor Steinschneider was born in Prossnitz, May 30, 1816. He attended the University of Prague, and equipped himself for his later work as a student and bibliographer of Hebraic and Oriental literature by a long course of study in various German universities. He was the author of many standard bibliographical works, dealing with Jewish manuscripts in the Bodleian, and in the libraries of Munich, Berlin and other cities. Professor Steinschneider's article on Jewish literature in the Ersch and Gruber's Encyclopædia is considered to be the first adequate treatment of the subject to appear in extended form. Professor Steinschneider's writings include many other valuable contributions to encyclopædic and periodical literature.

WORD reached New York City on January 30 of the death of the Rev. Dr. John Gibson Paton, a missionary to the New Hebrides. Dr. Paton was of Scotch birth and parentage. He was born near Dumfries in May, 1824. His education began in the academy of his native town and was completed at the Normal Seminary and University of Glasgow. After serving as a city missionary in Glasgow for ten years he was ordained in 1858 and appointed missionary to the New Hebrides. Dr. Paton was a man of practical ability. In 1866, when he went to the island of Aneitium, he found the people suffering from drought, and promptly remedied conditions by the simple expedient of digging a well. His work prospered largely as the result of this practical demonstration of his helpfulness, and the missions throughout the islands are now reported to be flourishing. The autobiography of Dr. Paton was published in 1877, and in 1883 Mrs. Paton published a collection of "Letters and Sketches from the New Hebrides."

THE REV. DR. HENRY MARTYN FIELD, the last of the four famous Field brothers—Stephen J., David Dudley and Cyrus W.—died on January 26, in Stockbridge, Mass. Dr. Field was born in Stockbridge April 3, 1822. He was graduated from Williams College when only sixteen years old; he then studied theology and before he became of age was called to the pastorate of a Presbyterian church in St. Louis. He served there five years, and then spent several years in travel, after which he took charge of a church in West Springfield, Mass. In 1854 he removed to New York to edit and publish The Evangelist, with which he was connected for forty-four years. In 1875-'76 Dr. Field made a tour around the world, which he described in the two-volume work, "From the Lakes of Killarney to the Golden Horn and from Egypt to Japan." Among other books and essays he was the author of "The Good and Bad in the Roman Catholic Church," "Among the Holy Hills," "Blood is Thicker Than Water," "Summer Pictures from Copenhagen to Venice," "Our Western Archipelago," "On the Desert," "Gibraltar," a "History of the Atlantic Telegraph," and lives of his distinguished brothers.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HENRY HOLT has contributed to the February issue of Putnam's Monthly a résumé of the discussion on the subject of the "Commercialism of Literature."

UNDER the title of "The Book Farmer" W. H. Parker, for many years with E. P. Dutton & Co., has just completed a series of letters covering his experience of trying farming on the knowledge gained from books. His letters from the farm to an intimate friend cover the subject from an entirely new point of view.

WILLIAM JOHN LOCKE, the author of "The Beloved Vagabond," according to The Bookman, is a quiet, correct gentleman of forty-four years, a graduate of St. John's College, Cambridge, Eng., with special honors in mathematics, and the dignified secretary of the Royal Institute of British Architects. The charm of unconventionality with which his stories are permeated, the writer suggests, is the result of "a secondary nature which craves the various sensations of the Vie de Bohème and gratifies it vicariously in his leisure hours by writing the annals of more than one lovable and philosophic vagabond." Mr. Locke has written some ten volumes of fiction and two one-act plays.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

BEGINNING with the January number the famous English Quarterly, Mind, is to be published by Macmillan & Co., Ltd., London, and The Macmillan Company, New York. Professor G. F. Stout, who has been the editor for more than fifteen years, retains that position, and Professor E. B. Titchener, of Cornell University, remains the American editorial representative. The Advisory Committee includes Dr. Edward Caird, Professor Ward, and Professor Pringle-Pattison.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.—The old book business established in 1870 and since that time conducted by Joseph McDonough, "Ye Olde Booke Man," has been incorporated, (December, 1906,) under the laws of the State of New York under the firm name of the "Joseph McDonough Co." by the following, who are the officers of the corporation: Joseph McDonough, president; A. BUFFALO, N. Y.—The stock of Henry B. Brown was sold on the 16th inst. to the Adam, Meldrum & Anderson Co. for $4200, which was enough, it is reported, to pay a dividend of probably 40 per cent. A dividend of 15 per cent. has been declared and will be paid at once.

DARLINGTON, S. C.—The Book & Toy Co. is reported to have been forced into involuntary bankruptcy.

DECATUR, ILL.—Vradenburg & Parkhurst, booksellers, have been succeeded by Parkhurst & Parr, Mrs. Anna R. Parr, of Arcola, having acquired a half interest in the firm.

NEW YORK CITY.—Charles L. Brown & Company have purchased the retail and trade department of the book and stationery business of J. A. Hill & Company, at 44 East Twenty-third Street. Charles L. Bowman, who is well known to the book trade, has been associated with J. A. Hill & Company for over twenty-two years.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—K. W. Barry, well known to the trade through his connection with the Catholic Publication Society and, more recently, with the American News Company, will manage the book and stationery departments of a large department store to be opened shortly by the Duffy McNerrey Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just published the fifth edition of "The Will to be Well," by Charles Brodie Patterson, a unique doctrine for a clean and wholesome life.

JOHN CLARK, in charge of the old book department of the Arthur H. Clark Company, Cleveland, Ohio, starts for England about the middle of this month to purchase stock.

ERASTUS DARROW, the veteran bookseller of Western New York, on January 29 quietly celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday. Mr. Darrow is in excellent health and promises to remain with us many more years.

DODD, MEAD & Co. are making an exhibit of bindings by Charles Meunier, of Paris, showing in all seventy-eight examples of the handiwork of this artist-binder, which shows great originality of design combined with the most thorough workmanship.

THE officers of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders announced on January 26 that it had been decided to make a general demand for the eight-hour workday, and that the date when it will go into effect has been put to a referendum vote of the 12,000 members of the brotherhood, of whom there are about 2000 in New York City.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish, on the 8th inst., "The Lone Furrow," a story, by A. Fraser, author of "Thirteen Men" and "Saa Za'di Tales," of a small Canadian town, similar in character to "A Window in Thrums." They have in preparation a volume entitled "The New Internationalism," by Harold Boice, who deals with some of the problems of the day.

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has gotten up a line of very attractive Lincoln and Washington photogravure post-cards and dinner cards with appropriate inscriptions. These cards make suitable souvenirs for celebrations of the coming birthday anniversaries of these famous American heroes—the smaller cards being especially adapted for school celebrations. Mr. Burkhardt has also prepared for the valentine season a "Summons" from Cupid to the Court of Matrimony to "My Valentine" from a "Love-Sick Lover," Benedict & Henpeck of 23 Misery Avenue, Storkville, acting as attorneys.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have some unusually pretty love stories on their list to which they call special attention as remarkably well fitted for valentines. Of these are Ralph Henry Barbour's "A Maid in Arcady," "An Orchard Princess" and "Kitty of the Roses," all charmingly illustrated and tastefully bound. McVane's "Adventures of Jou-Jou," with 15 full-page colored illustrations by Frank Ver Beck, would also please many friends; and this artist's "Book of Bears" would make every child happy. Mrs. A. L. Wister's translation of "The Happy-Go-Lucky" is also full of bright happy thoughts. It is not necessary to mark the valentine season with the old idiotic trash. Try some of the nice, new, pretty books and see how much more pleasure they will give.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have in preparation a new Western story by Will Lillibridge, author of "Ben Blair," entitled "Where the Trail Divides;" "The Penalty," a story by Harold Begbie, a well-known London journalist, which, under the title of "The Priest," has enjoyed some popularity in England; "The Thinking Machine," by Jacques Futrelle, a writer who has attained great popularity by his clever detective stories; "Hilma," by William Tillinghast Eldridge, a romantic novel of the "Graustark" style; also, "The Many-Sided Roosevelt," by George W. Douglas, who has had many and varied opportunities of observing the President, and whose book is largely composed of anecdotes and stories concerning the latter. Mr. Douglas's book we understand has the sanction of the President.

THE FENN PUBLISHING COMPANY have made some of their pretty illustrated books especially attractive for the valentine season. By means of pretty ribbons, hearts of all shapes and colors, tasty board and paper bindings such delightful books as Mumford's "Smiles in Rime," W. M. Rhoads's "Toasts," with Clare Victor Dwiggins's illustrations, "Wise and Otherwise," also by Mr. Rhoads, cleverly illustrated by A. R. Bowker, with its fetching owl cover; "Knick Knacks," by Herbert Leonard Coggins, with its 100 drawings by the ever-happy Clare Victor Dwiggins; and "Your Future," by Lela Omar, have been made into the handsomest of valentine souvenirs, really things nice to get and nice to keep and nice to send as greetings to friends in the old season that has recently taken a new lease of life.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY has just brought out "The Kinsman," a comic version of "The Masquerader," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, author of "The Thousand Enigmas;" "The Principles of Secondary Education," by Charles De Garmo, Professor of the Science and Art of Education, Cornell University; "The Religious Conception of the World," by Arthur Kenyon Rogers, Professor of Philosophy and Education at Butler College; "The Reformation," an outline of the history of the church from A.D. 1503 to A.D. 1648, by the Rev. James Pounder Whitney; "Village Sermons," by the late Bishop Brooke Foss Westcott; and the eighth and concluding volume of "The Royal Academy of Arts," a complete dictionary of contributors and their work, from its foundation in 1769 to 1904, by Algernon Graves.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish on the 7th inst. Mark Twain's book on "Christian Science;" "The American Scene," by Henry James, "impressions" of his recent little tour in America from New England to Florida; "Good Hunting in Pursuit of Big Game in the West," by Theodore Roosevelt, a book which offers to younger readers fascinating descriptions of big-game hunting and out-door life in the West, with illustrations; and a new edition of "Sea Yarns for Boys," by W. J. Henderson. On the 14th inst. they will have ready in the Heroes of American History Series a volume on "Amerigo Vespucci," by Frederick A. Ober; also Dr. James Kendall Hosmer's work on the "Outcome of the Civil War," in the American Nation series. "Sampson Rock of Wall Street," a story of love and finance, by Edwin Lefevre, will be ready on February 20.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "Peer Gynt," in their new edition of Ibsen's Collected Works, edited by William Archer. The first volume of the "Dictionary of Christ and the Gospels," edited by the Rev. James Hastings, at once obtained so large a subscription list that the publishers—Charles Scribner's Sons—have not been able to get the work bound fast enough. This dictionary is independent of the "Dictionary of the Bible," but is in a sense complementary to that. Its range is wider than that of the Gospels, as it seeks to cover all that relates to Christ throughout the Bible and in the life and literature of the world. It will contain, for example, articles on the Patristic estimate of Jesus, the Mediæval estimate, the Reformation and Modern estimates, as well as articles on Christ in the Jewish writings and in the Moslem literature.

HILLS & HAFELY COMPANY, 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York City, have prepared for the Easter holidays a series of cards entitled "For the Empire," comprising upwards of eighty varieties, retailing at from five cents to fifty cents the card. The cards are all surprisingly original in design and all—even to the lowest-priced ones—are artistically designed and carefully printed. The five-cent line includes folders, parchment cards, leaflets, crosses and post cards, printed in several colors, some of them embossed and others with gold or silver blocking. The ten-cent series includes chiefly folders, leaflets and booklets, printed in several colors and some of them with hand-painted designs. The other and more expensive series are, naturally, more elaborate and all of them have hand-painted or hand-decorated covers tied with ribbons or silk cord. In their fifty-cent series a new number shows a cover design of hand-painted orchids, cyripediums, etc. All in all the Hills & Hafely Co.'s Easter line seems a safe one to stock up with—it can never stale.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just published in their Library of Early English Novelists "The Monk," by M. G. Lewis, edited and with an introduction by E. A. Baker; also, "Early English Prose Romances," edited by William J. Thomas, with an introduction by Henry Morley, which contains, among others, "The History of Reynard the Fox," "Robert the Deuyl," "The Pleasant History of Tom A. Lincoln," "The History of the Damnable Life and Deserved Death of Dr. John Faust." They have just ready in the London Library two volumes of "Letters of Literary Men," one from Sir Thomas More to Robert Burns, and the other "The Nineteenth Century," the "Criminal Prosecution and Capital Punishment of Animals," by E. P. Evans; and "The Life of the Empress Eugenie," by Jane T. Stoddart. They announce a volume entitled "Race Prejudice," by Jean Finot. The work is divided into five parts—"the inequality of human beings," "towards the unity of the human type," "anthropo-psychology and anthropo-sociology," "the mysterious or uncertain origins of peoples and races," and "are there peoples condemned to remain eternally inferior to others?"

LAIRD & LEE announce for the spring and summer season the following: "Krausz's A B C of Motoring," practical everyday information for owners of automobiles; "Krausz's Complete Automobile Record," an original scheme for keeping a record of expenses, cost of repairs, etc., starting and objective points, miles run, in short, complete statistics of all kinds of interest to the owners and operators of motor cars; a revised edition of "Conklin's Handy Manual of Useful Information," a handy book of facts of all kinds, the sale of which has already reached into the millions; a revised edition of "Edison's Handy Encyclopedia," a storehouse of knowledge containing the most recent statistics of population of American cities, political divisions of the world, value of various foods, legal points and much other information of value to public speakers, writers and teachers; "Laird & Lee's Modern Penmanship," a treatise on the art of writing and lettering; "The Wooster Juvenile Speaker," a collection of patriotic and instructive pieces in prose and verse, recitations, speeches, songs, dialogues and exercises for children suitable for all occasions; also, "Laird & Lee's Diary and Time-Saver—1907," which contains in addition to the diary thirteen full-page colored maps showing the recent geographical changes and boundary lines, a full-page diagram of the Panama Canal, estimates, for 1907, of the population of the United States, Canada and Mexico by cities, etc. They also announce the Elementary School edition of "Webster's New Standard Dictionary," an entirely new dictionary, completing Laird & Lee's series of school dictionaries. The volume is printed from new plates and contains 384 pages, 450 special text illustrations and numerous encyclopedic departments, weights and measures, abbreviations, rules for spelling, etc. The make-up of the dictionary, its diacritical markings and general system is in harmony with the other school editions published by Laird & Lee; the proper nouns are indicated by capital initials and degrees of adjectives are given with irregular forms of verbs, plurals of nouns and genders; hundreds of new words have also been included.

PRONOUNCED THE MOST VALUABLE BOOK EVER PUBLISHED

DEFECTS OF FIRE INSURANCE AND THE REMEDY

The Only Book Ever Published in the Interest of the Insured

240 Pages. 9 x 12 inches in size. Price $25

Sold Only by the Author, J. C. WARNER

Room 621, 32 Nassau Street, New York

One Boston publisher acknowledged that he secured $4,000 more in the adjustment of his fire loss (than he would have otherwise received) by having this book to consult.

Invaluable to Attorneys and Fire Insurance Agents who wish to protect the interests of their clients.

A FOREIGN FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

which receives the largest income of any company doing business in this country, was organized in the year 1846 with a stock value of $500 per share. It has increased this value more than 34 per cent. per annum, and after adjusting its San Francisco losses of over $4,000,000 the market value of its stock is now $10,500 per share.

Is it any wonder that with such a showing for one fire insurance company, the combination reports its Premium receipts for 26 years at..... $5,200,000,000!

Its payment of losses during the same period at.... 1,828,539,628!

in EXCESS OF AMOUNT PAID FOR LOSSES

The average loss to premium receipts being about 35 per cent., or if we allow 50 per cent. of the loss to bad moral hazard, we have an honest loss of about 17½ per cent. Think of your putting up $1.00 for seventeen and one-half cents of fire protection.

THE ATTORNEYS FOR THE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES have devoted 300 years to the perfecting of the Policy Contract in the interest of the fire insurance companies.

ARE YOU SURE

that your contract is in the best form? One of my clients had been assured by his agent that HIS contract was all right. I advised him to change the form, which he did, and subsequently collected at time of fire $46,000 on an item which under the old contract would have produced but $10,000. Thus saving by the improved form $36,000. I have the two forms attached to the expired policies, which are in the Liverpool and London and Globe Ins. Co.

This book tells you what your AGENT FRIEND? WILL NEVER TELL YOU, and that is, that in some instances he can reduce your annual premiums, by a process known to but a few of the elect, BUT under the new process he receives ONLY 5 per cent. Commissions, while under the present arrangement he receives from 15 per cent. to 25 per cent. Commissions. See Page 58, "DEFECTS OF FIRE

THE TRADE DEMANDS THE TRUTH!

At the present time there is being extensively circulated, in all parts of the country, a pamphlet bearing the signature of G. & C. Merriam Co., entitled "The Truth About Certain So-called Webster's Dictionaries," in which they attack Laird & Lee's WEBSTER'S NEW STANDARD DICTIONARY.

MERRIAM CO. FORCE THE ISSUE!

✎ A FEW PERTINENT QUESTIONS: ✎

WHY did you wait until within a few weeks ago before taking steps to interfere with a business that has been built up by hard work and the expenditure of thousands of dollars, if you had any right in the name Webster, after the 1847 copyright expired—seventeen years ago? In view of these facts, is it not a little short of a crime to attempt to crush and drive a competitor out of business after permitting that competitor to advertise and keep the name "Webster" alive before the public for so many years?

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution (nearly 2,000,000 copies) of Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Webster Pronouncing Dictionary, published in 1892, nearly fifteen years ago? Did you not know that this was the first ever issued?

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution (over half a million) of Webster's Modern Dictionary, published in 1895 (eleven years ago)? Is it not a fact that you knew that this dictionary was extensively advertised under the name of "Webster"? If so, is it not true, also, that you did not place any special value on the name so long as it did not directly interfere with your school business?

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of "Grimm-Webster," (German-English and English-German) Dictionary, copyrighted in 1897 (nine years ago)? Was it also because this book was not used in the schools that you placed so little value on the name "Webster"?

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of "Salva-Webster," (Spanish-English and English-Spanish) Dictionary, copyrighted in 1898 (eight years ago)? It appears that this title also did not attract your attention.

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of Laird & Lee's "Littre-Webster," (English-French and French-English) Dictionary, published in 1899 (seven years ago), also of The Standard Webster Pocket Dictionary; Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket "Kaiser" Dictionary, and Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Standard (English-Spanish and Spanish-English) Dictionary, (aggregate sales over 200,000)? These dictionaries having been advertised for years in the same mediums used by your company, you, of course, must have known that they were on the market.

WHY did you not take steps to stop the publication and distribution of Webster's New Standard Dictionary, five editions, the first one published in 1903, two sample copies of which were sent direct to the editorial rooms of the American Book Company, per order, October 3d, 1903, presumably for examination, nearly three years before any move was made to prevent their sale, and after twelve distinct dictionaries had been published bearing the name "Webster"?

WHY did you claim that Webster's Handy Dictionary is "From the latest edition of the large dictionary of Noah Webster"? Does it not bear all the ear marks of an English lexicon? Can you account for the similarity between this dictionary and the edition published by the Chicago Tribune in 1886, not copyrighted, illustrations and style of type and size of pages appearing to be almost identical—240 cuts in one and 258 in the other—print evidently pearl type (twenty to thirty years old), so small that it must have ruined the eyes of thousands of children?

WHY did you deviate from the system, followed in all the different editions of your dictionaries, beginning each vocabulary word with a capital, up to Webster's "Little Gem" Dictionary, copyrighted in 1905, in which the capitals are used only where required, a system first adopted by Laird & Lee?

WHY is it that none of the lexicons published by Laird & Lee appealed to you as a menace to the market? Is it because this particular edition has proven so popular among educators, the schools, the trade and the public, that you now make your unwarranted attack?

This subject is of vital concern to everyone, therefore the public is entitled to know the truth.

DEALERS

Why not encourage competition? Don't you know that Laird & Lee are directly responsible for the increased discount recently allowed on certain "So-called Webster Dictionaries"? DON'T BE DECEIVED.

TO THE TRADE

We beg to acknowledge our feeling of deep appreciation for the many expressions of sympathy received from the trade on account of our recent fire. Our plant consisted of an eight-story and basement building extending over a frontage of 250 feet on Dearborn Street and running back to Plymouth Place, the whole divided into three buildings by fire walls and double iron doors. Two of these divisions consisted of 100 feet each and one of 50 feet. The south division, which was the 50-foot one, was entirely destroyed by the fire, but we still have left the two divisions of 100 feet each, which are intact, and exactly the same as before the fire, and which embrace 80 per cent. of our original building space.

The destroyed building was mainly used for storage purposes, and hence our manufacturing and power plants are unimpaired, and we are now replenishing our stocks. Any orders sent us will be given prompt attention. Thanking the trade for past favors, and hoping to be entrusted with your further orders, which will be cared for immediately upon their receipt, we are,

Yours very truly,

A SOVEREIGN REMEDY

By FLORA ANNIE STEEL

THIS powerful novel of English life is a book of real literary value, and one which dealers can honestly recommend. In England, where it was first issued, 13,000 copies were sold within three months. The New York Evening Sun says it is "the best thing Mrs. Steel has done since she wrote 'On the Face of the Waters,'" (a book which reached a sale of 150,000 copies); and adds that it triumphs over this first big effort in that "it is better written." AN EPOCH-MAKING BOOK

Sex and Society

By WILLIAM I. THOMAS

Associate Professor of Sociology in the University of Chicago

THIS volume approaches the question of woman and her position in society from a new standpoint. It recognizes that sex is a fundamental factor in the origin and development of social institutions and occupational activities, and that a number of social forms and forces are of sexual origin.

After a preliminary paper in which the organic differences of the two sexes are analyzed, there follows a series of studies on the relation of sex to social feeling and stimulation, and the influence of sex in securing a system of social control; the psychology of the maternal system of tribal organization; sex as a factor in the differentiation of occupations in early society, and the relation of woman to early industry and invention; the relation of sex to the origin of morality; the origin of exogamy; the origin and psychology of modesty and clothing.

In the last two papers, on "The Adventitious Character of Woman" and "The Mind of Woman and the Lower Races," modern woman is interpreted from the standpoint of certain conventions and prejudices which emanate from the fact of sex, and which have excluded her from full participation in the activities of the "white man's world," with the result that she develops a type of mind and character not representative of the natural traits of her sex.

Former treatises on the "woman question" have dealt in the main in a descriptive way with the history of marriage, or at least only with the details of the development of the marriage system, and have failed to present a theory which makes clear the significance of the present position of woman in society. The volume of Professor Thomas is the first attempt made to estimate the influence of the fact of sex on the origin and development of human society.

NOTES IN SEASON.

C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston, have nearly ready a romance of South American revolution by Marshall Putnam Thompson, entitled "The Lieutenant, the Girl and the Viceroy."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish at once the eighth edition of Dr. William Elliott Griffis's authoritative work, "Korea, the Hermit Nation," which has been brought through the period of the Russo-Japanese war by a chapter on "Korea, a Japanese Protectorate." The new edition will also contain a revised map of Korea.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation the following fiction: "The Princess Virginia," a new story by C. N. and A. M. Williamson; "The Great American Pie Company," another clever book by Ellis Parker Butler, author of "Pigs is Pigs;" "The Trimmed Lamp, and Other Stories of the Four Million," by O. Henry; also, "The Leopard and the Lily," by Marjorie Bowen, author of "The Viper of Milan."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out "The Steps of Life," by Carl Hilty; "Labour and Capital: a Letter to a Labour Friend," by Goldwin Smith, whose interest in the great questions of the day seems to increase rather than diminish with the passing of the years; "Van Dyck," by Lionel Cust, the foremost living authority on Van Dyck, in the series of Great Masters in Painting and Sculpture; a new and revised edition of "The Roman System of Provincial Administration," by W. T. Arnold; also, "Principles of Microscopy," by Sir A. E. Wright, M.D.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce a new popular edition of Nathan Gallizier's "Castel del Monte, a Romance of the Fall of the Hohenstauffen Dynasty in Italy," which achieved marked success as a vivid and dramatic word painting of the vicious and luxurious Italian life of the thirteenth century. Mr. Gallizier has just completed the manuscript of his second volume in the trilogy of mediæval Italian life, which is laid in the year 1000, and is entitled "The Sorceress of Rome." The new book deals with the tragic love story of the boy Emperor Otto III., and Stephanina, the wife of Crescentius, Senator of Rome, all famous as historical characters about whom much legend and romance has been woven.

ONE of the most important books on the spring list of Doubleday, Page & Co. is "To the Top of the Continent," in which Dr. Frederick Cook, author of "Through the Antarctic Night," will tell the story of his now famous conquest of Mt. McKinley, which carried the stars and stripes to the roof, so to speak, of North America. This expedition was full of adventure, for it also explored a vast area of hitherto unknown country which Dr. Cook believes is the last big game preserve on the continent. Dr. Cook's expedition was the first one to use a motor boat up the difficult Alaskan rivers. His ascent of Mt. McKinley in the face of almost insuperable obstacles is one of the most dramatic stories in the history of modern exploration. This book will contain the first complete map of the new Alaskan gold fields, where a great rush is expected this summer. This important volume, which will be adequately illustrated with reproductions of photographs taken by the author, will be made a part of the Geographical Library that will include Commander Peary's forthcoming book, "Nearest the Pole," and already contains, among others, "The Opening of Tibet," by Percival Landon; "Flashlights in the Jungle," by C. G. Schillings; "Fighting the Polar Ice," by Anthony Fiala; and "The Passing of Korea," by Homer D. Hulbert.

Author of "The house of a thousand candles" here deals with Austrian affairs when assassination has disposed of both the all-powerful premier and the old Emperor, and even threatens the new ruler. Success in the plot depends only on the discovery of an heir presumptive, who years ago disappeared in America. The early scenes take place in Geneva, and introduce the arch-plotter, also a mysterious John Armitage, who calls himself an American, and a fascinating American girl, and her brother of the U. S. Army. Then the action is transferred to Washington and later to the Virginia mountains, where the plotters arrange their final coup and where Armitage cleverly outwits them, thereby saving Austria's crown and clearing away the mysteries regarding himself.

The Werder theory of Hamlet's procrastination, as it was first adduced in the extracts used in Dr. Furness's edition of the play, is that: revenge meant to Hamlet not death, but death after confession. Thus the tragedy hangs, in Werder's opinion, upon Hamlet's use of the play to prove the king's guilt. In like manner, all of Hamlet's inaction is due, not to weakness on his part, but to circumstances beyond his control. The translation is preceded by an introduction by W. J. Rolfe which states the opinions of authorities with regard to the revolutionary German idea.

THE POST OFFICE AS A BUSINESS.

THE Postal Commission's report goes to the root of postal reorganization in pleading, as did the report of the Postmaster-General, that the vast business of the post office should be handled with large business foresight. It is a great misfortune that the promotion of Mr. Cortelyou to a higher cabinet post should lose to the Post Office Department at this critical period of reorganization a head who has shown such remarkable capacity in dealing with its practical problems. Mr. Cortelyou came equipped to this work from long experience in a department which he had entered through the merit system, and it is especially to the credit of the chairman of the National Committee of a party organization that he leaves the department thoroughly based on that system, and with politics eliminated from the choice of the great body of postmasters. He has not attempted the impossible, and has perhaps not gone so far as he might in attempting the possible. But his work, and particularly his last report, affords solid basis for further improvement in the service and leaves an influence which will be permanent. It is to be hoped especially that Congress will adopt his recommendation for providing a permanent general manager for the post office business as Deputy Postmaster-General.

It is to be regretted that the Postal Commission was not constituted as originally suggested by the Postmaster-General, as the presence of members versed in the publishing business would have saved the commission from much waste of time and from some mistakes. Nevertheless, a good many facts of importance were brought out at the hearings, and the commission report gives an excellent summary of the views of the publishing interests and of commercial bodies as well as the suggestions of the Department and the recommendation of the commission itself. Unfortunately, instead of simplifying the conditions of second-class registration the commission proposals were made rather more complicated, and it seems as though it were in sheer desperation that the commission hit upon the unfortunate suggestions as to second-class matter that issues should be excluded which contained more than fifty per cent. of advertising. The opposition to the whole treatment of second-class matter has been so unanimous on the part of the press that it is understood that there will be no attempt to carry through the accompanying bill except in one or two of its provisions.

The hearings brought out one fact of great interest, bearing upon this very point—that second-class matter is the chief money-getter for the Post Office Department because the advertisements involve so large a return in first-class rates. It is probable, in fact, that the "mail order" periodicals, which are the bête noir of the department, constitute one of the most profitable auxiliaries of the service. Mr. Atkinson, of the Farm Journal, scores a good point in asking why he should not be permitted to publish a paper for a penny, (his rate to five-year subscribers being 15 cents a year,) as well as the publisher of the yellow daily Journal in New York; and, in fact, his Farm Journal is one of the most valuable publications in the country for the whole country and one of the best money-getters for the post office business.

The suggestion for a Post Office Board of Appeals is an improvement on present methods, and in particular would relieve Mr. Madden, who is an able administrative official, from the burden and obloquy he now endures; but it is scarcely the best solution. The commission states, however, that its present recommendations are provisional, and it wisely appeals for further and larger consideration of present and future problems.

The commission at its hearings declined to hear argument as to postal costs, although it dealt chiefly with postal rates and emphasized the view that matter of the second class was carried below cost. Its report, however, deals frankly, though inadequately, with the railroad problem, and advises an immediate, though inadequate reduction of rates. There is common sense recognition of the facts that small shipments cost more than large, and that beyond a certain point, estimated at forty tons, there is not much saving. If the facts of express companies' relations with railroads are put in evidence, it is an enforced conclusion that the government compensation to the railroads should for the most part be cut in half. The weighing and counting recommended are of first importance, although it is difficult to see how this can be persistently done under the chronic congestion of the main post office at New York.

It remains to be said, however, after all criticism of details, that the commission has taken a long stride forward in "speaking out" in favor of a business administration of the largest business organization in the country. It is to be hoped that Congress will heed its warning and accept its advice for the appointment of a commission of still wider scope, so that before the close of the present administration we may have a re-organized department which shall lead instead of tag behind the postal departments of other nations.

THE presentation of a minority report from the Senate Committee on Patents favoring the House provision as to the rights of musical composers further complicates the copyright situation and makes the passage of the copyright measure at the present session more than doubtful. There is general appreciation of the excellent work put upon the measure by the committees, but several of the provisions evoke continued criticism from the friends of copyright as they are studied. The American Copyright League declares in favor of the Senate bill, but points out that an alternative term, preferably of fifty years, is a necessary concomitant of the life and thirty years term, urges that the original text of works in a language other than English be excepted from the manufacturing clause, and emphasizes the importance of the existing minimum of $250 damages omitted from the present measure. The American Publishers' Copyright League criticises chiefly the omission of the proviso joining assigns with author in the prolongation of existing copyrights.

POSTAL COMMISSION RETREATS.

THE Joint Congressional Postal Commission, it is reported, has practically decided to abandon nearly all its recommendations which affect daily and weekly newspapers. This sudden change of front on the part of the commission is said to be due largely to the severe criticism of the proposed changes in the regulations that have been made by the newspapers, in the face of which it was thought the passage of the Commission's bill at the present session of Congress would be impossible.

It was therefore decided to abandon the proposed changes that affect those classes of papers. The commission, however, will press its recommendation for the exclusion of advertising matter from transportation at second class rates and for the reduction of the rates paid the railroads.

THE COMMERCIALIZATION OF LITERATURE.

MR. HENRY HOLT, in summing up, in the current issue of Putnam's Monthly, the discussion of his article in the Atlantic Monthly for November, 1905, on "The Commercialization of Literature," again directs his shafts against the "literary agent," whom he holds responsible for a great part of the commercialization of literature.

"I mean," Mr. Holt says, "that the [literary] agent's interest may be as far counter to the author's as the publisher's may be; and I also mean that the publisher's can be as nearly identical with the author's as the agent's can; and I further mean that agents have forced over-production by selling several of an author's books before they were written, and dazzling him with forced earnings from forced work, followed by inferior earnings from inferior work."

Mr. Holt's literary-agent-critic of the Fortnightly Review makes several statements of the value of literary agents which Mr. Holt considers erroneous, because they do not seem to be based upon actual experience. Both Mr. Holt and his critic agree that it is advantageous for an author to keep to one publisher; but the critic maintains that through a literary agent an author can "get the best market price" for his work. To this Mr. Holt replies that manuscripts are not rationally priced as is a keg of nails or a pound of sugar, but that writings are worth only what they bring, this price being determined by the "accidents of the time."

"There are ambitious and reckless publishers," says Mr. Holt, "and those who from youth or some other reason are sadly in need of authors, all of whom to get good authors will give anything they can, utterly regardless of results." Although the agent may hunt up such people for his author, there is no "rational market price" in their offers.

Often a publisher "of freebooting disposition" will offer an author utterly uncommercial rates for the book rights of matter offered for serialization. In such a case the author's regular publisher would be apt to refuse to bid against the "corsair." How, then, asks Mr. Holt, about reserving one publisher and at the same time securing "the benefits of competition"? The agent, in his desire to appear to be doing something, is often undermining the foundations of the author's permanent financial well-being.

"Another of the ear-marks of our honest writer's [the Fortnightly Review critic's] apparent inexperience," according to Mr. Holt, "is the supposition that an agent can go around the market and get bids against the author's previous publisher when it is known that he will not take the author away if he can help it. And if he can, what self-respecting publisher will listen to his proposition? Occasionally one will, but these are not so numerous to-day as they were a few years ago."

"These facts do not mean that an author should have a single publisher, no literary agent, and do without the benefit of competition. For in an author's relation with publishers of the highest class . . . the question has no place. He [the author] ought to get the results of what the published book will do in the market." Good publishers contract as a rule by formulas which secure to the author gains corresponding to the sale of the book after it has been published. The publishers pay, say, ten per cent. on the first five thousand, fifteen per cent. on the next fifteen thousand, and twenty per cent. after twenty thousand. These terms are as high as can be given, consistent with making the publishing business worth an able man's attention.

If an author needs any help whatever in the business side of his work, he may get an honest lawyer to arrange matters for him for a tenth of what an agent often receives, and that without the commercialization attendant upon the latter's actions.

"My critic tacitly admits," says Mr. Holt, "that he thinks that the way in which the agents have made much, probably most, of their money is not consistent with his ideas of right; they have not even tried to give the author the benefit of competition, and leave him the benefit of one high class publisher."

As to the "circus" method of advertising books, Mr. Holt continues: "I want, even at the cost of some repetition of my former article, to say another word about the crowding of books into circulation by the megaphone and the battering ram. The literary standards of people are of course affected by what they read, and what they read is too much determined by the publisher who brays loudest and pounds hardest. Instead of the reader being permitted to follow such lights as the grace of God and his education may have given him, he is dinned, and the bookseller who influences him is cajoled, into following a standard set purely by the forces of dollars and cents—often wasted dollars and cents. And now I am going to add one more to my radical utterances. It would be an immense gain for the cause of literature and to the profit of all worthy authors, (though at the expense of unworthy ones,) if the 'commercial enterprise' that has come in from Wall Street and the energetic West were taken out of the publishing business—if the competition consisted simply in selecting books wisely, making them tastefully and honestly, informing the interested public of their existence, and supplying them to whatever legitimate demand they might effect through their own merits. There would probably be just as many sold—more, in fact; for the reading habit would be a healthier and consequently more vigorous growth; there would be quantities of money saved, of which the author would get his share; a good many active and ingenious young men now wasted in drumming and advertising would be shifted into productive pursuits; and the public taste would be saved the unpleasant sights now too frequently imposed upon it in book advertising. It may be worth considering, too, whether the dignity that would be added to trading in literature would not be for the benefit of literature itself."

Mr. Holt has again offered material for useful thought in his clear manner of statement and terse English.

THE FOLLY OF UNDERSELLING.

THE following circular sent to the members of the Pittsburg Booksellers' and Stationers' Association evidences a spirit that might well be emulated by other associations or individuals throughout the country:

GENTLEMEN: If one dealer sells a dollar article for 90 cents, the others meet the price and what has been accomplished?

N I T—Positively N I T.

No advantage accrues to the originator of the reduction. It's not even an "ad," for he offers no inducements whatever over those of his competitors; on the contrary, all suffer alike by reason of the uncalled for reduction.

If your neighbor reduces a price unduly on goods that you handle, why not see him in a neighborly way and have him restore the rate to a paying basis?

Or, are you willing to refer such price matters and misunderstandings to a committee of three competent stationers and abide by their decision?

Prices are advancing in all other lines; why should not the stationer reap his harvest now? He is paying new-style prices for his goods and selling them at old-fashioned figures.

Are you willing to come together once a month for a light fifty-cent lunch at six P.M. and a two hours' consideration of prices, improvements in business methods, discussions of "What is cost?" etc., etc.

Or will you suggest something better?

An early reply is earnestly requested by

CHARLES H. CLOUGH, 900 Penn Avenue.

THE SHELLEY NOTE BOOKS IN NEW YORK.

THE three Shelley manuscript note books which brought £3000 at the Garnett sale on December 6 last, have been brought to this country to become part of a New York collection of the poet's books and autographs, very likely of that of Frederick R. Halsey, whose Shelley collection is said to be the finest existing in private hands. These volumes, bequeathed by Mrs. Shelley to her son, Sir Percy Shelley, and presented by him to Dr. Garnett, contain autograph matter of much interest and include early drafts of the "Ode to the West Wind," "The Sensitive Plant," etc., together with twenty-one unpublished pieces.

While the unprinted poems are short and fragmentary, and possibly if published would add little to the poet's reputation, the mere fact that they are Shelley's gives them literary and commercial value. The other note-books are all in the Bodleian Library in Oxford, and English bibliographical writers regret that the Garnett examples were not purchased for that institution.

The Halsey collection and some important Shelley items in the collection of Harry D. Smith, of New York City, the comic librettist, are interestingly described in the New York Sun for January 13.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MRS. ISABELLA BEECHER HOOKER, the youngest daughter of Lyman Beecher, died in Hartford, Conn., January 26, in her eighty-fifth year, having been born at Litchfield, Conn., on February 22, 1822. She was active for years as a writer and speaker in defense of women's rights.

DR. WILBUR SAMUEL JACKMAN, educator and writer, died at Chicago, on January 28.

Dr. Jackman was born at Mechanicstown, O., January 12, 1855. He studied at Allegheny College and completed his course at Harvard in 1884. After several years of travel he accepted the position of dean of the College of Education of the University of Chicago. Dr. Jackman was well known in the literary field as the editor of the Elementary School Teacher, and as the author of numerous works on education, among which are "Nature Study for the Common Schools," "Number Work in Nature Study," "Field Work in Nature Study," "Nature Study and Related Subjects," and "Nature Study Records," besides numerous articles on educational subjects.

PROFESSOR DMITRI MENDELÉEFF, the celebrated Russian chemist, died on February 2, at St. Petersburg. He was born in Tobolsk, Siberia, in 1834, and went to St. Petersburg in 1856, where he attended the university from which he was graduated in 1859. After studies and investigations abroad he returned to St. Petersburg and devoted his life to original research in chemistry and geology. His "Principles of Chemistry," published in 1870, was translated into many languages, and he was a frequent contributor to scientific periodicals. He was the author of several papers on nitro-cellulose compounds as a basis for smokeless gunpowder, some of which were translated into English by Commander J. B. Bernadou, U. S. N., and published in the "Proceedings of the Naval Institute."

SAMUEL C. T. DODD, for upwards of twenty-five years solicitor for the Standard Oil Company and author of certain widely-circulated so-called "trust" literature, died in Pinehurst, N. C., on January 30. Mr. Dodd was born on February 20, 1836, in Franklin, Pa., and was admitted to the bar in 1859. In 1881 he became general solicitor for the Standard Oil Company, and is said to have been an important factor in extending the business of the corporation. He was retired two years ago on a pension. Among his better known writings are "Uses and Abuses of Corporations," a pamphlet; "History of Standard Oil;" "Trusts," a pamphlet; "Trusts," contributed to the New York Tribune in 1889; "Aggregated Capital," "Ten Years of Standard Oil Trust," published in The Forum in 1893, and "Present Legal Status of Trusts," contributed to The Harvard Law Review in October, 1893.

NOTES ON AUTHORS

WHILE engaged on his biography of Molière Mr. Chatfield-Taylor gathered together some five hundred volumes relating to the great dramatist. This collection, which its owner has presented to Cornell University, his alma mater, is said to have only one superior in the United States—that of James H. Hyde.

The Bookman corrects the impression prevalent for some time that Filson Young, the author of "The Sands of Pleasure," and Guy Thorne, the author of "Made in His Image," are one and the same person. "As a matter of fact," to quote The Bookman, "they are entirely different persons, and each has done enough work to distinguish him from any one else. Filson Young, or rather Alexander Bell Filson Young, is an Irishman about thirty years of age. He was the war correspondent of the Manchester Guardian during the struggle in the Transvaal, and later became the literary editor of the London Daily Mail. He has published half a dozen books, the best known of which, before the appearance of "The Sands of Pleasure," was "The Complete Motorist," a book which was not only of a high order in itself, but which contained a very extraordinary letter from Mr. Kipling, that was widely quoted in this country and in England. "Guy Thorne's" real name is Cyril Arthur Edward Ranger Gull. He is about the same age as Filson Young. He was educated in a public school near Manchester, and at the University College, Oxford. From the university he went to London with Professor York Powell and others, and tried his hand at journalism and literary criticism. Over his own name he published several novels, among them "The Surf" and "The Hypocrite." He achieved his first real success over the signature of "Guy Thorne," which he adopted for books designed to appeal to the popular taste. His real name he uses for the work in which he puts his artistic self. His most popular novel was "When It Was Dark," which sold over one hundred thousand copies in England.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE publication in the March Century of Timothy Cole's wood engraving of Ribera's "Assumption of Mary Magdalene" will conclude that engraver's notable series of old Spanish masters, twenty-nine in all. Mr. Cole has already commenced work upon a new series, that of the old French masters, reproductions of which will begin in the April Century.

THE Burlington Magazine, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., New York City, enters the new year with remarkably strong attractions. The frontispiece of the January issue is a photogravure reproduction of the landscape, "The Storm," by H. Harpignies; the illustrated article on the veteran painter's works is by Professor C. J. Holmes. A colored illustration reproduces a colored print by the distinguished Japanese artist Hokusai. It is one of his famous series, "Thirty-six Views of Fuji," and is accompanied by an explanatory article. There are also illustrated articles on London's new public buildings, the embroideries of the Aegean, on some of the works of Palma, Vecchio, etc. In the section on art in America all recent exhibitions and events in the United States, as well as information of vital art interest, have been gathered together. Especial interest attaches to the notice of the famous collections belonging to John G. Johnson, of Philadelphia, and to William L. Elkins and P. B. Widener, who may in the near future join with Mr. Johnson in presenting an art gallery to Philadelphia.

OLD BOOK NOTES.

CORRESPONDENCE OF LUTHER AND HENRY VIII.—A hitherto unknown copy of the Latin correspondence between Luther and King Henry VIII. was sold at auction at Sotheby's on January 29. The correspondence concerns the time when King Henry, prior to the English Reformation, won the title of Defender of the Faith, which has since been borne by all British sovereigns, from Pope Leo X. for attacking Luther's new theology. Luther's vigorous rejoinder is contained in the exclamation: "Oh, how I should enjoy covering the head of his English Majesty with dirt and filth." The correspondence was printed by Pynson in London in 1525. Only three copies were known of before. The fourth copy was bought on behalf of Mr. Quaritch for $1275.

RARE TENNYSONIANA.—At the sale of the collection of Albert E. Jack, of Lake Forest University, Ill., at Anderson's this week, an uncut copy of "The Falcon," in the original blank buff paper covers, printed for copyright or for use of the Kendals, who acted it in December, 1879, fetched $200. "The Cup," in uncut condition, the third of Tennyson's privately printed plays, written for Henry Irving and Ellen Terry, who performed it on Christmas day, 1880, brought $180. "The Promise of May," the rarest of Tennyson's privately printed plays, produced at the Globe Theatre in London in 1882, sold for $180. A copy of the first published edition of "The Cup" and "The Falcon," London, 1884, fetched $100. "The Sailor Boy," printed for Tennyson's use by the Emily Faithfull Victoria Press, London, 1861, sold for $100. "Poems. By Two Brothers," written by Alfred and Charles Tennyson, and the former's first publication, London, 1827, sold for $65. The bibliophilic rage for Tennyson rarities is not so great as it was a few years ago, these figures being much below those paid for the same works in the Morgan and Arnold sales.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE Carnegie Institution has issued an announcement to the effect that unless it appears that the Index Medicus is "of greater service to the medical profession and can help to support itself to a greater extent than in the past, it may become advisable to discontinue its publication." There are but 532 actual subscribers to the Index Medicus, of which number 386 are in the United States. These subscriptions defray but one-fifth of the actual cost of publishing this valuable bibliographic work, which should have a subscriber in every medical library of any size throughout the whole world, as well as in the libraries devoted to the allied sciences, the law libraries, medical societies, the general libraries and individual members of the medical profession.

THE Börsenblatt für den deutschen Buchhandel in its issues for December 28 and 29, 1906, prints a bibliography of the following government publications: Calendars of State Papers; Lists and Indexes of Documents preserved in the Public Record Office; Acts of Privy Council of England; Chronicles and Memorials of Great Britain and Ireland during the Middle Ages—Rerum Britannicarum Medii Aevi Scriptores; Publications of Record Commissioners, including Scottish and Irish; and Works in Photozincography, prepared by P. E. Richter. These publications are usually relegated to the appendixes of the English Catalogue and there given under the names of the societies, so that the titles are not easily accessible.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Geyer's Stationer has opened an office in the Baltimore Building, at 17 Quincy Street, in charge of Albert B. Abrams, for the transaction of its Western business.

DETROIT, MICH.—John V. Sheehan & Co. will remove their stock of books and stationery to 178 Woodward Avenue, where they will have larger and more commodious quarters for their growing business.

HAMPTON, IA.—Miss M. L. Adams has given a bill of sale to her book and stationery store.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Booksellers' Protective and Collecting Association has incorporated with a capital of $500. The directors are M. C. Piers, 538 Lenox Avenue; S. F. Areson, and J. M. Carter, all of New York City.

NEW YORK CITY.—In noticing the purchase, by Charles L. Bowman & Co., of the retail department of J. A. Hill & Co., in our last week's issue, the linotype confused our announcement by translating the firm name Charles L. Brown & Co., though a few lines further on the name of the senior member of the firm was given correctly as Charles L. Bowman. The error was so obvious that correction seems hardly necessary; nevertheless, the trade should bear in mind that it is Charles L. Bowman & Co. who have succeeded to the retail business of J. A. Hill & Co., and not another concern.

NORWICH, N. Y.—H. H. Higley, bookseller, has been succeeded by William Griffing.

PERU, NEB.—John Patterson, bookseller, has sold out to Mrs. K. Brundson.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY announce a volume of poems, entitled "The Soul's Progress," by Louis V. Ledoux; also, "Old English Wood Carving," by Margaret F. Malim.

WILLIAM BURGYES HADLEY, well known to the trade through his connection with H. S. Stone & Co., and more recently with Grosset & Dunlap, has been appointed manager of the American branch of Cassell & Company, Limited, and will assume charge on February 11.

WILLIAM J. NAGEL, 6 Ashburton Place, Boston, will publish on the 15th inst. the "Annotated Supplement to the Massachusetts Revised Laws," 1902-1906, compiled by John H. Peck, who was associated with the Commission for the Consolidation and Arrangement of the Public Statutes which reported to the Legislature the draft of the Revised Laws of 1902.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has just brought out in its World Classics Scott's "Lives of the Novelists," with introduction by Austin Dobson; Thackeray's "Pendennis," with introduction by Edmund Gosse; Sheridan's "Plays," with introduction by Joseph Knight; Oliver Wendell Holmes's "The Poet" and "The Professor at the Breakfast Table," with introductions by Dr. W. Robertson Nicoll; and another volume of Burke's complete works.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published, preparatory to Lent and for special use during that season, a number of books, among which are "Briefs for Our Times," by the Rev. Morgan M. Sheedy; "Churchmanship and Labor," by Scott Holland, Percy Dearmer and others; "The King and His Kingdom," by the Dean of Carlisle; "Readings and Prayers for Every Day in Lent," "The Restitution of All Things," by S. Baring-Gould; and "Twelve Gates of the Holy City," by Canon Bodington.

GINN & COMPANY have printed in their text-book bulletin Professor George Lyman Kittredge's monograph on "Some Landmarks in the History of English Grammars," of which a limited number of copies will be sent postpaid to any address. They have also just ready "Types and Breeds of Farm Animals," by Professor Charles S. Plumb, of the Ohio State University, the first of the Country Life Education Series, and the first on the subject published since 1888. Ripley's "Railway Problems," which is nearly ready, treats of the economic and political question of the relation of railways to the State.

THE COLLECTOR AND ART CRITIC COMPANY, No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City, will publish immediately under the title of "Whistler's Notes and Footnotes, and Other Memoranda," by "A. E. G.," a set of about a dozen "essays in little" concerning themselves with certain phases of modern art. Several of these essays have Whistler for their subject, while Leonardo da Vinci and Puvis de Chavannes as caricaturists, Bernard Boutet de Monvel, Beardsley, Everett Shinn and Childe Hassam suggest the range of the other papers. Numerous plates of an unusual character enrich the volume, including two hitherto unpublished works by Whistler, one of which, a unique study of flowers, is reproduced in colors.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish in March "The Ministry of David Baldwin," by Henry T. Colestock, a novel dealing with the life struggle of a young clergyman who could not suppress the truth, in which is outlined in an intensely human manner the conflict between old school theologians and modern critics, with illustrations by E. Boyd Smith; "Orthodox Socialism," by James Edward Le Rossignol, professor in the University of Denver, widely known for his books and lectures on economic subjects, who in his new book approaches a great subject from a new viewpoint, and discusses it in a fair-minded, thorough-going way; "Christ's Secret of Happiness," by Dr. Lyman Abbott, a suggestive book in an optimistic vein, written in the author's ablest manner, and of special value for Easter gifts; "The Greatest Fact in Modern History," by the Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Ambassador to Great Britain, who shows in a rapid, but clean-cut survey of historic events what the "fact" is; also, "The Religious Value of the Old Testament," by Ambrose White Vernon, professor in Dartmouth College, whose book profits by the light modern criticism and research has thrown on the Bible and its manner of authorship in an important way.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR COMPANY have in preparation for the spring and summer the following books: "The Gothic Quest," a special plea for the use of Gothic architecture in this country, by Ralph Adams Cram, of the well-known Boston firm of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, who have recently come into more than usual prominence by receiving the contract for the magnificent new Gothic buildings of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and author of "Impressions of Japanese Architecture;" "Dimbie and I," a new book by Mrs. Mabel Barnes-Grundy, whose "Hazel of Heatherland" won for her the affection of discerning readers; "Art Principles in Portrait Photography," by Otto Walter Beck, Instructor of Art in Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, which treats of the processes of dealing with backgrounds and the manipulation of the plate with a view of obtaining effects said to be hitherto unknown in photography; "The Sowing of Alderson Cree," by Miss Margaret Prescott Montague, author of that charming idyllic novel, "The Poet, Miss Kate and I," who in her new work tells a feud story different from its predecessors in similar fields in that the scene is laid in the West Virginia mountains and the feud, begun under a misapprehension, ends in a dramatic situation totally unexpected; also, "The Golden Hawk," a story of Provence in the present day, by Edith Rickert, author of "Folly," with illustrations by Stanislaus Benda. David Belasco, the versatile manager playwright, has collaborated with Charles A. Byrne in compiling a series of unusual fairy tales. These have been published in New York with the imprint of the Baker & Taylor Co., under the title of "A Book of Fairy Tales." As might be expected, the book has the well-known Belasco touch, and is fully illustrated by George Bleekman.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will bring out on the 26th inst. Thomas W. Lawson's Wall Street novel, "Friday, the 13th," which will have a frontispiece drawn by Ivanowski, the famous Russian artist, whose most recent work to attract attention was the painting of Maude Adams in "Peter Pan" that appeared in The Century. They will publish in March, under the title of "Nearest the Poles," Commander Peary's complete story of his latest Arctic expedition. On this trip Peary did for the American segment of the Polar Basin what Nansen did for the Asiatic. The narrative is said to be exceedingly dramatic. Peary has been north seven times, oftener than any other explorer, and the Hubbard Gold Medal presented by President Roosevelt on behalf of the National Geographical Society is the fiftieth he has received for his distinguished achievements in exploration. His discoveries are of marked importance and will add greatly to geographic knowledge. There will be an introduction by President Roosevelt. The work will be adequately illustrated from the collection of 1200 photographs taken by Commander Peary. They also announce for early publication a new book by Edward Noble, author of "The Edge of Circumstance," to be entitled "The Issue." It is a story of two strong men who struggle for a woman's love, of which the scenes are laid along the Thames among the sturdy folk of the sea. Another book soon to make its appearance is "Nimrod's Wife," by Grace Gallatin Thompson Seton. It is in a sense a companion book to the author's successful book, "A Woman Tenderfoot," and gives an account of her trips with her artist-author husband, full of practical and suggestive hints to the increasing number of women who find pleasure in out-of-door expeditions. The various chapters are as follows: In the Sierras, In the Rockies, On the Ottawa, and In Norway. The volume will be illustrated by Walter King Stone.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY's list of fiction for the coming spring includes a new novel by Marion Crawford, "Prima-Donna," which is said to be a sequel to "Fair Margaret;" Jack London's romance of prehistoric man, "Before Adam;" "The Gulf," a story in comedy vein, by John Luther Long; and "Poppea of the Post Office," by the author of "The Garden of a Commuter's Wife." Besides these there is "Spirit Lake," a story of the Northwest Indians, by Arthur Heming, the well-known illustrator; "The Kinsman," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, a favorite English author; "Family Secrets," by Marion Foster Washburne, and volumes of short stories by Israel Zangwill and Jack London. Under the heading of Poetry and Belles-Lettres, announcement is made of a new dramatic poem by Stephen Phillips, a second volume of verse by Alfred Noyes, the second volume of the collected edition of W. B. Yeats's "Lyrical and Dramatic Poems," and a new dramatic poem, "Sappho and Phaon," by Percy MacKaye. The Modern Reader's Bible is to be issued in a single volume, two additions are promised to the Macmillan series of Plays by Clyde Fitch, "Her Own Way" and "The Girl and the Judge," and an important critical work by Professor George P. Baker is entitled "The Development of Shakespeare as a Dramatist." In Biography their list is headed by the "Life and Letters of Edwin Lawrence Godkin," in two volumes, edited by Rollo Ogden, editor of the New York Evening Post. A number of new volumes are promised in the English Men of Letters series, including one on "Emerson," by Professor George E. Woodberry. In history the list is long and imposing. The completion of Professor Smyth's edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin" is promised, and new volumes are forthcoming in Professor Channing's "History of the United States," Dr. Lea's "History of the Inquisition of Spain," Professor Osgood's "The American Colonies in the Seventeenth Century," and The Cambridge Modern History. A fresh and interesting subject is exploited by Professor Edmond S. Meany, of the University of Washington, in an account of "Vancouver's Discovery of Puget Sound."

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties

The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics

Two Volumes. Cloth. $2.50

THIS anthology presents the best examples of Irish Songs and Lyrics from the earliest Bardic literature, the folk songs, street ballads and patriotic poetry; the pathetic, romantic and sentimental poetry; the humorous and convivial verse with which the Irish literature abounds, and the refined, tender and mystical spirit which breathes in the poetry of the Irish Renaissance of to-day.

In compiling this collection the editor has had the advantage of the critical judgment of some of the foremost Irish scholars and poets, among whom may be mentioned Dr. Douglas Hyde, Stephen Lucine Gwynn, Lady Gregory, D. J. O'Donoghue, as well as the best English scholars on this side of the Atlantic, including Professor F. N. Robinson, who occupies the Celtic chair at Harvard University; Dr. Maurice F. Egan, of the Catholic University, in Washington; S. R. Richardson.

A NEW NOVEL BY A NEW WRITER

HUGO By ARNOLD BENNETT

12mo. Cloth, Gilt top - - - $1.50

A NOVEL OF MODERN TIMES AND THEMES

IN this story of "Hugo," Arnold Bennett has adroitly contrived to combine two of the most popular phases of modern fiction—the commercial romance and the detective tale. Hugo, the central character, is founder and proprietor of the greatest department store on earth, a London establishment which combines every retail function. The action of the story begins with Hugo's sudden infatuation for a beautiful girl in his millinery department; from this start, the plot proceeds to interweave until it accumulates mysteries within mysteries and would puzzle the most inveterate student of the intricacies of crime.

—San Francisco Chronicle.

NEW YORK "SUN"—Very interesting,—carries the reader along breathlessly.

BOSTON "TRANSCRIPT."—The story is clever.

NEW YORK "HERALD"—If you want excitement, Mr. Bennett is the man for your money.

CHICAGO "INTER-OCEAN"—Decidedly out of the ordinary * * * Exciting reading from beginning to end.

NEW YORK "EVENING SUN"—A clever tale.

NEW YORK "NATION"—It is as fantastic, as adventurous, as disconcerting as any of Stevenson's inventions.

"BOOK-NEWS"—If you want a thriller with a complicated plot, try Hugo.

"PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY"—The plot is ingenious and exciting.

"Do you ever find it difficult to concentrate your mind on one subject for any length of time? Do you know that you use only one-half of your brain? Does your brain originate thought or do you? Do you know why you believe you shall live again after death?"

THE DUST OF CONFLICT

A NOVEL

By HAROLD BINDLOSS

Author of "Alton of Somasco"

Price

Illustrated

by
W. Herbert
Dunton

HAROLD BINDLOSS is one of the best writers of adventurous romance now being published. His ALTON OF SOMASCO sold remarkably well last year, but the new story is still better. The publishers are so confident of its success that they have gone to large expense to make it a truly handsome book. The illustrations are in full color from oil paintings, and the cover is very striking.

It is a story of rapid movement; the sort that "carries the reader along." The action is chiefly in Cuba just before the Spanish War. The blowing up of the "Maine" makes a dramatic point in the plot. With a manly, vigorous hero and charming heroine, the love element gives a delightful turn to the account of strife.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. will bring out early in March "The Cage," a story of the Haymarket riot in Chicago, by Charlotte Teller.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish shortly a volume of essays by Professor Gayley, of the University of California, which will probably be named after the essay entitled "What is Comparative Literature?"

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in preparation a second novel by John Reed Scott, whose first book, "The Colonel of the Red Huzzars," was one of the successes of 1906.

The story will be entitled "Beatrix of Clare," and while the scene is laid in England in the reign of Richard III., it will not be a historical novel.

THE CUPPLES & LEON Co. have made arrangements with E. P. Dutton & Co. for the exclusive right to reproduce the Dutton booklets known as the Gem Series, certain copies of which have formerly been published by Cupples & Leon as the Eureka Art Series. E. P. Dutton & Co. having successfully defended their claim to the exclusive right to publish these books, they will protect these rights and the rights they have assigned to the Cupples & Leon Co. against any one who copies these books or in any way infringes their rights.

DUFFIELD & Co. will bring out on the 23d inst. a volume entitled "The Spirit of Labor," by Hutchins Hapgood, author of "The Autobiography of a Thief," the life-story of a Chicago labor leader and trade unionist, throwing much new light on the important subject of the conflict between labor and capital; also, "Success in Life," by Emil Reich, author of "Success Among Nations," which is said to be crammed full of vitally interesting suggestions on how to be successful in whatever walk of life. They have in preparation for March five new books, of which announcement is made in our advertising pages.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 27th inst., in honor of the centennial of Longfellow's birth, a volume entitled "Henry Wadsworth Longfellow," containing a sketch of his life by Professor Charles Eliot Norton, together with Longfellow's chief autobiographical poems. Professor Norton's memoir consists of some forty pages, and dwells with special emphasis upon Longfellow's personality. The book contains two portraits and is issued in three different editions to suit the wide range of Longfellow's admirers. They also have in preparation an illustrated Centennial edition of Longfellow's "Hanging of the Crane," which will be issued very shortly.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready a book by the Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer, of All Souls' Unitarian Church in New York City, entitled "The Way to Happiness," in which the author reveals himself as an optimist of the healthy and practical kind, who believes in happiness as, on the whole, the normal plan of nature; also, "Elementary English Composition," by T. F. Huntington, an attractive text-book for school use as well as a helpful and interesting guide to students outside of the schools who are trying to learn how to write. They announce for next week a story by Owen Wister, the title of which suggests rich comic possibilities, "How Doth the Simple Spelling Bee Impruv Each Shining Ower." Mr. Wister seems in a fair way to achieve recognition as an out and out humorist. Every one remembers the delicious story of Em'ly, the loosed hen, in "The Virginian;" "Lady Baltimore" was that rarity, a novel in the true comic spirit, while the new story is broad farce, with more than a tinge of good natured satire.

An exhaustive study of one of the descendants of the great republican, Lucius Junius Brutus, who was born in the year 85 B.C. He was a favorite of Julius Cæsar and accompanied him to Rome in the year 45 B.C. An ardent republican Decimus Brutus was easily won over by the liberators, among whom was his kinsman, Marcus Junius Brutus, with whom Decimus Brutus has often been confused. It was Decimus Brutus who, on March 15, after Cæsar had already made up his mind to send Antonius to dismiss the Senate, urged the dictator not to heed the dreams of a woman and the prophecies of foolish men, and who prevailing on him, led Cæsar by the hand into the curia Pompeia, where he was murdered. Decimus Brutus seems to have had no part in the actual slaying of his friend and patron. After the assassination he left Rome for Cisalpine Gaul, his province. He was eventually overcome by the combined forces of Antonius and Octavianus, and was beheaded within a year and a half after Cæsar's assassination.

Frost, Rev. W: Albert Crawford. The philosophy of integration: an explanation of the universe and of the Christian religion; ed. by Ja. Wilson Bright. Bost., Mayhew Publishing Co., 1906, [1907.] c. '06. 5+183 p. D. cl., $1.

Author was for some years rector of the Memorial Church of the Holy Comforter, Baltimore; now recently instructor of chemistry in the Baltimore Medical College. He states that this system of thought, which was published in outline in 1896 under the title, "Old dogma in a new light," resembles, on the one hand, the idealistic philosophy of Hegel, and, on the other, the synthetic philosophy of Spencer. The two indestructible powers of the universe are force and energy—force which integrates and contracts, energy which disintegrates and destroys. The author represents force as God, the Unifier, the Integrator, and energy as the activity of the devil, the Destroyer, the Disintegrator. He traces the process of integration in the creation, the incarnation, Christ's miracles, teachings, death, resurrection and ascension, in the founding and aims of the Christian church and in man's final destiny.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 16, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AUCTION SEASON OF 1906.

THE auction season of 1905-1906 in this country, according to all reports, surpassed all previous seasons, so far as record of them was kept, in the number of lots sold and in the total sum realized. According to Mr. Luther S. Livingston, in his latest volume of "American Book-Prices Current,"* 139,383 lots were sold at 414 sessions, in 182 catalogues, of which 14,600 have found place in the record of Mr. Livingston's volume.

Although the quality of the material offered has been generally good, that is, grist for the mill of the second-hand bookseller, extremely rare books that appeal to the collector, with a few exceptions, were conspicuous by their absence.

The highest price paid during the season for a single volume was $1500 for a copy of Poe's second book, "Al Aaraaf, Tamerlane and Minor Poems," Baltimore, 1829, at the Appleton sale at Libbie's in May. William Nelson's copy of this book, with Poe's autograph, and numerous corrections in his hand, sold in the Pierce sale, in 1903, for $1825. Uncut copies of the book, according to Mr. Livingston, had previously brought from $1100 to $1300. The next highest price for a single volume was $1300 for a third quarto of "The Merchant of Venice," London, 1637, a duplicate from the Lenox collection sold for the New York Public Library by Anderson in May. The recent increase in the value of all early editions of the separate plays of Shakespeare, the four folios, and early books by contemporaries which refer, even in the obscurest or remotest manner, to Shakespeare, is perhaps the most notable advance in prices that has taken place in recent years and one that is most likely to be permanent.

The lot for which the highest price was paid during the season was $8950 for a set of the four folios of Shakespeare, in the Henry G. Denny collection sold by Libbie's in January, 1906. This apparently low price—when it is remembered that the MacGeorge set sold privately in 1905 for £10,000—is accounted for by the fact that the Denny copy of the first folio lacked several leaves at the beginning and end, which were replaced by facsimiles, and that the third folio also had two leaves in facsimile in front and two at the back.

A set of Audubon's "Birds and Quadrupeds," both the original folio editions, and both with the accompanying text, in all fifteen volumes, folio and octavo, in the Kemble collection, was sold by Henkels in April for $4350.

Among the notable collections sold were those of William S. Appleton, Sir John Bourinot, the Hon. Samuel W. Pennypacker, Albert M. Palmer, T. S. Drowne, Charles L. Peabody, Charles A. Lighthipe, William H. Terry and Wilberforce Eames.

Several notable collections of autographs were also disposed of, and the popularity of these sales is evidence that interest in autographs among collectors is decidedly on the increase. More lots are being offered at auction and the prices of the specimens of the better class are steadily rising.

In England the book auction season has also been a notable one, at least so far as the number of surprises in the way of rare and extraordinary books and manuscripts is concerned, which may account for the fact that the estimated average price a volume fetched, according to J. H. Slater in his "Book Prices Current," for 1905-1906,† is £2 11s. 3d., against $9 the volume realized in the American auction rooms. Finely illuminated manuscripts and (unfortunately imperfect) specimens of the work of England's first printer on the one hand and Shakespeare and Shelley on the other provided the surprises. The manuscripts—many of them, as usual, Books of Hours—brought high prices, some over six hundred pounds, and the Caxtons also went well. Messrs. Hodgson, as already noted by us, had the good fortune to discover among some books sent them for disposal three imperfect Caxtons bound in one volume of contemporary binding. The volume realized £470. In the library of the late Dr. Richard Garnett were three note-books with entries in the hand-writing of Shelley, which Dodd, Mead & Co. bought for £3000, presumably for Frederic R. Halsey, the owner of the finest Shelley collection in America. In the Hodgson sale, which realized £10,852, Blake's "Songs of Innocence," 1789, sold for £107; Chaucer, 1475, (another Caxton, also imperfect,) brought one hundred guineas; the publications of the Kelmscott Press, twenty-five volumes, (including the Chaucer,) all printed on vellum, totalled £744, and the original manuscripts of two dozen of the works of William Morris brought £1239 5s. At the same sale the copy of the second edition of Spenser's "Shepheardes Calendar," 1581, was purchased for £180 by Dodd, Mead & Co. There are only two other examples of this edition in America, and one of these has the last leaf in facsimile. The copy of the original Latin edition of Drake's second voyage, Leyden, 1588, which realized £340 at the Sutherland sale, was also bought for an American collector.

*LIVINGSTON, Luther S., comp. American Book-Prices Current: a record of books, manuscripts and autographs sold at auction in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, from September 1, 1905, to September 1, 1906, with the prices realized. [v. 12.] N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1906. c. 20+774 p. 8°, cl. (693 copies.)

†SLATER, J. H., comp. Book-Prices Current: a record of the prices at which books have been sold at auction, from October, 1905, to July, 1906, being the season of 1905-1906. v. 20. Lond., Elliot Stock, 1906. 10+746 p. 8°, cl.

The records of recent English auction sales, according to Mr. Slater, show conclusively that examples of early English printing; Americana of a certain well-defined era; old editions of the English classics, particularly plays and poems; books containing autograph inscriptions, the value of the book qua book being comparatively trifling; and manuscripts, mediæval and artistic, or modern and classic, so long as they are classic enough—all these are in such demand that the supply falls hopelessly short. These are the important books of the day while other classes have been, within the last few years, slipping into the background—why no one can tell except that the decrees of fashion have so ordained it.

APROPPOS of auction sales, the London Times congratulates British book collectors on the fact that, while rich American collectors are outbidding all others for rare books in the auction rooms, yet every season's list of book sales in London contains a library from New York, Boston or some other American city. This, the writer in The Times admits, is not because book auctions in America are not well conducted; but the idea seems to be that Americans still regard London as the best market for rare books. American first editions and other "rarities" may not often sell well in England, but for such material as mentioned by Mr. Slater in the foregoing paragraph English and Continental markets are still decidedly the best in which to obtain fair prices.

THE copyright measure has a fair chance of consideration in each house of Congress within a few days, being early on the calendar in the Senate and on the privileged calendar in the House. Both committees are likely to recommend some further changes, chiefly in the line of making clear provisions which have seemed doubtful or inadequate. The most important is in relation to copyright term, on which the recommendation will probably be for an alternative of life and thirty years or fifty years, whichever may prove the longer period, with a forty-two-year period for periodicals, collective and corporate works, etc. The serious difference between the majority of the Senate committee on the one side and the House committee, with the minority of the Senate committee, on the other side, in relation to the protection of musical authors is the most serious danger before the bill in this crowded short session, and this may prevent its passage.

DIME NOVELS IN GERMANY.

THE "dime novel" is said to be ravaging Germany. According to Johannes Siebert, most German boys prefer an Indian story to any other book. Their hearts beat fast as they read the adventures of trappers and settlers, gaze with awe into wigwams, and hear the howls of the wolves. This interest began with the publication, in 1823, of "The Spy," by Cooper, followed soon by his other stories. These novels, however, did not seem quite suitable for boys, so they were bearbeitet, or edited for the young folks. Later, the adapters began to construct their own plots and incidents, out-Coopering their model in his most adventurous moods. The results, says Siebert, are terrible to contemplate. There are in Germany about 500 "Grosso" [wholesale publishing] firms, with 3000 travellers, to sell such books. An edition of 700,000 is not an unusual thing. They are adorned with glaring illustrations, and one may buy such a volume of perhaps 250 pages for about the price of the nickle libraries published in this country.

WORK OF HOSPITAL BOOK AND NEWSPAPER SOCIETY.

No less than 6062 books, 27,813 magazines, 37,797 weekly and illustrated papers and 218,621 daily and Sunday papers were distributed during the year ended September 30 by the Hospital Book and Newspaper Society, according to its thirty-second annual report, just issued. In all 300,647 pieces of reading matter have been handled, classified and properly distributed. The daily papers, collected from the boxes placed at railway and ferry stations, hotels and downtown street corners in New York City, are sent the same day to the institutions on Blackwell's and Ward's islands, where they help to brighten the lives of more than 30,000 people. The books and magazines that are sent out of New York City go to lonely lightship and frontier posts, to convict camps and mountain villages and remote schools, South and West, where they are received with warm gratitude.

Owing to the withdrawal by most of the express companies of free passes, many calls from long distances have recently had to be disregarded for lack of funds. The report says that $500 or $600 a year more would enable the society to reach many remote places which now appeal in vain. There also many requests for German, French and Italian books or papers—in fact, for reading matter in any language. Contributions of reading matter should be sent to the office, No. 105 East Twenty-second Street, Room 417; contributions of money to the treasurer, Mrs. J. O. Green, No. 13 Lexington Avenue.

METHODIST BOOK CONCERN TO MERGE FACTORIES.

CONSOLIDATION of the manufacturing departments of the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church is to be perfected at the sessions of the Book Committee, which began its annual meeting at No. 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City, on February 13.

It is recommended that a suitable structure for manufacturing purposes be erected elsewhere than at 150 Fifth Avenue, to which shall be transferred the work of manufacturing, distributing and accounting that is to be concentrated in New York.

This committee has general supervision over the publishing business of the church, which is one of the most extensive publishing businesses in the world.

In the report presented on the 13th inst. by Chancellor Day, of Syracuse, N. Y., who headed the committee which prepared it, the Book Committee is directed to carry the plan as agreed on into effect so far as may be practicable at once, and also in due time to formulate and present to the next General Conference, in 1908, such changes in the discipline of the church as may be required for the operation of the new general plan.

The change of name of the "Methodist Book Concern" to "The Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church," as given in the general plan, will be determined by the General Conference.

Paragraph eight concentrates the publication of all periodicals, with the exception of the several Christian Advocates, at Cincinnati. Paragraph nine concentrates the publication of books at New York. Paragraph ten provides for the auditing of accounts. Paragraph eleven relates to the several Christian Advocates. The paper known simply as The Christian Advocate, which is published in New York, edited by Dr. J. M. Buckley, remains untouched, but it is recommended that the Western, the Northwestern and the Central be consolidated under the name of the Central Christian Advocate, to be published in Chicago.

McGRAW PUBLISHING CO.'S NEW QUARTERS.

THE McGRAW PUBLISHING COMPANY is putting up an eleven-story building in New York City, on the north side of Thirty-ninth Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenue, occupying a frontage of 126 feet and a depth of 90 feet.

The building has been designed with particular reference to the requirements of the firm's publishing business. The site is in the centre of the New York haunts of the engineering profession—the United Engineering Societies Building and the Engineers' Club being near. The McGraw Building is in the heart of the hotel district, and the new terminal of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the New York Central Terminal at Forty-second Street will offer postal facilities of great value to a publishing organization.

The main press-room will be in the basement, and the composing room, bindery and mailing room on the first and second floors. The book department of the company is to be located on the first floor and the editorial and business offices on one of the upper floors in the most advantageous position relative to the manufacturing department. There will thus be at least four floors devoted to the business of the McGraw Publishing Company. The remainder of the building will be rented for offices and loft purposes.

The McGraw Company publishes three weekly technical periodicals, the Electrical World, the Engineering Record and the Street Railway Journal, which are designed to cover the entire engineering field. Other periodicals are a "Central Station List and Buyers' Manual," published semi-annually; the "Electric Railway Directory," published three times a year, and the Electrochemical and Metallurgical Industry, published monthly. The company's list of books is an important one, and is growing steadily.

ART AND THE PRINTING PRESS.

"Art has to-day become peculiarly democratic through the agency of the printing press," says John Cotton Dana in The Printing Art for February. "Accuracy, delicacy and refinement may surely be taught by a beautiful page of print," and Mr. Dana's article is descriptive of the printing press as the medium of artistic expression, not only in words but in illustrations; not only in fine type and arrangement of heads and initials, but in etchings, engravings and lithographs.

Even the daily paper makes for the democratization of art in its carefully studied make-up, its balance of heavy and light fonts of type, its well-grouped illustrations. These last have great educational value, Mr. Dana thinks, as well as artistic merit.

In the weekly and monthly magazines the press gives us the work of many very able artists, which "can and do help many thousands to become, almost unbeknown to themselves, critical and appreciative of better things.

"If one doubts the power of print in art education he need only look at the character of the average of books to-day and compare it with the average of even twenty-five years ago to see how great progress has been made in this one product of the press. This progress, moreover, is due in large part to the demand of book-readers and book-buyers that their books be more beautiful. . . . Beauty in books is of a refined kind which does not jump to the eyes as it sometimes seems to in objects of other sorts. But many must have learned its secret, or publishers would not have put artists behind their presses to produce them."

The press is not helping all persons to a knowledge and appreciation of art, because, says Mr. Dana, "art is assumed to be confined to certain forms of expression, and the schools and the purists generally have encouraged the growth of the feeling that a printed page and a picture reproduced on a common printing press are not within art's high domain. Our backwardness in the decorative arts is doubtless in part due to this worship of paint and canvas."

THE DECAY OF ILLUSTRATION.

F. C. TILNEY, who is an illustrator himself, has written a long letter in the Academy on "The Decay of Illustration." It is not, he thinks, as bad as it seems. He says that "the dozen or so of illustrators in the famous sixties can be more than matched to-day," but then he goes on to deplore the present market prices for work in this field, which he thinks are not high enough to tempt all the capable hands available, and he has other charges to bring against the publishers and editors. Process work makes it easy to reproduce almost anything. Magazines spring up in preposterous numbers, and since they must all be "fully illustrated," the feeblest drawings are accepted at the cheapest prices, merely to fill space. Immature students are employed because competent artists are considered too expensive. "All this," says the New York Tribune, "is very sad, and if it applies to the whole situation in England, our heart bleeds for the down-trodden British illustrator. But we wonder if Mr. Tilney is quite accurate in his presentation of the case. In this country, at all events, no illustrator worth his salt need complain of inability to earn a good living. In spite of the photograph and the half-tone his services are always in demand. In fact it is not uncommon, we believe, for the illustrator of an article or story to be paid more for his drawings than is paid to the author."

PRINTERS' LEAGUE OF AMERICA.

To establish peace between the printers of New York who employ union help and their employes who are members of Typographical Union No. 6 about fifty owners of New York printing establishments met on the evening of February 5, in the Union Square Hotel, and adopted by-laws and part of a constitution. The new organization will be known as the Printers' League of America.

The convention was called to order by Charles Francis, president of the league, who explained that he had received many messages from employing printers who were unable to be present, but who sent word that they would abide by any action taken by the convention. Mr. Francis declared that in the last big strike in New York City, which began in January, 1906, $8,000,000 had been spent by employers and employes.

In addition to its main object of avoiding strikes by conciliation and arbitration, it is the intention of the Printers' League to discard individual labor contracts and instead introduce the system of collective labor contracts. It will also seek to provide a plan of adjusting disputes under existing contracts through a court of arbitration.

Another meeting of the League will be called in March. Thus far, we understand, none of the larger and more important firms has expressed its intention of joining the movement.

WATCH OUT FOR CHECK SWINDLER.

A CLEVER check swindler is abroad, and has already obtained books and cash from at least one bookseller in New York. The man is about fifty years of age, of medium height and weight, has iron grey hair and moustache and dark eyes. In one bookstore he selected several books which he desired held for instructions—they were eventually to be sent to his sister—and several other books he took away with him. In payment he offered a check for $24.75, drawn on the State Bank of Chicago, payable to N. B. Sears, signed "Barbee Wire and Iron Works, per G. R. Rix, Treas.," and obtained ten dollars cash in change. The swindler claims to be the expert accountant of the Barbee firm. Needless to say the check came back marked "N. G."

FOR THE KEATS-SHELLEY FUND.

AN entertainment was given in the afternoon of the 14th inst. at the Waldorf-Astoria, in New York City, to aid the Keats-Shelley memorial in Rome. There were present in the audience Mrs. Grover Cleveland and representatives of the English and Italian Embassies. On the stage, the decorations of which were arranged by Carroll Beckwith, the artist, were Edmund Clarence Stedman, who presided; Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart, Miss Julia Marlowe, Miss Beatrice Herford, Mark Twain, the Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, F. Hopkinson Smith and Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, all of whom took part in the exercises.

In his introductory remarks Mr. Stedman made special reference to Robert Underwood Johnson, secretary of the committee, who has made two journeys to Rome and done much hard work in the interest of the memorial.

Mark Twain read the "Memorabilia" ("Ah, did you once see Shelley Plain?") as a pendant to Shelley's ode "To a Skylark." Miss Julia Marlowe recited from Keats's "Ode on a Grecian Urn," preceded by the lyric "In a Drear-nighted December," and the sonnet "Fame, like a wayward girl." Mrs. Wellman sang a group of songs to Shelley's words, and also Browning's "The Year's at the Spring." Dr. S. Weir Mitchell and Henry Van Dyke read appropriate selections, and the humor was furnished by F. Hopkinson Smith, in a part of "Colonel Carter's Christmas," Miss Beatrice Herford in monologues, and Mrs. Ruth McEnery Stuart in plantation sketches.

The programmes, which sold at $1 each, had beautifully decorated covers in colors, and contained portraits of the two poets, a picture showing the Keats house in Rome, which is to be turned into a memorial building, and pictures of the graves of the poets in the Protestant cemetery in the same city, with facsimiles of manuscript, etc. As near as could be estimated, the reading added between two and three thousand dollars to the fund.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL DINNER.

ABOUT one hundred members of the Stationers' Board of Trade attended the annual dinner given on the evening of February 14 at the Waldorf-Astoria. Henry C. Bainbridge, the president, introduced the post-prandial portion of the evening's entertainment in a brief speech congratulating the Board on its good work in the past and urging co-operation in making the Board still more useful. Among the speakers were the Hon. George L. Record, Corporation Counsel of Jersey City, who spoke on "Modern Business Methods," dwelling particularly on the relations between wage-earners and employers, and the need of courts of arbitration. E. S. A. De Lima spoke at length on the Extension of Our Commerce, and Joseph A. Lawson, of Albany, a member of the legal fraternity, spoke pithily on the desirability of cultivating a more altruistic view of life.

THERE WAS NO LORD BACON.

APROPOS of Dr. Karl Bleibtreu's new theory about the origin of Shakespeare's plays, a correspondent writes to the London Chronicle as follows: "When will the British public learn to call things (and men) by their correct names? There is no such person in history as 'Lord Bacon.' The great Elizabethan, who, by a few modern idiots, is accused of having written the plays, was by name Sir Francis Bacon, Baron Verulam, Viscount St. Albans. In no standard work of reference is he spoken of as 'Lord Bacon.'"

COMMUNICATIONS.

A VIRGINIA BOOKSELLER GIVES UP.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: As it is a custom with you to note changes of any public character among the booksellers of the country, it occurred to me that you had better have the following information first hand.

After more than one-third of a century I have come to the reluctant decision that I cannot afford to remain longer in the book and stationery business, and after April 1 there will be no "Stanton's Old City Bookstore."

I will quit just about where I began, with my original investment intact and nothing to show for my long service but a family of four children cared for and educated and ready to take hold for themselves.

I believe I will drop out of the ranks with the best wishes and good will of all the trade with whom I have had business relations, and certainly there is no ill feeling on my side towards any individual or firm, though I may not feel any too kindly towards certain methods that have compelled the bookseller to do the work of distribution with too little or perhaps no compensation.

But let that pass, and allow me through these columns to bid a reluctant good-bye to the familiar names and faces that have, for so long, been a part of my every day life, and to my fellow retail bookseller I hope that the day of miracles is yet with us, and that he may perform one by making a great financial success of the book business.

Yours in auld lang syne,

FRANK STANTON.

WHEELING, W. VA., January 23, 1907.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DAVID PECK RHOADES, formerly president of the New York News Company, died on February 3, at his home at Stratford, Conn., aged eighty-three. About three weeks ago Mr. Rhoades slipped and fell, sustaining injuries that resulted in his death. Mr. Rhoades was born in Milford, Conn., in 1824. He came to New York City at an early age. As a boy he sold papers, and then obtained a position with a manufacturing jeweller in the same building in which the New Yorker was published by Horace Greeley. Shortly after, Greeley entrusted Rhoades with his mailing list, and when the New York Tribune was started in 1841 he was made circulation manager of that paper. In 1867 Mr. Rhoades left the Tribune to become president of the New York News Company, from which he retired in 1885 to be succeeded by his son, John W. Rhoades, who is now connected with the American News Company. His grandson, J. Howard Rhoades, several years ago became manager of the New York News Company, which thus for nearly half a century has been successfully conducted by three generations of one family.

SIR WILLIAM HOWARD RUSSELL, the famous war correspondent and since 1858 proprietor and editor of The Army and Navy Gazette, died on the 10th inst. in London. Had he lived until March 28 he would have been eighty-seven years old, having been born in Dublin in 1820. He served the London Times as war correspondent from the Crimean campaign in 1854 down to the Egyptian struggle in 1884. He may be said to have created the art of war correspondence. His power of vivid description was extraordinary and his conversance with military tactics was comprehensive, though the colorings of prejudice very often spoiled his brilliant pictures. This was, for example, the case with his account of the rout of the Union forces at the first battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1861, which, by the way, Dr. Russell, as he was then known, is said never to have witnessed. The description of the behavior and deportment of the Federal forces on that occasion which he sent to London was too much for the sensibilities of the Union leaders, galled as they were by the results of the battle. Dr. Russell left the United States not long thereafter, leaving the American forces North and South to finish their struggle unaided. The nickname of "Bull Run Russell," which was bestowed on him on account of this incident, was not applied either in affection or in admiration of his abilities as a war correspondent. However, he achieved world-wide reputation and was honored with many foreign decorations and orders and, finally, in 1895, he was created a knight. He published many books, among others "Letters from the Crimea," "The British Expedition to the Crimea," "My Diary North and South," in 1862 after he returned to England from the United States; "Canada, Its Defences," "Rifle Clubs and Volunteer Corps," "The Adventures of Dr. Brady," "My Diary in the East with the Prince of Wales" and "Hesperothen, or, Notes from the West."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE REV. DR. WATSON, better known as "Ian Maclaren," author of "Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush," etc., is in New York. He will lecture in this country before returning home.

MISS ALICE A. HOLMES, the blind poetess of Jersey City, N. J., quietly celebrated on February 9 at her home, 223 Warren Street, the eighty-sixth anniversary of her birth. Miss Holmes was born in Wind Farthing, County Norfolk, England, on February 9, 1821, and came to America at the age of eight. On the voyage over she was stricken with smallpox, and when she was discharged from the hospital it was found that her sight had been destroyed. At seventeen she was sent to the New York Institution for the Blind, where she spent seven years. Miss Fanny Crosby, the blind hymn writer, was attending the institution at that time and the young women were close friends. Miss Holmes did not aspire at that time to be a poet. "I idolized Fanny," she said, "and was very fond of her poetry, but it was not until I was about thirty that I began to write. I probably would not have had the courage to write for publication if it hadn't been for Jeanne L. Bruce, a Jersey City poet, who had quite a reputation in her day. She gave me much encouragement and, acting on her advice, I had many little things published." Miss Holmes has had four volumes of poems published and for a long time she supported herself by her pen.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

RICHARD G. BADGER has become the publisher of The Journal of Abnormal Psychology, of which Dr. Morton Prince is editor, with Professor Münsterberg, Dr. Putnam, Dr. Hoch, Dr. Boris Sidis, Dr. Dana and Dr. Meyer as his associates.

THE February issue of The Open Court among other interesting matter contains an informing article by David P. Abbott, entitled "Half Hours with Mediums," which explains some very clever tricks employed by professional mediums to dupe their audiences.

Ridgway's Magazine with its issue for February 9 has suspended publication. In a valedictory editorial Erman J. Ridgway says that experience proved the soundness of the ideas on which his national weekly was based, but the knockout blow came when he tried to carry out his plans on the mechanical side. The public would not put up with a poorly-printed paper, however lofty its purposes, however strong its intellectual equipment, and editions containing late local news in fourteen cities could not be printed on slow presses. Hence the production of the paper was impossible.

THOMAS WATSON, it is announced, is to establish a chain of newspapers through the South, with Thomas H. Tibbles, the Populist leader, as his managing editor and chief editorial writer. Mr. Tibbles, who has been editor of The Investigator in Omaha for the last year, resigned that position on the 9th inst. and will leave shortly for Atlanta, from which point the newspapers will be edited. At the head of the chain will be Watson's Jeffersonian Magazine and his Jeffersonian Weekly, now published in Atlanta. Newspapers will be issued in Atlanta, Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, and later elsewhere. We presume Watson hopes to succeed where Ridgway failed.

THE inaugural number of the Journal of American History has just been issued by the Associated Publishers of American Records, Inc., in the form of a quarto volume of 192 pages. It purports to collect the "various phases of history, art, literature, science, industry, and such as pertains to the moral, intellectual and political uplift of the American nation," and to be a "testimonial of the marked individuality and strong character of the builders of the American republic." It certainly contains much information relating to the above-mentioned matters, and is embellished with reproductions of prints and works of art, seals, coats-of-arms and photographs, together with numerous illustrations in bright colors on tissue paper of the growth of the American flag. The publication is compiled in collaboration with the Connecticut Magazine, and is to be issued quarterly at two dollars a year, or fifty cents a single copy.

NEW YORK CITY.—Francis P. Harper, the publisher and dealer in old books, will remove shortly before May 1 from 14 West Twenty-second Street to the Knabe Building at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street. PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Caxton Book Room, 250 Butler Exchange, is the new location of J. H. McCahey, who for over a quarter of a century has been identified with the book and stationery trade of this city. The past sixteen years he was buyer for the Callender, McAuslan & Troup Co., and during the recent holidays he had the O'Gorman Co.'s book department under his care.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Thomas Perry, who for eighteen years was associated with Frank Stanton, (who announces his withdrawal from the book business in another column of this issue,) and Mr. Hassell, who for twelve years was in the employ of the Palace Furniture Company, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Perry & Hassell, and will open a book and stationery store at 39 Twelfth Street. They will open up at once with a full line of books and periodicals and stationery and office supplies. Both men are well thought of by a large number of friends and every one wishes them good luck.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

DUFFIELD & COMPANY announce that they will follow the recommendations of the American Publishers' Association with reference to continuing the net price system.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have postponed the publication of A. E. W. Mason's "Running Water," and Frederic C. Penfield's "East of the Suez," from February 27 to March 2.

At a meeting of the officers and the Boost Committee of the New York Boost Club, held on the evening of the 8th inst., it was voted to reduce the dues of the club from $12 to $3 a year.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY have just ready "Norry, Diplomatic Agent," by George Bronson-Howard. The story follows a secret service agent through Panama, Russia, the Orient, and our own Southern States, and is full of surprises.

CHARLES MARCIL, member for Bonaventure County and vice-president of the House of Commons, has been invited to speak, in reply to the toast of "Canada," at the banquet which will follow the convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, on February 21.

THE FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready "Where the Rainbow Touches the Ground," by John Henderson Miller. The story swings around a strong plot. The scene is laid in Missouri, and a cyclone which sweeps the region figures prominently in the book. Mr. Miller, who is a Missouri author of exceptional power, has drawn his sturdy fellow-Missourians in picturesque style, and the book brims over with homely philosophy.

THE Baltimore Sun claims the "Monumental City" to be the centre of the jokebook industry, and devotes nearly two columns of its issue for January 20 to prove its claim by describing the I. & M. Ottenheimer publishing house, which every year turns out this class of reading matter by the hundreds of thousands. The annual demand for each of a number of their jokebooks is sixty thousand. These books are handled exclusively by newsdealers and by trainboys.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just brought out a volume entitled "The American Idea," by L. K. Commander, a remarkable compilation of the views of representative people all over the country concerning the number of children the normal American family should contain; also, "A Short History of Social England," by M. B. Syngé, a sketch of the material conditions in which our English ancestors lived and died, by one of England's foremost historical writers. They will publish about the middle of March an interesting work on "The Nature and Origin of Life," by Professor Felix le Dantec, of the Faculty of Sciences at the Sorbonne, Paris, who presents this most vital subject in the light of recent revolutionary discoveries in science. The volume is the second in the New Knowledge Series.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, New York City, will publish on March 25 an entirely new adaptation of Isaac Pitman's shorthand to the Spanish language. In this text the principles of phonography have been closely adhered to, modifications being made only where the differences in the language to be represented rendered it absolutely necessary. The new work is written entirely in Spanish, and is complete in itself, so that the student who is acquainted with the Spanish language may readily learn Spanish shorthand without reference to any other text-book. The scheme of lessons in this work follows the plan developed in "Isaac Pitman's Short Course in Shorthand." Considerable attention has been devoted to the important matter of Spanish correspondence, and there are exercises in shorthand and in ordinary type sufficient to give the student a thorough drilling in the reading and writing of business communications.

THE OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, have added to their important series of masterpieces of song and piano music—The Musicians' Library—"Thirty Piano Compositions by Felix Mendelssohn." The compositions, edited by Percy Goetschius, have been selected chiefly with a view to presenting the composer's characteristics in the most striking manner; but they also include those of Mendelssohn's works which have become in the best sense popular. The object of the editor's revision has been accurate definition of the phrasing and notation, careful and systematic fingering, and a few general directions concerning interpretation and the use of the pedal. Daniel Gregory Mason has furnished a discerning essay on Mendelssohn's art and style, and there has also been included a bibliography including books and articles in books. The book has been carefully and handsomely printed at the Merrymount, a hall-mark of good work, and contains a fine portrait of Mendelssohn.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. are to publish the series of books thus far produced in response to the annual prizes given by Hart, Schaffner & Marx, of Chicago, for the best "Essays in Economics." They are "The Causes, Extent, and Recent Indications of Progress in Germany," by Earl Dean Howard; "The Causes of the Panic of 1893," by William J. Lauck; "What Method of Education is Best Suited to Men Entering Trade or Commerce," by Harlow Stafford Person; "Federal Regulation of Railway Rates," by Albert N. Merritt; and "Should Ship Subsidies Be Offered by the Government of the United States," by Walter T. Dunmore. It will be remembered that the judges awarding these prizes were J. Lawrence Laughlin, J. B. Clarke, Henry C. Adams, Horace White and Carroll D. Wright, names bearing evidence that the munificent donors of the prizes not only were willing to encourage serious work, but were resolved that their gifts should go to the deserving. They have also in preparation Miss Mary Johnston's drama of the French Revolution, entitled "The Goddess of Reason."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will announce for publication during the fall of this year a uniform handy-volume edition of the great writers of fiction, in uniform typography at uniform prices. Dickens, Thackeray, Scott, George Eliot, etc., will be printed from entirely new plates and will appear under the general series heading of The Prairie Classics. Compactness, readability and serviceability will be the features of this edition. The volumes are to be $4\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{4}$ inches in size, (the same as McClurg's well-known World's Best Series—The World's Greatest Short Stories;) the type used is the excellent "Scotch face" made by the Miller & Richard foundry at Edinburgh, and the paper is the famous English "Bible" paper, remarkable for the great number of pages that can be put into small bulk. In the matter of illustrations tradition will be set aside, and each volume will have a frontispiece in colors from the brush of George Alfred Williams, whose recent depictions of characters from Dickens have aroused considerable discussion for their original conception. These first ten titles will be followed during 1908 by another group, and the plan contemplates eventually completing each author.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will publish about the end of the month in conjunction with Chatto & Windus, of London, a remarkable biography of a fascinating woman, being "Julie De Lespinasse" by the Marquis de Segur, who, already favorably known as an author, has found a very able translator in P. H. Lee Warner. Julie excited widespread attention recently as the original of the heroine of Mrs. Ward's "Lady Rose's Daughter." The Marquis has discovered many new sources of information, and has cleared up the mystery hitherto regarded as insoluble, which on one side has hung over the origin of Mlle. de Lespinasse. He also completely refutes many of the calumnies by earlier biographers, and moreover presents for the first time the heroine's letters to her pupil and half brother, Abel de Vichy, letters which throw a pleasant light on her domesticity, family affection, love for children and shrewd commonsense. The only authentic portrait of Mlle. de Lespinasse will be reproduced as a frontispiece. They will follow up their recent volume of three plays by Racine with one of three by Corneille, being that author's "Le Cid," "Horace" and "Polyeucte," edited by Professor W. A. Nitze and Dr. S. L. Galpin, of Amherst College. The combination of these dramas gives an opportunity for a general introduction on the nature and rise of French drama, though there are also separate introductions to the three plays.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish at once "Poison Island," by A. T. Quiller-Couch, a thrilling tale of treasure-seeking, carried on by a band of the quaintest and most original characters, and described in a lively, humorous and absorbing way; "Studies in Pictures," by John C. Van Dyke, author of "Art for Art's Sake," etc., an introduction to the famous galleries, valuable to travellers and lovers of painting; also, "The Spanish Explorers in the Southern United States," a new volume in the series of Original Narratives of Early American History, which contains the narrative of Alvar Nuñez Cabeça de Vaca, the expedition of Coronado, by Pedro de Castañeda, and the expedition of de Soto by the Gentleman of Elvas. Later in the month they will bring out Edith Wharton's new story, "Madame de Treymes," in which an international marriage is analyzed in a keen and effective way; "The Veiled Lady and Other Men and Women," a new volume of stories by F. Hopkinson Smith, which gives in a characteristically amusing and enlivening way the adventures and experiences of a painter and man of the world in Venice, Stamboul and other places; the second volume of "The Book of Psalms," a critical and exegetical commentary by Dr. Charles A. Briggs, which contains the commentary on the remaining hundred Psalms, of the first volume of which competent authorities have declared that it has no superior; also, "Abélard and Heloise," a drama in four acts, by Ridgely Torrence. They also announce "The Life and Work of Auguste Rodin," by Frederick Lawton, with fifty illustrations, many of which have never appeared before in a book.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly two books that have a direct bearing on the Jamestown tri-centennial to be celebrated in April. Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, the author of "Reminiscences of Peace and War," has told, in "The Birth of the Nation," of the beginnings of the Jamestown Colony. Supplementing this will be a superb edition of the "Travels of Captain John Smith," the most important single figure in the story of Jamestown's founding. Of more modern import among the Macmillan spring books is a new and thoroughly revised edition of General Henry L. Abbot's book, "Problems of the Panama Canal." The interests of country life are served by such books as "The Earth's Bounty," by Mrs. Kate V. Saint Maur; "A Book of Vegetables," by Allen French; "Three Acres and Liberty," by Bolton Hall; and a new edition of "Birdcraft," by Mabel Osgood Wright. In religion and philosophy their list is singularly up to date. Professor Alexander V. G. Allen discusses "Freedom in the Church;" Professor Shailer Mathews deals with "The Crisis of the Church;" Professor Joseph Alexander Leighton writes of "Jesus Christ and the Civilization of Today;" Dr. James B. Pratt's subject is "The Psychology of Religious Belief;" Professor Walter Rauschenbusch is the author of "Christianity and the Social Crisis," and Professor Arthur Kenyon Rogers of "The Religious Conception of the World." Books of practical suggestion and teaching are "The Seeming Unreality of the Spiritual Life," by President Henry C. King; and "The Steps of Life," by Carl Hilty. For music lovers there is announcement of the third volume of Grove's "Dictionary of Music and Musicians;" while Professor Thomas Day Seymour's "Life in the Homeric Age," and "Life in Ancient Athens," by Professor T. G. Tucker, will interest students of the ancient world. A long list of scientific and technical works is headed by the "Cyclopedia of American Agriculture," edited by Professor L. H. Bailey, the first volume of which is to be issued next month. This work is to be completed in four volumes. Among other important books in this list are Professor Thomas Hunt Morgan's "Experimental Zoology," and "Economic Geology of the United States," by Heinrich Ries.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" book-sellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties

SPECIAL NOTICE

CUPPLES & LEON CO. announces to the trade that it has made arrangements with E. P. DUTTON & COMPANY by which it has the exclusive right to reproduce the Dutton booklets known as the "Gem Series," certain copies of which have formerly been published by CUPPLES & LEON under the name "Eureka Art Series."

DUTTON & COMPANY having successfully defended in the Courts their claim to the exclusive right to publish these books, they will protect these rights and the rights they have given us against any one who copies said books, or in any other way infringes said rights.

Besides the eighteen titles that CUPPLES & LEON published last year, there has been added to their "Eureka Art Series" eight titles from Dutton's "Gem Series," and also ten titles of their own, making this "Eureka Art Series" of thirty-six especially selected titles the only authorized and legitimate line of these books on the market.

Orders should be placed early to ensure prompt delivery.

While our customers know the promptness and complete manner in which we filled our orders last year, our edition was exhausted so early that we were unable to fill re orders.

For this reason we would advise that orders be placed early to ensure prompt delivery.

The "Iron Way" is the Central Pacific Railroad. The completion of this great enterprise in 1867 provides the material for a story full of action and the power of big events. The author has made skillful use of some of the giant promoters of that day—Leland Stanford, Collis P. Huntington, Mark Hopkins, and Charles Crocker, upon whose initiative the railroad was planned and built. Of course it is not all railroad, for there is a most attractive love story involving the fortunes of Alfred Vincent and Stella Anthony, and there is plenty of the lively action characteristic of California in her early days.

ONE OF THE SIX BEST-SELLERS

"DO YOU THINK?"

"Do you ever find it difficult to concentrate your mind on one subject for any length of time? Do you know that you use only one half of your brain? Does your brain originate thought or do you? Can you control what you shall think about? Have you any existence apart from your brain? Could you talk if some one had not taught you? Do you know what dreams are made of? Do you know why you believe you shall live again after death?"

"We are going to recommend a book to you. We have no interest in it. We recommend it entirely in your interest. It is called 'Brain and Personality,' written in exquisite English, without a technical term in it, by a great specialist, Dr. W. Hanna Thomson, and published by Dodd, Mead & Co. If you wish to know who you are, by all means read that book and then pass it on to your friends. We read a great many books in our business. We have not found one in years that approaches this one in interest or profit. It makes the more dramatic fiction tame. Have the young people read it. You will be grateful to us for calling it to your attention. Have your newsdealer order it for you."—Everybody's Magazine.

NOTES IN SEASON.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will bring out at once a special limited edition, at a popular price, of "Asa Holmes," by Mrs. Annie Fellows Johnston, the author of the famous "Little Colonel" series.

EDWARD J. CLODE has just brought out a new story by Louis Tracy, entitled "The Captain of the Kansas," a stirring sea story—the best, it is thought, that the author has ever written.

DUFFIELD & Co. will publish on March 9 "The Windfall," by Charles Egbert Craddock, (Miss Murfree,) a fascinating modern romance, in which the author introduces the reader to many attractive characters, both from the world of the mountaineers whom she has long made famous and from the upper world of society.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY have in preparation "Sunny," by Margaret A. Frost, daughter of Dr. J. M. Frost, a story which reveals a delightful type of Southern life; "The Church at Libertyville," by the Rev. Dr. J. W. Conley, a story, which in the form of a diary, deals with the various problems, difficulties and annoyances of general church work; also, "The Self-Effacement of Malachi Joseph," by Everett T. Tomlinson, which is specially recommended to the study of the outgoing students of theological seminaries.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish at once "German Religious Life in Colonial Times," by Lucy Forney Bittinger, who for several years brought out another study of the Germans in America, called "The Germans in Colonial Times." In the new volume, her aim has been to make a connected story of all the churches of the period, rather than to follow separately the thread of each particular denomination's annals. They will publish later Arthur Tilley's "Appreciation of Francois Rabelais," in the French Men of Letters series; also, "Running Horse Inn," a new story by Alfred Tresidder Sheppard, who, it is said, has selected a theme that would have suited Thomas Hardy in his earlier days.

JOHN W. LUCE & COMPANY, Boston, will shortly issue, as a Lenten offering, an attractive little book under the title of "The First True Gentleman," a study in the human nature of Jesus, with an introduction by Edward Everett Hale. The author's treatment of his subject has aroused considerable discussion in London, and Dr. Hale's introduction adds a most important word of world-wide interest to the argument. Their recent books are "The Miracle Worker," by Gerald Maxwell, the story of an enthusiastic young surgeon, the "miracle worker," who apparently restores life by the aid of occult power; "The Quest," by Dr. Frederick Van Eeden, a mystically fascinating book; also, an authorized translation by May J. Safford, of "A Question of Honor," by Dr. Max Nordau, who discusses the treatment of the Jews in Germany and Russia with dramatic power.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. will publish on March 2 "The Iron Way," a story of the Central Pacific Railroad, by Sarah Pratt Carr, who has made skillful use of some of the giant promoters of that day—Leland Stanford, Collis P. Huntington, Charles Crocker and others upon whose initiative the railroad was planned and built. Of course, the book is not all railroad, for a most attractive love story runs through it all. John W. Norton has furnished the illustrations. On the same date they will bring out a volume of "Indian Love Letters," by Marah Ellis Ryan, which presents a Hopi Indian lad who returns from an eastern college, where he was to absorb the white man's civilization. While he learned the white man's ways he kept in his heart the ancient faith. The letters are pathetic and give a new and more personal meaning to the red man's spiritual preferences.

Noble, E. The issue: a story of the River Thames. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1907. c. '06, '07. 407 p. O. cl., *$1.50.

Fisherman's Gat is a narrow sand bar at the mouth of the River Thames. It can only be passed at high tide, and has been the scene of many disasters. The shadow of a man in a boat is said to hover over the Gat, "the curse of the Gat" falling on all who see him. This superstition throws a gloomy air over many scenes of the story, "the curse" coming home tragically to several of the characters. The love of two men for the same girl is the plot. The men are both "skippers," one being a fine fellow, the other full of supernatural beliefs. The story is played in villages along the Thames. It originally appeared in England under the title "Fisherman's Gat." By the author of "The edge of circumstance."

This volume was published serially in Forest and Stream, under the title "In the lodges of the Blackfeet," and the pseudonym W. B. Anderson. The story is a true one, the title-page now bearing the author's real name. Mr. Schultz when a young man of twenty went west to Montana Territory in search of wild life and adventure, finding both with the Piegan Blackfeet Indians. He married into the tribe and lived with them for many years; went with them on the hunt and on the warpath and joined in their religious ceremonies. Such an intimate revelation of the domestic life of the Indians has seldom before been written. It is rich not only in unusual episodes and exciting adventures, but in romance and sentiment.

Tracy, L. The captain of the "Kansas." N. Y., Edward J. Clode, 1907. c. '06. 6+336 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "The wings of the morning" and other novels selects a vessel bound from Valparaiso to London as the scene of a new story of romance and adventure. The leading characters are two young girls, an old Spanish doctor having them in charge, an English missionary and his wife, and several other passengers of no great importance. The incidents are numerous and exciting. Among them are a successful attempt to blow up the engines with dynamite, leaving the vessel helplessly adrift in mid-ocean, and the wreck of the "Kansas" upon an unknown island inhabited by cannibals, who attack the ship. Through these exciting episodes is traced the captain's romance with one of his pretty passengers.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 23, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

A PUBLISHER'S VIEW OF HIS PROFESSION.

JOHN MURRAY, of the famous English publishing firm, contributes to the December [1906] issue of The Contemporary Review an interesting article on the work of a publisher. The article is entitled "A Publisher in Peace Time," very likely to emphasize the fact that the publisher has other, more important and peaceable work to perform than to engage in war, whether it be with The Times or any other dark power.

Mr. Murray, who notices the depredations of the undersellers only in the briefest manner, dismisses the so-called "Book War" in the following words:

"The appeal of The Times is made to the instinct of greed; to the purchaser who desires to secure a bargain, regardless of whether it is offered at the expense of some one else or not. The estimates of production set forth by The Times are incomplete and inaccurate in almost every detail, but even assuming them to be correct, their whole justification rests on such cheapness as sweated labor and inferior materials alone can produce. It does not enter into the purview of the writer to suppose that either an author or a publisher can take a pride in turning a book out in a creditable manner and in spending on it more than the lowest 'grinding' prices require, and yet such a pride does exist, and will continue to exist, in spite of all the efforts of The Times to eradicate it."

Fassing on to points of more general interest in connection with his business, Mr. Murray deals with the sudden and mysterious dead stop that often occurs in the sale of books; the unacknowledged and unpaid for editorial supervision that a work may call for after acceptance; the large demand for free copies of books (five for copyright purposes alone, in England); and the doubling, in the last thirty years, of a publisher's general establishment expenses.

As to what creates popularity, Mr. Murray says that the popular belief that Gladstone could secure the success of any book was proved false in the failure of three promising biographies published by Mr. Murray, two of them at Gladstone's instigation, and all three puffed by reviews, speeches, and private commendation from the great statesman. According to Mr. Murray probably not more than a score or two all told of the modern English novelists' books sell to the extent of over 10,000 and the large number of new novels do not sell beyond one or two thousand copies. To produce 1000 copies of an ordinary novel, Mr. Murray calculates, "costs about £85, or 1s. 8½d. the copy; add, say, £50 for advertising and we have a total of £135. If the whole edition be sold, the gross yield is £148, leaving £13 for author and publisher; 2000 in like manner would cost, with advertising, £160 or £170, and would yield just over £300."

As to the personal work of the publisher the following "confession" may be of interest to the trade as well as to the general public:

"Manuscripts are sent to him in large numbers, let us say to the extent of two or three per working day of the year; they are distributed among a number of readers, who form and express an opinion upon them. The larger part is at once rejected as useless; the rest are reported as being good or doubtful. In the case of important works involving technical knowledge, some are sent to specialists for a second opinion. The publisher himself generally reads the others and forms his own decision. This is an essential part of his business, for if the work be accepted and published he will, in many cases, be in almost daily communication with the author, reading his proofs, offering suggestions, helping to verify references and generally acting as a sort of sub-editor. This last remark applies mainly to the work of new and inexperienced authors, as the experienced ones do not always require such assistance.

"I have no wish to refer to my own personal work in an egotistic spirit, but, as I believe it is similar to that performed by all well-known brethren of the craft, I may mention that I have in this way edited, or in part edited, or read the proofs of over 200 books. In some cases the author has acknowledged this help, unasked, in his preface; in many more he has done so in private letters; in some cases he appears to regard it as a proceeding requiring no time or labor and not worth mentioning. I need hardly add that these services, such as they are, are rendered as part of a publisher's ordinary responsibility, and are never paid for.

"When a ms. is accepted, it has to be 'cast off,' or measured up by the printer; type and page have to be decided, and many specimens are often set up before the form is fixed. The processes of proof revising, of choosing and making illustrations and maps, and all the other minutiae of printing, need not be specified here; it is sufficient to say that they involve an indefinite amount of labor, watching and care, if they are to be properly fulfilled. Once more I must touch on a personal question. My brother Hallam is now pretty well known as an amateur artist, and one who has had wide experience of all processes of art reproduction. All illustrations pass through his hands and on many occasions he has spent days, or even weeks, in superintending the illustrations of one book, selecting pictures, touching up proofs and plates, and even re-drawing the subjects himself."

"It must not, however, be supposed that a publisher's work consists wholly or even mainly in awaiting mss. and dealing with them as they come in. His more arduous duties comprise the originating and carrying out of new works; the finding out what standard books and books of reference are required, discovering men to write them, and searching for new markets and new wants in the United Kingdom and the Colonies. If he be an educational publisher he must keep in touch with hundreds of schools and schoolmasters, and learn from them in what respects his books are capable of improvement and what gaps there are to be filled up. This involves an endless amount of correspondence, and many expensive journeys and interviews.

"The 'Dictionary of National Biography' is a standing monument of the enterprise of publishers, and so is the great series of classical and Biblical dictionaries planned and carried out by my father in conjunction with Sir William Smith. No one will deny the value of these works. Some may imagine that they are undertaken with the sole idea of sordid gain; but this is far from being the case; many of them have proved very profitable undertakings, but none has proved remunerative until after many years of waiting and hard work, and the expenditure of very large sums of money. For example, the 'Dictionary of Christian Biography' and the 'Dictionary of Hymnology,' which have no rivals in any language and are everywhere regarded as the standard authorities on the subjects they deal with, and the 'Classical Atlas' and the separate sheet maps, the best of their kind in the world, at present show a deficit of more thousands of pounds than I care to proclaim; but we are none the less proud of having prepared and published them. We publishers have, all of us, made endeavors from time to time to earn the credit of giving to the world books of lasting worth, with only a secondary eye to profit, which often never comes."

No business, concludes Mr. Murray, except perhaps the management of a great newspaper, demands so much unremitting labor, alertness, and attention to infinite detail, as the business of publishing books.

At a special meeting of the American Publishers' Association, held on the 11th inst., it was decided to amend the by-laws of the Association by striking out Article VII., removing all provision for penalties excepting only those for non-payment of dues. We are pleased to note that the members of the Association, with two minor exceptions, are unanimous in the expression of their intention to support the booktrade reform without regard to any change of plan. The American Publishers' Association is undoubtedly in a better position now to maintain reform than it has been at any time since its organization; and if the retail trade will do its share and stand loyally by their allies, the publishers, the future of the booktrade will be secure.

It has been suggested by our English brethren of the trade that American publishers, who are supposed to have troubles enough of their own in fighting underselling at home, might be considerate enough not to give comfort to the English underseller abroad—The Times Book Club, for example—by supplying him with the means to wage war against them. It is claimed that Mr. Hooper, during his recent visit in this country, purchased upwards of 20,000 volumes from members of the American Publishers' Association and others and that he is expecting another large consignment from the same sources. The German booktrade has offered assistance to their English brethren by refusing to supply English books to supposed agents of the undersellers, and we trust that the American booktrade will also refuse to furnish stock—even if it be only dead or "plug" stock—to an agency whose sole aim it is to use such stock only as a club with which to beat the life out of the regular booktrade.

THE GRAPHIC ARTS AT THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION.

THE DEPARTMENT OF GRAPHIC ARTS of the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition, to be held at Hampton Roads, Va., April 26 to December 1, 1907, in commemoration of the first English settlement in America, has published a prospectus explaining the plan and scope of the exhibit of printing, publishing, engraving and binding. The purpose of the Department of Graphic Arts will be less to make an inclusive exhibit of all the tools, machines and products of America than to obtain a selective display of the best machines, the best products of the foremost printing, binding and engraving houses of the country. The main divisions of exhibits in this department will be as follows:

I. HISTORICAL EXHIBIT.

The historical exhibit will be a display of the work of the American press during the nearly three hundred years of its existence. Beginning with early Americana, of which there are many rare and extremely interesting specimens, the examples will include work from the Colonial presses, books, newspapers and broadsides, and will trace the art down by way of Franklin and Thomas to the nineteenth century. The characteristic books of that period will be shown, bringing the art down to a point where it will logically connect with the main exhibit of modern work. Among the examples in this group will be specimens of early engraving and binding.

II. PRINTING, ENGRAVING, AND BINDING MACHINERY AND PRINTING-OFFICE SUPPLIES.

Since methods and processes play a most important part in the production of printed matter of high quality, the exhibit of machines and supplies under the above head will be one of the very greatest importance to printers and others interested in the technical details of printing, and forming an instructive exhibit for every one. Presses, type-setting machines, paper-cutters, engraving and binding machinery, together with the various smaller furnishings of the printing office, the engraving plant and the bindery, will be adequately shown. Included in this group will be the exhibits of type from the leading foundries and of ink from the foremost ink makers. It is the intention in this group to obtain a representative display of the best and most highly developed machines and tools, in order to give a comprehensive idea of the present state of the industries whose products will be exhibited.

Of very great interest in this connection will be the "live" exhibits—of machinery in motion.

III. PAPER.

There will be an interesting display illustrating the manufacture of paper and showing samples of the wide and interesting varieties of American papers. This will include both hand and machine-made book and cover papers, besides papers for special purposes.

IV. BOOK PRINTING.

In many ways this will be the most interesting of the exhibits, as showing the present state of American printing in the most permanent of printed forms. The wide range of American work, its great variety of accomplishments in form and style and color will be adequately shown by numerous exhibits. This group will be divided (so far as seems practicable) into several classes viz.: Fine Editions, Trade Editions, School Books and the issues of Private Presses. The great extent of the publishing business to-day would point to a large and characteristic display of printed books. It will be found desirable, probably, to include under this head a considerable amount of small work, such as calendars, mottoes, etc., which has more or less of a permanent value.

V. PERIODICALS.

It is in her periodical printing that America excels any other nation, and this large and vigorous class of printed products will be represented by important displays of typography, design and color. The exhibit will show the steps employed to obtain the remarkable results shown in the best of modern periodicals.

VI. COMMERCIAL PRINTING.

In no class of printing is the remarkable versatility of the American printer more aptly shown than in the innumerable forms of printing used in the commercial activities of the country. These include the small office forms, advertising circulars and illustrated catalogues. In the latter there is frequently remarkable use of the latest processes of illustrating, of new and attractive styles in type and paper, and to the business man this exhibit will be invaluable. The group will include original drawings and typographical displays of commercial forms of every kind.

VII. ENGRAVING.

The exhibition of modern hand and mechanical engraving which will be included in this group will be as representative as is possible. It will include work under the heads of wood-engraving, line and half-tone engraving, photogravure, lithography and the color processes. Photo-engraving, as a distinctively modern process, will be adequately shown.

VIII. BINDING.

Exhibits under this group will include hand-bound and tooled books by the leading American binders, and a great variety of edition bindings—a class of work in which many notable results have been achieved. In connection with the bindings will be a comprehensive showing of book cloths, leathers and other materials used.

In order to develop this department upon the most comprehensive lines possible, securing unity and a fully representative showing, an Advisory Board, consisting of men foremost in printing and the allied arts, is to co-operate in the plan outlined. This Advisory Board is made up of the following men prominently identified with American printing:

C. H. Brandon, The Brandon Printing Co., Nashville, Tenn.

M. M. Davis, Foote & Davies Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Theodore L. De Vinne, The De Vinne Press, 12 Lafayette Place, New York.

T. E. Donnelley, R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co., Plymouth Place, Chicago.

A. W. Elson, A. W. Elson & Co., 146 Oliver Street, Boston.

Walter Gilliss, The Gillis Press, 141 East 25th Street, New York.

E. A. Kendrick, Matthews-Northrup Works, Buffalo, N. Y.

J. Horace McFarland, J. Horace McFarland Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

George H. Mifflin, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 4 Park Street, Boston.

Frank C. Nunemacher, The Nunemacher Press, Louisville, Ky.

William Dana Orcutt, The University Press, Cambridge, Mass.

Charles A. Stillings, Public Printer, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

Edward Stern, Edward Stern & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Willis J. Wells, Binner-Wells Co., Chicago.

The duties of the Advisory Board will be to approve such vital and important matter as is issued by this department from time to time, and further to render such suggestions and assistance as may be possible. They will use such influence as they may be able to do consistently with exhibitors in an effort to assist the department in producing a display that will be in full keeping with the great industry that the Exposition Company has undertaken to thus set forth to the world.

The address of Carl Purington Rollins, chief of the Department of Graphic Arts of the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition, is Norfolk, Va.

INTERNATIONAL TEXT BOOK CO. NOT SUBJECT TO STATE TAXATION.

THE United States Supreme Court has just decided that the business of the International Text Book Company, of Scranton, Pa., the proprietors of the International Correspondence School, is interstate commerce and not subject to State taxation. The ruling of the Supreme Court also contained the additional fact that the International Text Book Company was right in the contention that its instruction papers, although written on a single sheet of paper, are "books" in the meaning of the law, and that in distributing these books for a monetary consideration the company is engaged in the business of selling "books."

A CANADIAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

FOLLOWING the protest of the Canadian book-trade against the Ontario Government's proposal to engage in the school book business, those booksellers who met in Toronto last month formed the Booksellers' and Stationers' Association of the Province of Ontario, and at a meeting on January 15 elected the following officers: President, Wm. Tyrrell, Wm. Tyrrell & Co., Toronto; vice-president, J. G. Cloke & Son, Hamilton; secretary and treasurer, W. A. Craick, editor Bookseller and Stationer, Toronto; Executive Committee—E. S. Brown, Collingwood; W. B. Hart, Perth; R. A. Robertson, Hamilton; A. H. Stratton, Peterboro, and G. W. Sulman, Chatham.

As the Toronto Bookseller and Stationer points out, there is a great deal of work to be done by the association, in addition to keeping up the fight against the proposed measure of the Ontario Government to distribute school books. The aggressions of the department stores must be withstood. Wholesale houses must be respectfully and firmly forced to stop selling direct to the public. The c. o. d. parcel post measure must be strenuously opposed. In fact, there are so many subjects to take up that it is difficult to know where to begin."

ECONOMY IN THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE.

THE report of the commission composed of members of both the Senate and House appointed during the last session of Congress to consider abuses and irregularities in the government printing was submitted on February 18 to the Senate by Senator Platt, chairman of the committee, and to the House by Representative Landis.

The commission believes that a saving of more than $1,500,000 in the cost of printing for the current fiscal year has been secured by the reforms already accomplished, and a bill was submitted with the report which, it is hoped, will do much more toward correcting abuses.

The changes proposed deal with both Congressional and departmental printing and are an effort to regulate and classify all printing in either interest. It is pointed out that Congress and Congressional committees have frequently violated the law. For instance, an existing statute fixes at $500 the limit of cost on printing committee hearings, whereas the cost of printing the railroad rate hearings of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce was $7910. It is also pointed out that much additional cost has been entailed by perfunctorily following the rule of ordering printed without examination all documents forwarded from executive departments, bureaus, commissions, etc., and one instance is cited in which the publication of a document worthless for distribution was thus ordered. The entire cost would have been $60,000, but the Committee on Printing discovered the situation in time to save all but $25,000 of that amount. It is proposed to remedy the evil by requiring estimates of the cost of printing executive documents of a length greater than fifty pages.

CHARLES M. ROE,

Business Manager American Baptist Pub. Soc.

LOOK OUT FOR THIS THIEF.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: On Saturday last, February 16, we had a man arrested for stealing books in our store. The man goes by the name of John Mack. His occupation is said to be that of waiter; his age fifty-six. He is about 5 feet 2 inches tall, gray mustache, very nervous, continually jerking his head, wears spectacles, and when searched had on an overcoat with pocket reaching to the bottom of his coat. This man is an old hand at the business, having been in our place before. When he comes into the store he inquires for one of the firm, and then asks if he may look around, being an old bookworm. He was sentenced to-day to thirty days in the Tombs, it being his first offence so far as the police were able to find out. He pleaded guilty. This may save some other bookseller from loss.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE FEBRUARY DINNER.

THE February dinner of the Booksellers' League was given at the Aldine Association on the evening of the 20th inst., and notwithstanding the Lenten season nearly ninety members did full justice to an excellent menu.

The guests of honor were Ellis Parker Butler, author of "The Incubator Baby," "Pigs is Pigs," etc., and Captain Bradley S. Osborn, author of "A Sailor of Fortune." Mr. Butler read a new humorous story as yet unpublished, entitled "The Great American Pie Co.," bubbling over with humor and keen in satire. Captain Osborn, who is on the border line of four score years, spun a yarn for an hour and a half recounting his adventures in many climes in a way that "captured" his hearers completely.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GIOSUÈ CARDUCCI, who was considered to be Italy's greatest poet, died on the 16th inst., in Bologna. Carducci was born at Baldicassello, Tuscany, July 27, 1836. Since 1860 he had been professor of Italian literature at the University of Bologna. Last year he received the Nobel prize in literature. Queen Margherita has just purchased Carducci's house and library and presented them to the city of Bologna to serve as a Carducci Museum.

RALPH TILTON, only son of Theodore Tilton, died of pneumonia on the 16th inst. at his residence, 738 West End Avenue, New York City. Mr. Tilton was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1870. From his youth he was interested in art, and though he never became a professional artist he was clever in designing. For several years he was art editor of the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. Subsequently he was appointed manager of the advertising department of The Delineator, which he administered so successfully that he was made editor of the magazine in 1905, a position he held until about a year ago. Mr. Tilton was an old friend of the B. C. T., and entertained it on several occasions.

THE RT. HON. GEORGE JOACHIM GOSCHEN died suddenly on the 6th inst. Lord Goschen was born in London in 1831, and was the grandson of Georg Joachim Goschen, the celebrated publisher of Leipsic, whose "Life and Times" he wrote in 1903. In the same year he was made Chancellor of Oxford University. As an undergraduate at Oriel he had a reputation both for wit and scholarship, and won two first classes in 1852 and 1853. His "Theory of Foreign Exchanges," which has passed through many editions, and "Essays and Addresses on Economic Questions," (1905,) represent the chief interest of his political life, though he was also a keen student of educational problems.

COLONEL HENRY STEEL OLCOTT co-founder with the late Mme. Blavatsky of the Theosophical Society, died on the 17th inst. at Adyar, India. Colonel Olcott was born in Orange, N. J., August 2, 1832. He was graduated from the University of New York in 1851 and four years later started a school of scientific agriculture at Mt. Vernon, N. Y. He wrote a book on sugar cultivation which went through seven editions. The school did not pay, and Olcott then became a writer on agricultural subjects for the New York Tribune. When the war between the States broke out Olcott enlisted and served a year, when he was invalided. He was then employed by Secretary Stanton to investigate certain frauds in the Mustering and Disbursing Office in New York City and in the navy yards. After the war Olcott studied law and was admitted to the bar. Before long he had a large and lucrative practice, which he abandoned in 1874 to found and develop the Theosophical Society, to which he was devoted up to the time of his death.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, the eminent Shakespearean scholar, is hard at work seeing through the press the fifteenth volume of his monumental New Variorum edition of the Works of William Shakespeare. The play treated in this volume will be "Antony and Cleopatra," upon which he has devoted his entire time since the publication of his edition of "Love's Labour's Lost," more than two years ago.

THE appointment of Augustine Birrell as chief secretary for Ireland to succeed James Bryce, the new Ambassador to Washington, is announced. Augustine Birrell is president of the Board of Education in the new cabinet and is noted as a lawyer and writer. Since 1899 he has been an honorary fellow of Trinity Hall, Cambridge University. Mr. Birrell was born in Liverpool in 1850. He was graduated from Cambridge in 1872, became a barrister in 1875, and in 1903 was made a bencher of the Inner Temple. For a time he was Quain professor of law in University College, London, and first entered Parliament in 1889. Among his most notable works are "Obiter Dicta," "Res Judicatae," "In the Name of The Bodleian," "Men, Women and Books," "Essays and Addresses," published in this country by the Scribners.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Southern Automobilist is the title of a new magazine devoted to motors and motoring published at Atlanta, Ga., at 25 cents the copy. While general in character, the magazine is intended to be primarily a Southern journal published for Southern readers.

Postal Progress is the title of a new monthly journal published by the Postal Progress League, 361 Broadway, New York City and 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass. The journal notes the work of the Postal Progress League in particular and postal progress in general. The subscription price is $1 a year and ten cents a single copy.

THE "Winter Number" of Poet Lore contains an especially attractive programme. The play is Gorky's "Smug Citizen," translated by Edwin Hopkins, whose translation of the same author's "A Night's Lodging" appeared a year ago. Among the important articles are "In Re Caliban," by Oscar Lovell Triggs; "Plato as a Literary School for Writers," by Janet Payne Bowles; "Southern Verse," by Tom S. Stribling; "The German Fairy Tale Contest," by Max Bratt; "Shakespeare's Clownery," by Charles W. Hodell; and "The Motherless Heroine," by Louise Maunsell Field. There is some notable poetry and an interesting translation from the original Anglo-Saxon, entitled "The Wanderer."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

ITALIAN CATALOGUE OF LITERATURE AND ART. —In Italy the State protects national art treasures, for the preservation of which other nations must rely upon private munificence. The present working of the law, however, according to the London Academy, "appears to be unsatisfactory, and Signor Rava, the Italian Minister for Public Instruction, is bringing in a bill under which no article of artistic, historical or archaeological interest over fifty years old belonging to the State, provinces, towns, villages or ecclesiastical bodies can be sold. Public and private owners will be compelled to supply Signor Rava and his successors will full particulars of works of art or important buildings in their possession; export will be forbidden, and the State will have the option of purchasing for the nation any such treasures which come into the market. If the bill is passed—and there seems every prospect that it will be—in a few years at most Italy will be in possession of a catalogue of her literary, architectural and artistic wealth such as no other country can boast."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

E. DARROW & Co., Rochester, N. Y., announce "Ye Old Log School House Tymes, and Pioneer Sketches," by John S. Minard.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published a volume by H. J. Wilmot Buxton, under the title of "God's Heroes," consisting of sermons on Bible characters in whom the heroic was strangely developed.

The long-promised "Letters of Queen Victoria," which will be published in this country by Longmans, Green & Co., have been still further delayed because, in order to secure American copyright, the book must be set up and printed in this country. The work will therefore not be ready until next fall.

The Century Co. will publish in book form on March 2 A. E. W. Mason's "Running Water," which has been appearing serially in the Century since August. On the same date they will issue Frederic C. Penfield's "East of Suez," a book of travel laying special stress on America's neglect of trading opportunities in Asia.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have in preparation "From King to King," by G. Lowes Dickinson, who endeavors to state, by a series of dialogues, in prose and verse, certain universal aspects of the Puritan revolution, and to delineate the character of the leading actors in the struggles. They also announce another Pennsylvania Dutch story by Helen Reimensnyder Martin, author of "Tillie, a Mennonite Maid," entitled "His Courtship."

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., is showing a strong line of Easter post cards. His faith in their selling qualities is such that he offers to buy back unsold stock after Easter if cash accompanies an order to the amount of $10, which he sends prepaid. The line comprises a new series of linen post cards—thirty styles of children and chicken designs, at $10 the thousand. There is also a series of fifty designs in embossed post cards of religious subjects, children, rabbits and chickens; also a series of photogravure post cards and folders, oval penwipers with ivory paper cutters and novelty leather tags, the latter selling for $6 the hundred.

THE JOHN LANE COMPANY have just published "The Dangerville Inheritance," a detective story by A. C. Fox-Davies, a London lawyer, who is said to have found the legal portion of Conan Doyle's writings unconvincing to the minds of lawyers and has set out to write a detective story that should be legally sound. They announce a Spanish Series which will deal with Spain in its various aspects, its history, its cities and its monuments. The volumes will have many illustrations from paintings and from photographs. The first one will contain a biography and "appreciation" of Murillo, and the second an historical account of the royal armory at Madrid. They also announce "A Boy's Marriage," a problem story by Hugh de Selincourt.

SISLEY'S LTD., the enterprising young London publishing firm, have also joined the movement to issue their new fiction at 2s. 6d. net instead of the orthodox discount of 6s. These new novels at the new price are said to be equal in size, quality and style to the regulation "six shilling" book. Sisley's make a feature of their series of classics de luxe—The Panel-Books—in which they are issuing twenty titles in lambskin and rough Persian leather. They are now starting a companion series for standard fiction—The Novel-Books—in purple lambskin, and a popular library of classics—The Sisley Books—in cloth at 1s. (25 cents.) They have recently brought out an English edition of "Historia Amoris," by Edgar Saltus.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have prepared for this Easter season an extensive and very attractive line of cards, booklets and mechanical novelties. Especial regard has been had for the tastes and whims of the young people, and for them have been prepared cards with chicks, ducks and bunnies peeping out of eggs and baskets in the most life-like fashion. For the grown-ups there are many artistic designs in flowers, crosses and other appropriate emblems of the Resurrection, beautifully and artistically printed. A particularly dainty line is a rubricated text card. There are also post-cards and pretty little cards shaped as eggs that serve as modest reminders of the season. It would be impossible to notice the various sets of designs in detail; suffice it to say that each is appropriate and attractive in its own way and is bound to sell on sight.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will bring out in March "The First Claim," by M. Hamilton, a story which deals with fundamental emotions, the mysterious bond of mother and child, in a way which should make it a widely-discussed book. A young girl, beautiful but undeveloped, has married the local aristocrat—a great catch for her. She finds her life impossible and presently goes off with the man she cares for. These two love each other devotedly, but there comes between them the inevitable remembrance of the woman's deserted child, whose claim grows stronger as she learns the true meaning of love and marriage. The story of how this dramatic situation comes to a climax makes up a novel of real power. Late in March, possibly the 26th, they will bring out Peary's book, "Nearest the North Pole." They have postponed publication of Upton Sinclair's new book, "Industrial Republic," to April 4, and Thomas Dixon, Jr.'s "The Traitor" until April 16.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week Jack London's new novel, "Before Adam," which is the record of a mental and imaginative voyage of discovery in which the author has explored and mapped the regions that lie beyond the reach of history; "Freedom in the Church," by Professor Alexander V. G. Allen, of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge, Mass., who speaks with authority on the present situation in his Church; volume 1 of the "Cyclopedia of American Agriculture," to be completed in four volumes under the editorship of Professor L. H. Bailey, of Cornell, which promises to prove the most important reference book on agriculture ever undertaken in this country; "A German Science Reader," by William H. Wait, of Michigan University; volume 2 of the "Handbook of Metallurgy," by Dr. Carl Schnabel, one of the leading scientists in Germany; a new and revised edition of "Religion, Natural and Revealed," by N. S. Joseph; "Electrons," by Sir Oliver Lodge; a new edition of "The Dynamo," by C. C. Hawkins and F. Wallis; and "The Principles and Practice of Coal Mining," by James Tonge.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. will publish at once the biography of Frederick Douglass, promised last year for the American Crisis Biographies series. Those who have read the advance sheets of the book agree that the story of this man's life possesses unusual interest, almost fascinating one with the variety and romance of his remarkable career. From a slave boy on a Maryland plantation he rose, through sheer strength of will and force of character, to hold high government positions and to be a leader among men, particularly of his own race, at a time when they greatly needed a representative to bring the wrongs of slavery before the American people. The story of his life is told by one well qualified to write such a volume—Booker T. Washington. Upon the completion of the series of articles on "Jay Cooke, the Financier of the Civil War," now running in the Century Magazine, a full and authorized biography of this remarkable American will be published by George W. Jacobs & Co. This book, (of which the serial articles form a part,) is by Dr. Ellis Paxson Oberholtzer, the author of a work on Robert Morris and the finances of the Revolution. Dr. Oberholtzer has had free access to all the Cooke papers which comprised many chests full of letters, documents, maps, and scrap books preserved in the most careful way by a methodical business man. All this material has been utilized to the full with the approval and aid of the family. The work will be amply illustrated with portraits and facsimiles and will be a valuable contribution to the history of the Civil War and the speculative era which preceded the panic of 1873. The book is a story of how Cooke sold more than two thousand millions of United States bonds and then set out to civilize the Northwest from Duluth to Tacoma, a region then inhabited chiefly by hostile Indians and black herds of buffalo.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on March 1 "The History of Painting from the Fourth to the Early Nineteenth Century," by Dr. Richard Muther, professor in the University of Breslau, a comprehensive work, in two illustrated volumes, on the history of painting, which is at once trustworthy as an authority and entertaining reading, whose aim is, while not neglecting technical questions, to interpret the great masterpieces of painting as human documents and manifestations of the dominant feelings and tendencies of the epochs to which they belong. They will bring out on March 15 "The Country House," by John Galsworthy, author of "The Man of Property," in which the author sets himself the task of presenting social life in a rural setting as in his earlier works he depicted phases of the English metropolitan world; "The Letters of One," by Charles H. Plunkett, a novel which takes its title from the circumstance that the story is chiefly in the form of a young novelist's letters to the woman he loves, or to the woman who loves him, or to the woman he may or may not love and who may or may not love him—none of the letters written by the woman being given; "Diagnosis of Organic Nervous Diseases," by Dr. Christian A. Herter, of Columbia University, revised by Dr. L. Pierce Clark, the well-known neurologist; "Scientific Sanction for the Use of Alcohol Proved and Popularly Expounded by a Physiologist," by Dr. J. Starke; also, "How to Find Happyland," by Jasmine Stone Van Dresser, a book for children full of grace, sprightliness, simplicity, ingenious and surprising turns of plot and glimpses of the world of fairy and fantasy, with illustrations by Miss Florence E. Storer. They will publish later in March Thomas Wright's "Life of Walter Pater;" "The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence," a study of evidence, showing that the alleged early Declaration of Independence by Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, on the 20th of May, 1775, is spurious, by William Henry Hoyt; "The Union Cause in Kentucky, 1860-1865," by Captain Thomas Speed, a narrative of the struggle of the Union men in Kentucky to hold their State in the Union when other States were seceding and efforts were being made to carry Kentucky into the Southern Confederacy; also, a work on "The Nervous and Mental Hygiene," by Augustus Forel, translated by Austin Aikins.

THE collection of William C. Van Antwerp, of New York City, will be sold at Sotheby's, London, on March 22 and 23. W. C. Van Antwerp, of the Stock Exchange house of E. R. Chapman & Co., New York City, has international fame as a bibliophile. His collection of 200 volumes which is to be sold in London next month is spoken of by experts as one of the most remarkable of its size in the world, and includes so many unique pieces that the American market was deemed too narrow for its advantageous disposal. "Authorities on the subject," according to the New York Times, "consider the Van Antwerp collection remarkable not only for the rarity of many of the volumes, of which some are said to be the only examples that have survived the wear and tear of the centuries, but for the particularly fine condition of some of the volumes it contains of the rare editions, which are the dearest prizes of the bibliophile. His first edition of Izaak Walton's 'Compleat Angler,' for example, is said to be as clean and perfect as when it left the hands of the printer centuries ago. This book is particularly hard to find in a good state of preservation, experts say, presumably because it was the habit of Walton's contemporaries to carry his treatise with them on their excursions afield, with the result that most of the copies that have survived are much thumbed and tattered and stained with seventeenth century brookside lunches and baits, both liquid and of the barnyard variety."

FRIDAY, THE 13TH

By

THOMAS W. LAWSON

THE absorbing story of a great and passionate love, which endures through the terrible suffering brought on by money madness.

A book which is going to make history; the author is convinced that it shows a perfectly simple yet inevitable way by which any broker with nerve enough can pull down the pillars of the Wall Street structure. A novel which will surely reach its hundreds and thousands of readers, men and women, quickly.

Nearly five years ago we were invited to become associated with those Bible publishers who are governed by an agreement to maintain high prices. We refused to do so. The wisdom of our refusal, and its importance to booksellers, becomes apparent when at this time we are able to say that our Bible business is entirely satisfactory, and Bibles of equal quality to ours cannot be purchased elsewhere at prices less than from 25 to 50 per cent more than we ask for them. JUST THINK THIS OVER.

THAT WILL COMMAND UNUSUAL ATTENTION

The Miracle Worker

By GERALD MAXWELL

The World says this appeal to the multitudinous world of novel readers will receive a hearty response. The most salient characteristic is its entire novelty . . . it will not do to skip a line of this wondrous tale. The miracle worker of the tale is an enthusiastic young surgeon, who apparently restores life by the aid of occult power and marvellous surgical skill.

"A 20th Century Pilgrim's Progress"

The Quest

By DR. FREDERIK VAN EEDEN

It has all the qualities of popularity, yet will appeal to the cultured. It is at times as weird as Poe, as fantastic as Hoffman, as beautiful as Ruskin, as interesting as the best of Tolstoi, as subtle as Maeterlinck, as profound as Shakespeare. It is the mingling of a novel, an epic, a fairy tale, a popular book and an ethical and philosophic treatise, full of romantic beauty and idealic grace, representing a work of 15 years on the part of the author. Mystically fascinating.

Attractively bound. 500 pages. $1.50

A Question of Honor

By DR. MAX NORDAU

The authorized translation, by MARY J. SAFFORD, of this play, which has been produced so successfully in Germany and Russia, discussing with great dramatic power the treatment of the Jews in those countries.

A NEW BOOK ALONG NEW LINES

"Something new," did you say?

Here's NORROY, which is quite out of the ordinary. The author, George Bronson-Howard, invades for the first time the thrice-guarded privacy of the State Department, where he finds a series of exciting stories that are of breathless interest.

The appearance of the book, too, is greatly in its favor. It is the handsomest $1.50 book we have had in a long time.

A Prisoner's Letter to the Publishers

STATE PENITENTIARY,

COLUMBUS, OHIO, January 7, 1907.

THE SAALFIELD PUB. CO., Akron, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN: Tied around a package received from home yesterday, by accident doubtless, were a few of the proof sheets of "NORROY, DIPLOMATIC AGENT," which I judge to be a new book your house is about to publish. Now I know something about the detective business from more than one point of view; and I know something about books, as I was a book agent before I began promoting. More than that, I have read all Conan Doyle's stories, and all of Anna Katharine Green's, Raffles, Gaboriau and all the rest of them, so I may say I know a good detective story. If these proof sheets are a fair sample, NORROY will be the best of the bunch. Won't you send me a copy as soon as the book is out? It don't seem as though I can wait until I finish my engagement here. I'll pay you sure with the first money I earn (I almost said get). Sincerely yours,

CAGE

A Novel of Chicago by

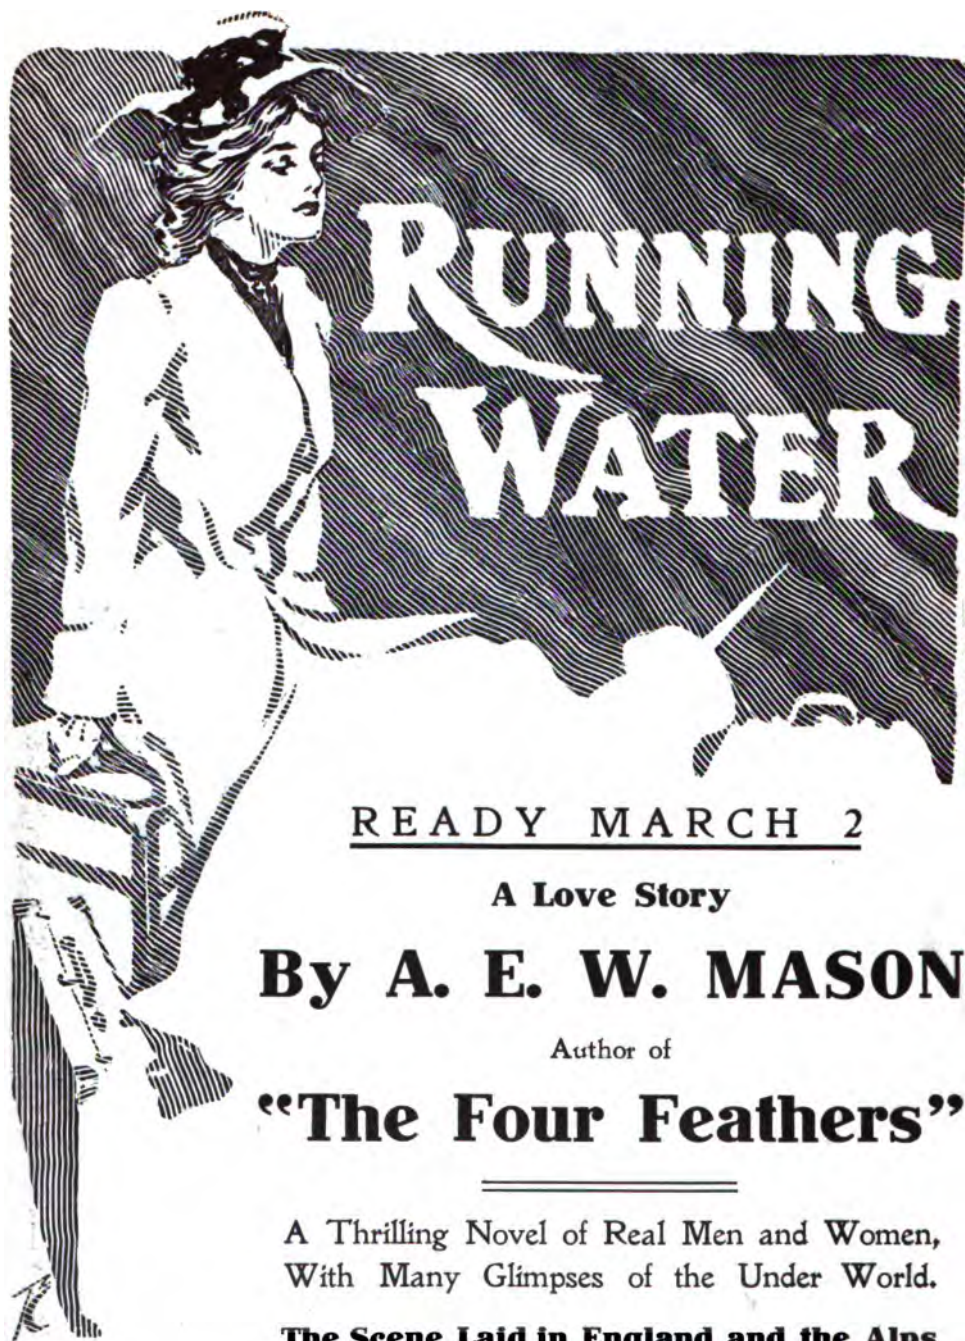

CHARLOTTE TELLER

12mo, Ornamental Cloth, $1.50

THOSE were dramatic times in Chicago when the Haymarket riots occurred, and they offer a superb field for a novelist of insight and power. They have been chosen as the setting of a remarkable novel by Charlotte Teller, a magazine and newspaper writer, who was for some time a settlement worker in Chicago among the foreign laboring classes.

"THE Cage" has for heroine a clergyman's daughter in love with an Austrian labor organizer, and torn between his ideas and those of her father. Also, her lover proves to be a man unhappily married, and this conflict of duties is added to other elements of an intensely strong novel culminating in the Haymarket riots. The ending, however, is happy.

"DO YOU THINK?"

"Do you ever find it difficult to concentrate your mind on one subject for any length of time? Do you know that you use only one-half of your brain? Does your brain originate thought or do you? Can you control what you shall think about? Have you any existence apart from your brain? Could you talk if some one had not taught you? Do you know what dreams are made of? Do you know why you believe you shall live again after death?

"We are going to recommend a book to you. We have no interest in it. We recommend it entirely in your interest. It is called 'Brain and Personality,' written in exquisite English, without a technical term in it, by a great specialist, Dr. W. Hanna Thomson, and published by Dodd, Mead & Co. If you wish to know who you are, by all means read that book and then pass it on to your friends. We read a great many books in our business. We have not found one in years that approaches this one in interest or profit. It makes the more dramatic fiction tame. Have the young people read it. You will be grateful to us for calling it to your attention. Have your newsdealer order it for you."—Everybody's Magazine.

We have never had such a widespread demand for any other book, except a work of fiction by a well-known author.

FROM the great number of letters received from the trade congratulating us on our victory over G. & C. Merriam Co. we select and make these from two letters received on the same day from our Webster's Imperial Dictionary customers:

FROM NO. 1.—"I suppose, now that you have a clear field, you are selling dictionaries 'to beat the band.' I hope you may sell 'a million a month.' You are deserving of success; there isn't another man on the face of the earth who would have tackled the job of fighting the Merriam people. This isn't blarney. I MEAN IT, and you know it's true. My heart would have stopped beating long before a decision was handed down."

FROM NO. 2.—"Enclosed please find check for last lot of dictionaries received. The Imperial has taken the place in my office of the Merriams' International. As I have an Imperial in my home library also, I think you will see where my preference lies."

The trade ought to stand by you. As a bookseller I recall how, "cash down," and no profit at that, the Springfield people always have been with us. I'm glad you beat them.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day Edith Wharton's new story, "Madame de Treymes," in which the problems arising from an international marriage are presented from a new point of view; "Felicity, the Making of a Star," by Clara E. Laughlin, a unique book full of the inexhaustible charm of the theatre, by the literary editor of the Interior; also, the second volume of a critical and exegetical commentary on "The Book of Psalms," by Dr. Charles Augustus Briggs, the first volume of which, published last year, received high praise from leading authorities on the subject.

THE CENTURY COMPANY publish to-day Frederic Courtland Penfield's "East of Suez," which not only tells of this experienced traveller's wanderings through Colombo, the Ceylon hill country, Bombay, Benares, Canton, Macao and other fascinating places, but deals at some length with trading opportunities in Asia and with America's neglect of its interests there. The book has over fifty illustrations from drawings and photographs. They announce that the eighth edition of "The Lady of the Decoration" was sold out before publication day and that the ninth and largest edition yet prepared is just ready.

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on the 9th inst. "Mr. Barnes, American," a sequel to the much-read "Mr. Barnes of New York," by Archibald Clavering Gunter, whose untimely death, on February 24, is noted elsewhere. It is interesting to note that "Mr. Barnes of New York" has been translated into nearly all known languages, and that the dramatization of the book has held the American stage for eighteen years and that the play is still being performed. On the same date they will publish "Hilma," by William Tillinghast Eldridge, a new author, who writes a story in the "Prisoner of Zenda" style of romance, with a cover in colors by Harrison Fisher; also, "The Thinking Machine," by Jacques Futrelle, who wrote "The Chase of the Golden Plate," published last fall.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have ready this week Owen Wister's new book, "How Doth the Simple Spelling Bee;" the first volume of "The Cyclopaedia of American Agriculture," edited by Professor L. H. Bailey; the third volume of the revised edition of "Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians," edited by J. Fuller-Maitland; the tenth and last volume of Professor Albert H. Smyth's edition of "The Life and Writings of Benjamin Franklin;" "Studies in Humanism," by F. C. S. Schiller, of Oxford, and "Structure and Growth of the Mind," by Professor W. Mitchell, of the University of Adelaide, two books of great importance to the student of philosophical thought; "Eye Injuries and Their Treatment," by A. Maitland Ramsay, of Glasgow; also, a new edition of Mabel Osgood Wright's "Birdcraft," which has held its own for years as one of the best nature books.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. publish to-day "Hawaiian Folk Tales," by Thomas G. They will publish next week "Cosmos, the Soul, and God," by the Rev. C. L. Arnold, who aims to solve the problem as to the range, and especially the connection between mind and matter along the lines of a new theory that the author thinks disposes of many of the difficulties which have long baffled thinkers and which is abreast of all recent discoveries; "Fingerposts to Children's Reading," by Walter Taylor Field, who presents suggestions as to the most profitable lines of reading for children of all ages; also, "Forest Friends," by Dr. John Madden, whose book is of especial interest at this time, when the advance of civilization is so rapidly divesting the once wild places of their animal life.

A number of useful business principles are evolved through a series of familiar anecdotes between business men. The book takes somewhat the aspect of a story. A rich old man persuades his youngest son, John, after going through college, to learn his business, in place of becoming a professional man. He tells him that all he has learned at school will help in ordinary business. The young man yields to his father's arguments, and begins by taking a trip to New York with one of his father's drummers. He is a listener to all the wisdom contained in chapters on: The man who makes the stuff; The man who works for you; Scattering the stuff after you make it; The man who really builds the business; Handling the customer; Hard falls and how they happen; The clerk; The buyer, etc. Author of "Tales of the road."

Just after leaving Oxford, Beverley Teruel, familiarly known as "Girlic" by his fellow-students, marries a young lady he has known all his life because his family desires him to do so. The pair have little knowledge of the world. She is commonplace and utterly ignorant of a wife's duties and responsibilities. He is full of fire and poetry. In a little while he is disillusionized and seeks consolation outside of his home. In describing the young husband's deterioration the author indulges in a frankness of detail that is unpardonable.

Author is lecturer in education in the Extension Division of the University of Chicago. This, the third volume of the series, is devoted to the age of the chase and is designed as a supplementary reader for the intermediate grades. Here is portrayed the influence of man's presence upon wild animals. Man's fear which, with the conquest of fire, gave way to courage, has resulted in his mastery of many mechanical appliances and in the development of social co-operation, which so increases his power as to make him an object of fear to the wild animals, and increases the necessary ingenuity to supply his daily food.

He has been encouraged to reprint it by the praise of several critics and publishers, whose good words as to the morality and wholesomeness of the old dime novel he quotes in an interesting preface. Excepting that anachronisms, crudities and slips here and there have been corrected the story is presented substantially as first written.

A young English author, with a name well-known in the literary world, in taking a holiday tramp through a beautiful English county comes accidentally upon "The Traveller's Joy," a homely but delightfully kept inn. Not only does the inn and its surroundings attract him, but also its host and hostess, and he resolves to spend the balance of his holiday there. As he has often been annoyed by strangers' curiosity he only gives part of his name, this deception leading him into an amusing tangle. A love story, set in joyous scenes of outdoor life, with a bright, happy girl for a heroine, who finally becomes "the traveller's joy," is told without any complex plot.

The author is a Unitarian minister, pastor of the Church of All Souls, New York. The ways to happiness are many and various, according to one's gifts and character, he tells us. He begins his little book with "a foreword to those who seek the way." Next he writes of "The call to the way"—the search for happiness, the joy of life, that is implanted in every human being. He depicts the way of the stoic—happiness by self-control; the way of the epicurean—happiness by pleasure; the way of the altruist—one's self and the other; the way of worship—happiness by inspiration; the way to the holy place—happiness at home; the way of freedom—happiness by liberty; the way to the heights—the vision and the dream; the end of the way—blessedness and peace.

BUSINESS NOTES.

DES MOINES, IA.—Daniel L. Baker has retired from the Baker-Trisler Company—"The Greek Lamp"—to take up his residence in Southern California. Mr. Baker's withdrawal was an entire surprise to all but a few, and was made imperative owing to Mr. Baker's health. Mr. Baker's holdings have been taken over by Charles H. Trisler, who, with Mr. Baker, organized the present firm eight years ago, and by W. B. Amsbary, for several years past connected with, and a stockholder in the firm of C. C. Taft & Co., of this city. Mr. Trisler will head the new firm, as president and manager; Mr. Amsbary will be vice-president and secretary, and under their aggressive management it is safe to predict a continuation of the growth and development which has characterized this business since its organization in 1899. This firm has come to be recognized as one of the important factors in the upbuilding of Greater Des Moines. "The Greek Lamp Book Shop and Art Rooms," the name under which the book and art business of this firm has been advertised, is widely known, and the arrangement of the store interior and front is considered to be the equal of any other store of its kind in the United States. The Commercial Stationery and Office Furniture Department of the store has made a wonderful growth and is recognized as equal in size, variety, and quality of stock carried to any store in the entire middle West.

DUNKIRK, N. Y.—Henry Weiler, who for the past thirty-two years has conducted a book and stationery business here, has sold out to Carroll F. Shinnars. Mr. Shinnars, who is an enterprising and energetic young man, will continue at the old stand, 103 East Third Street.

LARAMIE, WYO.—Barry Bros. have purchased the business of the Laramie Book Co.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—J. J. Wellendorf, for the past nine years manager for H. C. Holmes at San Francisco, has purchased the Holmes Book Co.'s store, located at 214 W. Seventh Street. Mr. Wellendorf would be pleased to receive the latest lists and announcements of publishers.

MILFORD, NEB.—S. A. Lanford has purchased the Rev. Mr. Rawl's bookstore.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Frank Allaben Genealogical Company has recently been incorporated under the laws of New York, to carry on the business of genealogical, biographical and historical research, editing, compiling, printing and publishing. Its place of business is at 3 West 42d Street, at the corner of Fifth Avenue, opposite the new Public Library building.

NEW YORK CITY.—Wm. M. Stitt, Jr., will remove shortly from 156 Fifth Avenue to 5 and 7 East 16th Street.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—George W. Jacobs & Company announce that on February 1 they admitted John T. Robinson to partnership in their firm.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 2, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

DUTIES ON ROYALTIES.

THE question regarding the right of the Government to assess a duty on the estimated or uncertain value of authorship in connection with the valuation of imported books, concerning which for years there has been more or less complaint on the part of the trade, became acute this week when the Appraiser at New York decided that "royalty fees on imported books are properly a part of the foreign market value of the publications and as such must be included in the invoice value for dutiable purposes." Before the decision was rendered a hearing was given to Mr. John Macrae, the representative of E. P. Dutton & Co., and to certain other publishers who were interested. At that hearing Mr. George Haven Putnam also presented an argument against the validity of the Appraiser's contention that in the entry on invoices of copyrighted books imported in editions, the amount paid for authorship, whether in the form of a fixed amount for the purchase of American rights, or of a deferred payment, or of royalty payable as the books were sold, must be taken into account in arriving at the dutiable value of such imported books.

Mr. Putnam, in presenting a copy of the volume in question—"The House of Cobwebs"—called attention to the fact that each material factor going to make up such volume was, under the present tariff system of the United States, subject to duty. The du-tiable items which have to be taken into consideration in arriving at the dutiable value of the completed book include the paper, the cloth used in the cover, the cost of the binding, the binders' thread, the binders' board, the cost of the labor expended in the typesetting and the cost of the labor expended in the presswork. It was also pointed out that duties ranging from ten per cent. to forty per cent. were placed upon each of these items or productions of labor and were collected in the case of the separate importation of paper, electrotype or stereotype plates, binders' cloth, binders' board, etc.

The customs authorities make the claim that in arriving at the dutiable value of the book as a whole, an appraisal must be made of the value of the labor expended by the author in its production, whether or not a charge for this authorship was taken into account in the purchase price of the edition and has found place in the importing invoice; but it was shown that while the existing tariff comprises some 4138 subject headings, there is in the schedule no subject heading or class covering the items of authorship, royalty, copyright, or literary property in any form.

As an evidence of the fact that literary production in itself was not dutiable, to follow Mr. Putnam's argument more closely, he stated that he had occasion from season to season to bring back in his trunk manuscripts which he had purchased in England, or which had been produced under arrangements made by him with English authors. In reply to the inquiry of the customs inspectors, when the trunk was opened, as to whether these packages had value, the reply was, "Yes, this package is worth £100 or £200," as the case may be, "but it has no dutiable value." What is the routine in bringing manuscripts in with personal baggage, obtains in similar fashion in instances in which similar manuscripts, often representing a large expenditure for the labor of authorship, are brought over in cases which included other goods that are dutiable. The claim has never been made in the Custom House that these packages of manuscripts are subject to duty, although they have, for purposes of insurance, been marked with a substantial value—a value which has been extended in the invoices in the non-dutiable column.

It was also argued that if there were no duty upon the item of authorship considered separately, even when the results of such authorship were directly imported, there was no legitimate ground for making authorship a factor or portion of the so-called "market value" of any work upon which duty was to be assessed. It was further contended, as was made clear by the nature of the agreements now being increasingly entered into on the part of American publishers and foreign authors, that the authors were in a large number of cases content to accept their returns in the shape of a division of the profits; in the case where the profits were deferred, the author had to wait for his compensation until such profits were realized, while if small profits, or no profits were made, the returns to the author were, in like manner, either smaller or nil. There is nothing in the present tariff law which justifies including in the basis of tax on imported goods profits which have not been earned and which may never be earned. In this class of arrangements covering imported editions, the author becomes a partner in the undertaking.

Apart from this objection on general principles, it was pointed out that there could be no uniformity or consistency in the appraisal of so-called authorship value, and that there would be an injustice in making such appraisal on a different basis for the importation of different books similar in general character and similar in cost and in selling price. If an author's compensation is made in the form of deferred payments, say £50 on publication, £50 six months thereafter, and a final payment of £50 twelve months thereafter, it is not clear to the publisher wishing, as always, to meet the regulations of the Custom House, which of the three amounts he should include in the importation cost of the sheets—£50, £100 or £150.

In like manner, if, as in the case now in question, the author agrees to make his payment directly contingent upon the sales, and to take this in the form of royalty, in the case in which the entire edition is not sold, (and this very frequently happens,) the author does not receive royalty on the entire number of copies, but only on such copies as have been disposed of. If, as in the present instance, a thousand copies are imported, and only 500 copies are sold, and the government insists, (as it does insist under the contention that we are now considering,) upon including with the appraised value the royalty on the entire thousand, a tax is collected upon an amount which has never formed part, and which never will form part, of the purchase price paid by the importer. There is here a manifest injustice.

In reply to a question submitted by the appraiser as to whether the cost of authorship did not form part of the export price of books imported by dozens, Mr. Putnam pointed out that the business of importing books in editions for publication in the United States, and that of importing books by dozens for sale over the retail counter, were entirely distinct, and could not equitably be grouped together under the same regulations for the appraisal of dutiable values. It was evidently the intention of the makers of the tariff to secure a protection for the industrial arts employed in book production. The American author never asked for any such protection for his own handiwork, and had never secured it, the law-makers evidently taking the ground that it was to the advantage of the community to place no further obstacles in the way of bringing in literature required for the enlightenment of American readers than is inevitable under the tariff provisions for the material elements in the book.

It was also pointed out that the invoice price of the copies of the book in question represented a profit for the English publishers from whom the books were purchased, over the presswork cost of production, of about one hundred per cent. This was made clear by the statement of Messrs. Dutton that in printing the book later, they had been able to produce copies in this country at half the cost of those purchased in London. The invoice value was evidently, therefore, a legitimate "market value" for a volume of this compass, character and quality purchased in sheets in supplies of not less than one thousand copies at a time.

If the contention should be sustained that in the importation of sheets some allowance must always be made, (irrespective of the actual purchase price,) for the cost of authorship, the same principle would, as a matter of consistency, apply to the importation of plates. It happens from time to time that in the case of books for which an American copyright is not to be secured, the American publishers divide with the English publishers the cost of production. They pay half the cost of the typesetting and half the cost of the designing and block making of the illustrations. They also pay the exact cost of the production of the duplicate set of the stereotype plates. These plates, when imported, are subject to the duty of twenty-five per cent., based upon one-half of the typesetting and the exact cost of stereotyping. The book as published in this country is as a rule subject to the payment of royalty to the author, this royalty being payable as and when the copies are sold, such payments continuing over a series of years. It has never been held that plates so imported should have included in their dutiable value an allowance for the cost of authorship. If this contention should be made, it would certainly be very difficult to determine at what amount a royalty extending over an indefinite term of years should be appraised as a part of the dutiable value of the plates.

The point was also emphasized that it was not in order to include as part of the dutiable value any element or factor in the book, or the results of any hours of labor required for the production of certain demands in the book, which did not find place in the tariff schedule as subject to duty if imported separately.

The parallel case of similar editions exported by the English publishers to the Australian market was cited. The Australian Colonies have a tariff system of their own, under which duty is chargeable on bound books, and separately on paper, binders' cloth, etc. In sales of English editions made to Australian publishers on terms similar to those which are in force for the transaction now in question, the Australian customs authorities had collected duty in regular course on the articles specified in the tariff, but had not thought it in order to make any additional claim for duty on a valuation of the element authorship or royalty. The same statement may be made for similar importations into the European States which impose duties upon books or upon book materials.

DUTY ON ROYALTIES.

It was decided by I. F. Fischer, of the Board of General Appraisers at New York, on February 26, that royalty fees on imported books are properly a part of the foreign market value of the publications, and as such must be included in the invoice value for dutiable purposes.

The case stands in the name of E. P. Dutton & Co., but the question presented is one affecting many other booksellers. Mr. John Macrae, representing E. P. Dutton & Co., went to Washington to appeal to the General Board and to convince it that the decision is in error.

The case in brief arose over the importation by E. P. Dutton & Co. of sheets of George Gissing's "House of Cobwebs." In addition to the duty of 25 per cent. on the amount paid the English publishers, a duty was imposed on the sum supposed to represent the amount of the author's royalty, an amount that in almost every instance cannot be definitely determined, owing to the uncertainty of the number of copies that will be sold in this country.

A protest was made at once by the Duttons. Mr. Macrae was to have sailed for Europe on February 25, but he has now postponed his trip until the question of tariff has been settled. His first protest was to Colonel Fowler. Other protests of a similar nature were made to the appraisers by G. P. Putnam's Sons, Fleming H. Revell Company and D. Appleton & Co. Mr. George Haven Putnam submitted an oral statement, which, later, at the request of the appraiser, was presented in writing for the files of the office. A resumé of this statement is given on pages 851 and 852 of this issue. Mr. Macrae, in his protest to the appraiser, said:

Regarding the right of the Government to assess a duty on the estimated or uncertain value of authorship in connection with the valuation of imported books, it has been a general trade custom for the last twenty-two years to at times import from Great Britain books in sheets, paying to the publisher or printer an agreed amount and paying a certain percentage of the retail selling price of the book to the author. On May 15, 1877, Secretary Sherman wrote to the Appraiser of the Port of New York a general letter of instruction concerning the illusive and uncertain foreign market value of books. On February 13, 1903, G. W. Whitehead, then Appraiser of the Port of New York, wrote to N. M. Stranahan, Collector of Customs for the Port of New York, acknowledging the uncertainty of there being any wholesale foreign market value of books in question.

Since 1903 the Examiner of Books at the Port of New York has practically, by accepting the invoices of importers, acknowledged the contention that there is no foreign wholesale foreign market value of books in England.

As there is no basis for determining the wholesale market value of books in Great Britain, it seems to me that there is no justification in the contention that royalties should be assessed as of dutiable value.

As publishers we have the right by custom to purchase in Great Britain the American rights of a book and pay from £50 to £1000 for the right to publish in America, and to have this manuscript set in type and the plates made in England, and then import the plates, entering them at the price paid to the English typesetter and plate-maker. In appraising a set of books thus arranged for the Appraiser would not assess duty on the amount paid for the right to control such books in the United States.

Books imported from England are not copyrighted in the United States, and are not protected by the United States laws. Any American printer or publisher can, by purchasing a copy of the book, either abroad or from the American publisher, have it set up and printed in the United States without paying any royalty to the author or to the publisher.

As these royalties are in many instances never paid, and as the royalty does not in any wise enter into the cost of manufacturing the book, the plates may be imported without regard to royalty, and the manuscript imported without regard to prices paid.

NEW HEADQUARTERS FOR THE NEW YORK STATIONERS.

THE new headquarters of the Stationers' Association of New York, on the sixth floor of the Mutual Reserve Building, 309 Broadway, New York City, were opened on the evening of February 18. A number of prominent members of the trade, more especially retailers from the down town district, were present.

The headquarters, which, though the organization has been in existence almost two years, are the first permanent quarters ever occupied. The first meetings were held at the headquarters of the Typothetæ, at 320 Broadway, at the old Boost Club rooms, 82 Duane Street, and later at the Astor House.

Arrangements had been made for very desirable quarters in the new Merchants' Association Building, where rooms were to be occupied adjoining several allied organizations; but this plan had to be given up for several reasons, among them the slowness with which the building was being gotten into shape for occupancy. The quarters which have at last been secured are in a fine large modern office building located in one of the most conveniently reached sections of the city. The room, which measures 19½ x 27 feet, will be large enough for all the purposes of the association for sometime at least. It is light and airy and has been furnished with good taste, though not elaborately.

BANQUET OF THE AMERICAN BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE Banquet Committee of the American Booksellers' Association, made up of representatives of the Booksellers' League, the Booksellers of New York, the Brotherhood of Commercial Travellers, the Boost Club, the trade journals and the American Booksellers' Association, met at the office of the Association, No. 27 East Twenty-second Street, New York, on Tuesday, February 26, at 2 P.M.

The meeting was called to order by Harry F. Davis, secretary, who nominated Charles A. Burkhardt as chairman. Mr. Burkhardt was unanimously elected and took charge of the meeting. The other offices were filled by the election of Francis Gilman as secretary and of Henry Malkan as treasurer.

Mr. Burkhardt announced the following sub-committees.

Committee on Arrangements: Harry F. Davis, L. E. Turk, C. A. Burkhardt, ex-officio.

Committee on Printing: F. D. Lacy, F. P. Seymour, W. E. Smith.

Committee on Tickets: W. L. Butler, F. D. Lacy, C. E. Butler.

Press Committee: A. Growoll, E. O. Chapman, W. E. Price, Henry J. Berger, C. C. Walden, B. H. Allbee.

Reception Committee: W. G. Preston, Simon Brentano, A. Growoll, Louis E. Turk, W. E. Smith, E. Byrne Hackett, A. Wessels, F. P. Seymour, Henry J. Berger, W. E. Price, C. C. Walden, H. G. Kiggins, Samuel Graydon, Francis Gilman, W. L. Butler, W. M. Stitt, E. O. Chapman, B. H. Allbee, Henry Malkan, F. D. Lacy, W. R. Berryman, Miles Standish, C. E. Butler.

It was decided to hold the banquet at the rooms of the Aldine Association, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York, on the evening of May 15, at 6.30 P.M.

The greatest interest was shown by all who attended the meeting and the most successful banquet in the history of the Association seems to be assured. Chairman Burkhardt promises some great surprises in the way of speakers and souvenirs. The tickets, at $2.50 each, will be ready shortly, and may be obtained of any member of the committees.

THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE AMERICAN NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION held its twenty-first annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City, on February 20 and 21. Owing to the illness of the president of the Association, S. S. Rogers, of The Chicago News, Herbert F. Gunnison, of The Brooklyn Eagle, acted as chairman. The attendance was the largest on record, nearly 150 members being present. The meetings were strictly private and none but members were admitted. It was given out, however, that the Association had framed protests against the recommendations of the Postal Reform Commission in regard to the handling of second-class mail, and that every effort will be made to prevent the adoption of these recommendations by Congress, by exposing their apparent inconsistencies. If these efforts are of no avail, steps will be taken by the Association to make the operation of the recommendations as ineffective as possible.

At the second day's session the Association made new agreements with the International Typographical Union, the International Stereotypers' Union and the International Photo Engravers' Union. It was said by a member of the Publishers' Association that there is now a clear understanding between the publishers and the unions, and that by the new arrangement strikes can be averted and all matters of dispute settled amicably. Herman Ridder, of the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, was elected president of the Association for the ensuing year.

At the dinner given on the evening of February 21 there were present among the speakers St. Clair McKelway, of The Brooklyn Eagle; Sir Charles Marcil, Deputy Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons; the Rev. Dr. Frank O. Hall, of the Church of the Divine Paternity, New York City; and John Kendrick Bangs.

CO-OPERATION IN CANVASSING THE TRADE.

ONE of the most serious problems which confronts a publisher in the marketing of his goods is the difficulty of assuring himself that the booksellers in the smaller cities have had an opportunity to actually see his new books. In practically every city there is a good bookstore through which every publisher knows that some of his publications may find ready sale, and he also realizes that the sale of only a few books in each of these many stores would represent a very large increase in his aggregate output. But the expense of traveling is so great that in the main the salesman has to confine his route to the large cities, leaving other booksellers to be reached by advertising or, at best, to find the new book for themselves when they make an occasional trip to the jobbing-house, where the multiplicity of new publications is always confusing.

An attempt to solve this difficulty is now being made by the three Boston publishing houses of John W. Luce & Company, Herbert B. Turner & Company and Small, Maynard & Company, who have jointly employed an energetic salesman who will, during the present year, spend practically his entire time in visiting the smaller cities of the country. This will not make any change in trips of the regular representatives of each of these houses, who will continue as heretofore to canvass the larger dealers.

A DANGEROUS BOOK COLLECTOR.

"THERE used to be a New York book collector," according to the Boston Traveller, "who was the terror of all who knew him. The possessor of a large fortune, he was an enthusiastic collector, but his enthusiasm made him a dangerous man to know. No one's library was safe, provided he had access to it and it contained a book or a manuscript which he regarded with covetous eyes.

"For a long period he was unsuspected. He would call, pass a few hours in the collection of one of his victims, and go away. Frequently books were missed directly after his departure, but no one connected him with their absence. His vast wealth, for one thing, lulled suspicion, for, argued his friends, why should a man steal bookish treasures when he had money enough to form a dozen fine libraries if he chose?

"Finally, a bibliophile, whose collection had been grievously despoiled, became suspicious. He did not care to accuse the man directly, so he went to his lawyer instead. The latter asked him to compile a list of the missing rarities. It was a somewhat lengthy list, considering the extreme rarity and value of the items in question. Possibly twenty books in all were concerned.

"Armed with this list, the lawyer called on the man, to whom he was personally unknown, and introduced himself as a collector from the South. He had repeatedly heard of the gentleman, he told him, as a bibliophile of recognized authority, and wished to consult him about a number of books which had been offered to him by a dealer before he decided upon their purchase or rejection.

"What are the books?" asked the host.

"The lawyer mentioned the titles of some of the missing volumes.

"Ridiculous!" said the collector. "No one can sell you those books. I own the only copies in this country."

"Making a hurried departure, the lawyer went to his client's house. The following day he wrote a letter which resulted in the restoration of the spoil to its rightful owner. Other bibliophiles learned the facts in the case, and upon the collector's sudden death, a year later, legal steps were taken to compel the return of other rare books thought to be in the collection. One hundred and twenty-five books in all were returned, it is believed, by the heirs of this collection, whose name, although not exactly revered, is remembered with lively interest by certain New York book lovers."

$2900 FOR CHAMPLAIN'S FIRST VOYAGE.

THE rare first issue of Champlain's first narrative of his first voyage to America—"Des Sauvages, ou, Voyage de Samvel Champlain, de Brovage, fait en la France nouvelle, l'an mil six cens trois"—was sold at auction by the Merwin-Clayton Company on February 26 for $2900. This is said to be the highest price paid at public auction for any single volume in a year in either this city, Boston, or Philadelphia. The buyer was Dodd, Mead & Co. It was sold to that firm after spirited biddings.

The volume is a small octavo of thirty-six pages of text, and was published in Paris in 1603, and dedicated to Charles de Montmorency. The privilege on the reverse of the title is dated November 15, 1603. The book was printed by order of Champlain upon his return from his first voyage. There seems to be no other recorded sale of this first issue, and but one of the second issue, which was sold with the Brayton Ives library for $400 and is now owned by J. Pierpont Morgan. The only known copies of the first issue are those in the Lenox Library, the John Carter Brown Library, and the British Museum.

This rarity was picked up in Paris about six months ago for something like 20 centimes by a book lover, who found it amid a lot of cheap books on a dealer's street stall. It was rebound for the owner by Zaehnsdorf.

COMMUNICATIONS.

FOR MAINTAINING BOOKTRADE REFORM To the Trade.

IN view of the fact that the general opinion of those engaged in the business of retail bookselling is that the maintenance of net prices and limited discounts is required in order to yield a legitimate profit to dealers, we wish to state to our customers that our new copyright books are supplied with the distinct understanding that for one year after publication net books are to be retailed at the list price, and books not net at not more than twenty-eight per cent. discount from the published price, also that the discount to libraries upon such books is not to exceed ten per cent. upon net books and thirty-three and one-third per cent. upon other publications.

INDIVIDUAL CONTRACTS FOR COPYRIGHT FICTION.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I note that all the leading publishers claim to be "anxious" to maintain the $1.08 rate for fiction and net prices on other books at retail. "Above terms with discounts allowed to public libraries," etc., are to be placed on their bill-heads, monthly statements, etc.

Would it not have looked more like a solid business proposition if each publisher had insisted on individual contracts with the jobbers and booksellers? Could this not have been done under present decisions of the courts regarding copyrights, etc.?

AN "OLD-FASHIONED BOOKSELLER."

[There is no known legal obstruction to making individual contracts with any purchaser. In fact, the new plan was adopted to accomplish reform along the lines of individual action by publishers rather than through concerted action.—ED. P. W.]

PUBLICATIONS OF THE AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR PSYCHICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We beg to advise you that the Society for Psychical Research issues, monthly, a journal, which is for private circulation among members and associates only, and is not for sale at book stores or counters for periodicals.

The society also issues, at irregular intervals, a more or less bulky volume of proceedings, the size and price of which will vary considerably. OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. GEORGE HARVEY BALL, a well-known educator and Baptist clergyman, died at Clifton Springs, N. Y., on February 21. Dr. Ball was born in Sherbrooke, Quebec, Canada, December 7, 1819. Though born on British territory, he claimed to be a native American, his parents both being citizens of the United States. He also claimed descent from George Washington's mother, and founded an association of the descendants of Mary Ball. Dr. Ball's parents returned to the United States and settled in Ohio, where their son was educated. He attended Farmington Academy and Grand River Institute, and later took a theological course at Lewiston, Me. He taught for a number of years in the Geanga Seminary, where President Garfield was a student. He held a pastorate for a short time in Providence, R. I., and one in Buffalo, which with an interruption of five or six years extended in all over thirty years. During the interim he established in New York City and edited The Baptist Union, a Freewill Baptist weekly. In 1892 he founded Keuka College on Lake Keuka, and was its president up to the time of his death. Dr. Ball had always been active in the affairs of state. He was a member of the first Republican National Convention, in 1858, that placed Fremont in nomination for the office of President of the United States. He wrote a number of books, chiefly of a theological character.

WE regret to note the sudden death of Archibald Clavering Gunter, novelist, playwright and publisher, at his home, No. 145 West 73d Street, New York City, on the evening of February 24. Mr. Gunter had not been ill, and was engaged in writing the last pages of the manuscript of a new play when he was stricken with apoplexy. Mr. Gunter was born on October 25, 1847, in Liverpool, Eng. His parents came to this country in 1883 and settled in California. After attending the public schools in San Francisco, Mr. Gunter was graduated from the School of Mines of the University of California. He was, in turn, a civil engineer with the Central Pacific Railroad, a chemist in the California Assay Office, superintendent of mines in Utah and a stockbroker in San Francisco. In 1879 he came to New York. "Mr. Barnes of New York" was his first successful novel. More than a million copies were sold in this country and England. And yet, every publisher in this country to whom the manuscript was offered, refused it. Mr. Gunter, confident in his work, finally decided to publish the work himself, and established the Home Publishing Company, the very efficient head of which was his wife, Esther Lisbeth Burns, niece of George H. Story, the portrait painter, and at one time curator of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Mr. Gunter was the author of a number of successful plays, among them "Prince Karl," in which Richard Mansfield made his first hit, and of thirty-nine novels. His latest, if not his last novel, "Mr. Barnes, American," has been brought out this week by Dodd, Mead & Co.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PAUL BOURGET has just finished a new novel called "L'Émigré," which will appear shortly in La Revue des Deux Mondes.

MISS ZOE PROCTER, who was the late Mrs. Craigie's secretary, has made a volume of extracts from the works of John Oliver Hobbes, which will soon be published. It is not merely a collection of the epigrams and witty sayings, but will contain passages of more enduring thought.

W. R. PATTERSON—better known as the novelist, "Benjamin Swift"—is about to publish a series of studies in history, to be entitled "The Nemesis of Nations." He believes that he has gathered together therein facts which not only illuminate dark ages but display modern problems in their ancient form.

ON March 1 William Dean Howells celebrated his seventieth birthday. Hosts of friends remembered him, for he never lacked friends from the day he entered public life until now. Brilliant without becoming sensational or pyrotechnic, profound without becoming obscure, his whole being pulsating with sympathy and love for his fellow-men, Mr. Howells's work will endure when that of many of his more showy contemporaries shall have perished and turned to dust. For his many endearing personal qualities we love him, and hope he may be spared many years longer in his present sphere of usefulness and good cheer.

THE centenary anniversary of the birth of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was celebrated on February 27, particularly at his birthplace, Portland, Me., at his college, Bowdoin, and at his residence in Cambridge, Mass. The schools and city hall of Portland were the scene of a general celebration, and the poet's college listened to an address and a poem by two of the professors of that institution. In Cambridge the tribute was particularly noticeable, as a half holiday was declared, the Longfellow exhibition of rare memorabilia was opened at the library, and Harvard University held a meeting at Sanders' Theatre. Throughout the schools of New England and New York City the day was observed, and in New York City the National Arts Club observed the centennial with a banquet, at which Dr. Henry van Dyke, Richard Watson Gilder, Edwin Markham, Mrs. J. C. R. Dorr and others were the speakers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE first number of the Ziegler Magazine for the Blind will be published next week.

The Magazine of American Progress is the name of a quarterly periodical which will soon be issued in San Francisco. Wellington E. Wolfe, the associate editor, says that the magazine will cover topics of interest to the whole coast. The first number will discuss San Francisco's World's Fair in 1913, various phases of the rehabilitation of San Francisco, banking and finance and commercial progress. Each number will include portraits and sketches of men prominent in business and the professions.

The Burlington Magazine for February, published by Robert Grier Cooke, contains a photogravure frontispiece of a superb picture by Palma Vecchio. Among the editorial articles is one discussing a practical scheme for improving the catalogue of the National Gallery. There are papers on "London's Leaded Steeples," by Lawrence Weaver; on "The Modern House and the Modern Picture," by S. L.; on "The Making of Modern Archaeology," by J. L. Myres, and on "Sixteenth Century German Wood Engraving," by Campbell Dodgson.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID HAYDEN LLOYDE, on February 25, celebrated their golden wedding at their home, 308 W. Clark Street, Champaign, Ill. Mr. Lloyd has been established in the book and stationery business since 1867, and is well known to many in the trade outside of his own State. We heartily congratulate the happy couple and wish them many happy returns of the day.

WILLIAM B. PERKINS, publisher and commission bookseller, formerly in charge of the New York branch house of D. Lothrop & Co., and later for years in charge of the book department of the H. B. Claflin Co., has established headquarters for his business with Theodore E. Schulte, 132 East Twenty-third Street, southwest corner of Lexington Avenue, New York, and removed his present business from 222 West Twenty-third Street to the above address. All orders will be shipped and business attended to at the new address.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE page of classified advertising in the form of a Directory of Publishing Adjuncts, which appears for the first time in this issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, will hereafter be printed regularly and in time be further augmented. It will, it is hoped, become a convenient reference list of firms whose specialties bring them more or less into the field of book production, and as such will be suggestive to those engaged in the manufacturing branch of the publishing profession.

THE BOOK SUPPLY COMPANY, Chicago, will publish in the fall a new book by Harold Bell Wright, author of "That Printer of Udell's," to be entitled "The Shepherd of the Hills." The scene of the story is the Ozark regions of Southern Missouri.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce for publication next summer a new novel by Eugene P. Lyle, entitled "Lone Star," which is the story of the fall of the Alamo. Mr. Lyle is well remembered as the author of "The Missourian," which had a somewhat extraordinary career for a first novel.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just ready "The Story of Bawn," by Katharine Tynan, the story of a young Irish woman belonging to an old and honored family in reduced circumstances, worked out with Mrs. Tynan's customary delightful sentiment and cheerful humor.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish early in the spring a volume entitled "Four Seasons in the Garden," by Eben E. Rexford, who has an established reputation on subjects of this kind. His new volume, which will be of great interest to the amateur gardener, will be adequately illustrated with pictures in tint and a frontispiece in colors.

THE ST. LOUIS (MO.) LUMBERMAN announces for early publication a work on "The Utilization of Wood Waste by Distillation," by W. B. Harper. The book will contain a hundred or more illustrations, and the author will describe in detail the various devices, re-torts, boilers, plants, machinery, etc., invented for the utilization of saw dust, slabs, stumps and fat wood from pitch pine and fir.

THE PUBLIC PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, will bring out shortly a new book by Bolton Hall, entitled "Three Acres and Liberty," which, according to the author, "is intended to open the eyes of the city man of small means, and the feasibility of getting a living out of from one to three acres, either with or without giving up his present occupation, and without cutting himself off from near neighbors."

AFTER Doubleday, Page & Co. had accepted, printed and sold thousands of copies of Edward Noble's "The Issue," they were informed by the J. B. Lippincott Company that a book of the same name, by George Morgan, had been published by them some years ago. It was too late to change the name of the first edition of Mr. Noble's book, but the second edition, soon to appear, will be known as "Fisherman's Gat," the name under which it was published in England.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish this spring an "Introductory Latin Book," by F. P. Moulton, a book for beginners in Latin, with a number of illustrations; also, "A Text Book in Topographical Drawing," by F. T. Daniels, a new volume in the Anthony Technical Drawing Series. Mr. Daniels's work presents the details of topographical drawing, together with problems involving the design of structures and calculations relating to them. The book is fully illustrated and contains colored plates.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish this month "The Cruise of the Shining Light," by Norman Duncan, author of "Dr. Luke of the Labrador," etc., another tale of the sombre northern region that this author in his previous work has so well set forth; "The Giant's Strength," by Basil King, a dramatic story, pulsing with vigorous human life; "Katherine," by E. Temple Thurston, a story of temptation bravely resisted; also, "The Princess," by Margaret Potter, an absorbing novel of present-day Russia.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have published for John A. Larkin a useful little volume for autograph collectors, entitled "American, Public Men." The volume, whose compiler is only fifteen years old, is singularly accurate, and contains the names of the members of the early Congresses of this country, date and length of their terms, with the States which they represented and other data. The lists are complete with the exception of the Continental Congress. As many members did not attend that Congress, it is almost impossible to compile a perfect list.

PAUL ELDER & Co. announce for the spring "The Ministry of Beauty," by Stanton Davis Kirkham, author of "Where Dwells the Soul Serene," an exponent of a rational, wholesome philosophy of life; a new edition of "The Philosophy of Despair," by Dr. David Starr Jordan, which has been revised and renamed "The Philosophy of Hope," the second series of "The Psychological Year-Book," by Janet Young; also, "The Weaving of Life's Fabric," a philosophic poem, by Mrs. Agnes Greene Foster, who, it is said, has successfully appealed to Christian Scientists and others interested in the New Thought, by her several publications of similar tenor.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish shortly "The Dust of Conflict," a new novel by Harold Bindloss, author of "The Cattle Baron's Daughter," etc. The action of the new story takes place for the most part in Cuba in the time just preceding the Spanish war. The blowing up of the Maine has a dramatic part in the plot. Mr. Bindloss is an Englishman, and lives a quiet country life at Great Corby, Carlisle, Eng., a fact rather surprising to one who has read his novels, which are stirring and descriptive of the wildest part of western America and British Columbia. His diversions from literary work consist of wheeling, boat building and gardening, for Mr. Bindloss, having had to shift for himself a great part of his life, is a jack-of-all-trades, a veritable Robinson Crusoe.

DUFFIELD & Co. will bring out on the 23d inst. "Sir Elyot of the Woods," a new novel by Emma Brooke, author of "The Engrafted Rose," which deals with the efforts of a young baronet to save a woods that was included in the bride's dower of an old English family from destruction; also, "The Ferry of Fate," by Samuel Gordon, author of Lesser Destinies, a story of the Jews and government of Russia, the plot of which centres in the struggle of two young Jews for their people, involving for each the supreme sacrifice of his life. Later in the month they will publish "A Winged Victory," a story of Western life, by Professor R. M. Lovett, of the Chicago University; also, "Business and Education," by Frank A. Vanderlip, first vice-president of the National City Bank, a collection of addresses dealing authoritatively with financial, industrial and educational questions.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston, have just brought out "Highland Mary," a story by Clayton Mackenzie Legge, who has made use of the most romantic episodes in the life of the poet, Robert Burns—his courtship of Mary Campbell, his love affair with Jean Armour and his troubles with Lady Glencairn; also, a new edition—the fourth—of "A Boy's Vacation," by Young King. They will bring out shortly "Midsummer Madness," by Emilia Pardo Bazan, translated from Spanish by Amparo Loring, the pseudonym of a well-known Boston society woman; "The Lieutenant, the Girl and the Viceroy," a happy-go-lucky and breezy, yet dramatic story of Marshall Putnam Thompson, one of Boston's rising young lawyers, who has chosen South America for the background of history; also, "Fires of Desire," a story, by Lawrence R. Mansfield.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR Co. have just ready "Dimbie and I," by Mabel Grundy-Barnes, who has been spoken of as the "English Kate Douglas Wiggin," which has all the fine humor and the remarkable character delineation which made the author's former book, "Hazel of Heatherland," so noteworthy and successful a book in spite of its title. The book has six illustrations by Otto Lang. On the 15th inst. they will publish "The Sowing of Alderson Cree," by Margaret Prescott Montague, a story of the primitive West Virginia mountain folk, of a vendetta that grew out of a misunderstanding in the land where the law of the State is not, as in some other States, subordinated to the rough law of a feud. Later in the month they will bring out "The Case of Doctor Horace," by John H. Prentiss, a study of the importance of conscience in the detection of crime, which the publishers are confident will rank with some of Conan Doyle's best stories for its original detective work.

AN interesting addition to their already long list of nature books is announced by Doubleday, Page & Co. in "The Reptile Book," which they will bring out early in March. It is by the curator of reptiles in the New York Zoological Park, and is said to be the first complete and up-to-date book on North American reptiles yet made. It was written, too, with the idea of being helpful to agriculturists, for the species of economic importance have been defined, and the habits given, and every species of North American poisonous serpent is represented by a photograph, except two that inhabit practically inaccessible parts of the Colorado desert. The illustrations represent about seventy per cent. of the North American reptiles. They announce a somewhat novel book on the use of fruit as food in "Fruit Recipes," by R. M. Fletcher Berry. The reader is not only shown the unappropriated uses of fruit, but gives 900 recipes for fruit dishes and drinks. The book will be profusely illustrated.

THE G. W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY will publish late in March or early in April a new novel by Arthur Hornblow, author of "The Lion and the Mouse," which is now nearing its sixtieth thousand. Mr. Hornblow's new book is called "The End of the Game," a key to the significance of the title being found in this quotation on the first page: "As in a game of cards so in the game of life. We must play well what is dealt to us." It is a tremendous story of love amid the fierce clash of modern business life and presents a heroine as fascinating as any that has appeared in fiction since Jane Eyre. Dealing powerfully and graphically with scenes and characters in present-day American life, it is peculiarly timely in its theme which is full of intense humanity, while its many dramatic situations keep the reader engrossed from start to finish. The admirable way in which the book is written, its wealth of incident, its excellent character drawing, vivid pictures of metropolitan scenes and of business life, all insures quick popularity for the book and the gaining of thousands of new readers for this vigorous writer.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS will publish shortly in their Oxford Library of Prose and Poetry "Selections from Dr. Johnson's Rambler," edited, with preface and notes, by W. Hale White. It is explained that the object is not so much to give specimens of felicitous expressions as to show what Johnson thought. The editor says that there is much in Johnson which is not revealed in his conversation, and that he is but partially understood by those who know him through Boswell alone, the "Life," indeed, having obscured the merits of Johnson's own works. Another volume of Jowett's Essays—dissertations turning principally on his method of interpreting Scripture—with an introduction by Professor Lewis Campbell is also about to be issued in the Oxford Library of Prose and Poetry. The essays selected include those on the interpretation of Scripture, (published in "Essays and Reviews,") the abstract ideas of the New Testament, the Old Testament, and contrasts of prophecy, and the sermon on Richard Baxter is appended. The reprint is timely in view of the controversies of the present day.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just published a new book by Dr. Isaac K. Funk, entitled "The Psychic Riddle," in which the author presents evidence from the spirit world that death is pleasant, that the spirits have bodies and that when they enter earthly conditions they experience a difficulty of breath such as earthly folk experience in going into a place of foul smells. "So if these spirits are to be believed," says Dr. Funk, "we will not get free from taking care of bodies by dying." This information purported to come from Dr. Richard Hodgson, late secretary of the Society for Psychical Research, communicated through Mrs. Piper, the famous Boston medium, to Professor James H. Hyslop. Dr. Funk has been interested in spirits for many years and has spent much time investigating mediums and their revelations. The subject is one which should not be scoffed at, he believes, and although he is not willing to declare himself a believer in spirits, he does think that there are classes of phenomena which point clearly to the operation of intelligent forces that exist outside of what we know as human bodies.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in preparation two volumes on the doctrine of atonement that treat it from entirely different viewpoints—"The Meaning and Message of the Cross," by Henry C. Mabie, and "The Heart of the Gospel," by James M. Campbell. The latter book is more direct in its treatment, and it is rather unfortunate that the author's name is the same as that of the London minister. Dr. James Campbell, however, (formerly of Chicago,) is now an active pastor in California, and author of "The Indwelling Christ, After Pentecost," and other books favorably received. They also announce an authoritative book on the relations of Christian and Moslem religions in the East, entitled "Islam and Christianity in India," by E. M. Wherry. Dr. Wherry has been for thirty years on the ground as a missionary, has published a commentary on the Koran and several other books and is generally accepted as an authority. The contents of this book were delivered as lectures to the students of Princeton Seminary and are marked by great fairness to the Moslems, whom he contends we must not call heathen.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week a decorative gift book entitled "In My Lady's Garden," by Katrina Trask. This love story is printed in two colors with ornamental design and cover, and makes an attractive gift book. They have again put to press new issues of "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne" and "The Belovéd Vagabond," by W. J. Locke. "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne," in dramatic form, is now having a successful run and will be brought out on the New York stage early next fall. Mr. Locke's "Vagabond" is winning even more friends day by day, both here and in England, so that it is difficult to keep him in print. Owing to the revived interest in Anthony Trollope, John Lane Company have just issued a uniform edition of fourteen of the most important works of this author, who in his day did for England what Balzac has done for France. This edition is bound in dark green flexible leather, printed upon thin opaque paper, the volume being a good size for a library, small and easy to handle. They have also issued George Borrow's complete works, in five volumes, bound in green flexible leather, in similar style to the Trollope.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY has in preparation "Odds and Ends from Pagoda Land," by Dr. W. C. Griggs, who gives interesting bits of information and gossip of Burma scarcely to be found elsewhere; "Baptist and Congregational Pioneers," by the Rev. J. H. Shakespeare, who has put into succinct form the history of separatism in England, briefly sketching the break with Rome under Henry VIII. leading up to the origin of Congregationalism under Robert Brown; a new edition of "A Short History of the Baptists," by Professor Henry C. Vedder, revised, enlarged and illustrated; "For the Work of the Ministry," by the Rev. Dr. T. Harwood Pattison, elaborated by his son, Harold Pattison, which will be found in every respect a worthy companion to those of the author's which have preceded it, including such notable works as "The Making of the Sermon," "Public Worship" and "The History of Preaching;" also, "Practical Ideals in Evangelism," by Charles Herbert Rust, who has drawn on his large and varied experience in suggesting ideas for the conduct of meetings, for relations of the individual church to others, for the attitude of the church to young people, and for the employment of each individual member in the general work.

McCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. publish this week "The Whirlwind," a new story by Eden Phillpotts, a drama of the country people of Dartmoor, Eng., presenting a strong picture of the elemental, forceful and, at times, almost grotesque characters that the narrow life in that rugged, bleak country produces; "Fanshawe of the Fifth," by Ashton Hilliers, which is described as "an old-fashioned novel displaying life on a broad canvas with a large number of characters and a wealth of picturesque incident and exciting experience;" "The Silent Door," by Florence Wilkinson, the first novel of a writer who has already received wide and favorable recognition as a poet; "The Bird of Time—being the conversations of Egeria," by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, a series of scintillating conversations in each of which a group of agreeable characters, amid charming surroundings, discuss some topic of essential interest to women or about women, while through these discussions runs the delicate thread of a charming little love story that binds the work together and gives it unity; "He Knew Lincoln," by Ida M. Tarbell, a charming and pathetic study of the human side of the great man of the people; also, "From King to King," by G. Lowes Dickinson, author of "Letters from a Chinese Official," etc., who in this little volume has condensed in a dozen dramatic dialogues the whole story of the Great Rebellion from the beheading of Charles I. to the return of Charles II. at the Restoration.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will publish shortly a stirring novel of the martial type of Stanley Weyman's, entitled "The Stolen Throne." It is the joint work of Herbert Kaufman and May Isabel Fisk, and is brilliantly written around a plot of remarkable interest, and is distinguished by a warmth of color and a quality of workmanship that will place it among the marked novels of the year. The literary partnership which has produced it is an extremely happy one, Mrs. Fisk's well-known qualities of subtlety and humor supplementing with notable effect the triumphant march of Mr. Kaufman's virile narrative. They also announce for early publication a book by Richard Barry, entitled "A Fight for News," the sub-title being "One Dispatch Boat vs. Two Navies." It is generally recognized that the recent wars have produced no other writer of a quality so original and a power so marked as the author of "Port Arthur," and this new book is, in its field, as unusual and as distinguished a performance. The book details the journalistic exploits of the hero, a war correspondent, in his highly successful efforts to secure the news of the warring Russian and Japanese fleets and bring it to a neutral cable station, in spite of the efforts of both navies to prevent. In his fast dispatch boat the lucky and plucky correspondent accomplished many daring feats, and the story, in addition to its adventuresome quality and its sidelights on recent history, is also a revelation of a phase of news gathering by our greater newspapers not often disclosed. They have in preparation a limited edition of Elisabeth Luther Cary's "Whistler," on Van Gelder hand-made paper, with wide margins and additional illustrations. The edition will be 250 signed copies.

The Story of Bawn

By KATHARINE TYNAN

Miss Tynan has her own field, and her many admirers are perfectly content to have her continue in it to the extent of its possibilities. In the portrayal of certain aspects of Irish life she has no equal, and her readers have learned to rely upon her. Her latest heroine, belonging to an old and honored family in reduced circumstances, is not unlike "Julia" and "A Daughter of the Fields," and the story of her life is worked out with Miss Tynan's customary delightful sentiment and cheerful humor. And again we find the careful avoidance of sensation and theatrical clap-trap which is one of this author's greatest charms. With frontispiece by GEORGE A. WILLIAMS. 12mo, $1.25.

Hawaiian Folk Tales

By THOMAS G. THRUM

Mr. Thrum's acquaintance with the history and folk-lore of the Islands is very large, and he has compiled a book of remarkable interest for all who may go there or wish to read of the fascinating legends of the natives. Illustrated from photographs. Large 8vo, net, $1.75.

Cosmos, The Soul, and God

By C. L. ARNOLD

Dr. Arnold aims to solve the problem as to the range, and especially the connection, between mind and matter. He has a new theory that disposes of many of the difficulties which have long baffled profound thinkers, and which is abreast of all recent discoveries. 12mo, net, $1.20.

Fingerposts to Children's Reading

By WALTER TAYLOR FIELD

Guides to good reading have been published for older people, but the young people have not been so fortunate. In this book the author has some excellent suggestions as to the most profitable lines of reading for children of all ages. This book should have the approval of all parents, teachers, and librarians. Handy 16mo, net, $1.00.

Forest Friends

By Dr. JOHN MADDEN

The author spent his boyhood days in the woods of Michigan, where wild animals were so plentiful in the '70's. His book is of especial interest at this time, when the advance of civilization is so rapidly divesting the once wild places of their animal life. With frontispiece. 12mo, $1.25.

HAROLD MACGRATH'S NOVEL HALF A ROGUE WHOLLY CHARMING

"HALF A ROGUE" CAPTURES MISS LOFTUS.

"I borrowed 'Half a Rogue' from Mr. Otis Harlan. He was reading it on the train. A few minutes later the train went off the track. Mr. Harlan never lost the place.

"Now I have rheumatism in my arm from reading 'Half a Rogue' in bed. It is the only book in the world that would have held my arm outside the covers all night long in this cold weather." CECILIA LOFTUS.

"THE BEST OF THE YEAR," SAYS CHAS. A. BIGELOW.

"'Half a Rogue' is better than one—No. 1 won't say that. Better than None—No. 1 won't say that. Better than she is painted. No, I won't say that. Better than the other half knows anything about. Yes, I might say that. Er—no, better say 'Half a Rogue' is better than the whole—the whole year's list of novels I have read. Do I make myself plain?" CHARLES A. BIGELOW.

"RIPPING GOOD FICTION," SAYS ANNA HELD.

"Harold MacGrath, there's a medal coming to you. If you had made the rogue too good, I'd have been mad. They set my teeth on edge—those mythicalladies that the average novel presents as actresses. 'Half a Rogue' enthralls me, because it's such ripping good fiction, and such unexpected truth." ANNA HELD.

NOTES IN SEASON.

T. J. McBRIDE & SON, New York, will publish next week an attractive new novel entitled "The Adventuress."

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co., Philadelphia, announce that they have made arrangements with the American Baptist Publication Society for the exclusive trade agency of "Beautiful Joe" and "Dickey Downy." For those who so desire, these two books will be bound uniform with the Jacobs edition of "Pussy Meow" and "Black Beauty," and the four volumes put up in a neat box.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just ready "Grasshopper Land," by Margaret W. Morley, who has made that group of insects as interesting as she made the bees in her former book, "The Bee People." The volume has 100 illustrations by the author. They have also just brought out "The Missions of California and the Old Southwest," by Jesse S. Hildrup, who covers the subject thoroughly from every standpoint. The book is adequately illustrated.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY some years ago published a novel by Brand Whitlock, "The Thirteenth District," which was pronounced by former President Cleveland, President Roosevelt and William Dean Howells to be the best American political story ever written. Since then Mr. Whitlock has been a close student of political and social conditions throughout the country. He is now mayor of Toledo, Ohio, succeeding Samuel M. Jones in that office. From this memorandum Mr. Whitlock's fitness to write such a book the importance of "The Turn of the Balance," announced by Bobbs-Merrill Company, may be foretold.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY bring out this week the new book by Bolton Hall, "Three Acres and Liberty," which last week was erroneously as announced to be published by the Public Publishing Company, of Chicago. Mr. Hall's book deals with the problem of turning the drift to the cities back to the country, and offers a practical solution of a sort that will appeal to the self-interest of the masses. They also publish this week a new edition of "Turner's Liber Studiorum," by W. G. Rawlinson, to which much new information has been added; "Old Hampshire Vignettes," a little volume of short sketches of village character, by the author of "Made-moiselle Ixe;" "The Epistle of St. Jude, and the Second Epistle of St. Peter," by Joseph B. Mayor; "The Fifth Gospel," by the anonymous author of "The Faith of a Christian;" "Some Points in the Surgery of the Brain," by Charles A. Ballance; also, "Epilepsy," by Dr. William Aldren Turner.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on March 16 "Marcia," by Ellen Olney Kirk, the story of a girl's struggle to maintain an ancestral estate, by the author of "The Story of Margaret Kent;" a new edition of "My Lady Pckahontas," by John Esten Cooke, purporting to be a "true relation" by one of John Smith's soldiers; "Sixty-five Years in the Life of a Teacher," by Edward Hicks Magill, a story of his work at Williston Seminary, Yale College, Brown University, Providence High School, Boston Latin School and Swarthmore College; George B. Ives's "Bibliography of Oliver Wendell Holmes," in a special limited edition of five hundred and thirty numbered copies, containing a number of rare and some quite unknown poetical pieces by Holmes; "Lee's Centennial," by Charles Francis Adams, being his address at Lexington, January 19, 1907; "Los Pastores," a translation of a hitherto unedited Mexican miracle play by Mrs. Otto B. Cole; the 1907 edition of W. J. Rolfe's "Satchel Guide" for the vacation tourist in Europe, with some new maps; also, "A Moosehead Journal," "My Garden Acquaintance," and a "Good Word for Winter," by James Russell Lowell, in the inexpensive paper Riverside Literature Series.

A member of one of the first families of Baltimore forced to earn a living becomes, through influence at Washington, a "diplomatic agent," that is, a member of a secret service, trusted with the handling of delicate diplomatic affairs that cannot be made public. Yorke Norroy had many qualities and accomplishments fitting him for the service. He had the appearance of a gentleman, was a good linguist and a capital actor. When the book opens he had been in the service ten years and rarely had a failure. His further adventures are embraced in seven stories, clever and interesting examples of a high kind of detective work.

Irish political affairs of the last fifty years form the historical basis of the story. The chief interest centres in Michael Desmond, an Irish leader identified with the Nationalist party. When Ireland's political outlook is the brightest, under the intelligent leadership of Desmond, his reputation is destroyed and his name dishonored by the exposure, by his enemies, of an intrigue in which he is involved with a married woman. While it is obvious that there are many points of resemblance between the public career of the hero and that of Charles Stewart Parnell, the author hopes "it may be equally clear that no attempt has been made in the character to suggest a portrait of that great national leader."

The love story of an English girl with a strong, beautiful character, who, loathing the life she leads on the continent with an uncongenial, pleasure-loving mother, decides to join her father in London. The revelations that meet her there are most startling. She finds herself tangled in a web of intrigue and crime, from which there seems no outlet. A man whom she had met in Switzerland follows her to London, and is her one friend in her new life. His love saves her from her father, and protects her through harrowing experiences. The fascination of Alpine climbing is sympathetically portrayed in the opening and closing chapters. By the author of "The four feathers."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 9, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

CHEAP BOOKS.

MANY ingenious arguments have recently been worked out in the press in this country and in England to prove the possibility of publishing new fiction, in cloth bindings, at fifty cents in this country and at half a crown in England. Such a course is spoken of as a "reform that must inevitably lead to a vast improvement in the business of bookselling, besides relieving the public of much needless expenditure and at the same time making the fortunes of many authors who now must struggle even for a bare living." Notwithstanding the more or less plausible arguments advanced, those who have to do with the making of books—the author and publisher—do not seem greatly impressed with the possibilities of making new books much more cheaply than they have been able to make them for some years past. Indeed, considering that every item connected with the manufacturing of books has steadily risen in price during the last ten years, it would not be surprising, should the present rates of wages, etc., remain permanent or become even higher, were the publishers, in this country at least, obliged to increase rather than to lower the prices of books.

As to the prices of works of fiction—and we presume that in speaking of books the public and the average newspaper writer means fiction—it is a fair question whether even these might be safely lowered. The opinion of the trade is that a general reduction in prices of fiction would be of little service to any one concerned in the making and selling of books, though it might gratify some readers and the circulating libraries. Fair and competent judges have arrived at the conclusion that the prices of the works of the better-known and most popular authors—those whose books are most desired, and who would command the largest audiences—could not be safely lowered to the advantage of any one concerned in writing, publishing and distributing them. New fiction during its first year of issue is now sold close to one dollar; to cut that price in two would mean either that the author might expect to receive but a third or less of the royalty he now receives, and that the books would have to be made of the cheapest material, or, that the publisher would abandon the fiction market altogether. Neither alternative is likely to present itself to the trade. In the case of less popular authors, or writers altogether unknown, who, to make a reputation, might be willing to forego immediate compensation, we conceive that it might be possible to adopt a method that would bring the price of such books below the dollar mark. Whether such work could be profitably marketed at fifty cents or whether publishers could afford to dissipate their time and strength in dealing with such work is another question. One of the principal dangers in adopting such a course would be that the minor and less profitable product would be certain to get into the way of the more important books and create no end of confusion. Besides, such work always finds a ready market in the magazine field, and should not be found between book covers. As it is, much too much ephemeral matter already masquerades in book form—but that is another story.

When pressing for cheaper fiction, public opinion no doubt has in mind the reissue of certain popular copyright stories successfully marketed during the past five years by three or four firms, and jumps at the conclusion that if these can be published at fifty cents why not all the future work of the novelists. These books are a case in point. It is possible to bring them out in a cheap form only because they have already paid for themselves in a more expensive form. Furthermore, as a confirmation of the hint of the danger pointed out above—of confusing the cheaper product with that in more permanent form—it has not as a rule been found profitable to push these cheaper editions through the bookstores in the larger cities, but rather through the stores in the smaller localities which, until these editions were put on the market, gave but slight attention to any but the cheapest form of reading matter. Furthermore, while these books undoubtedly represent a large value to the occasional bookbuyer for his fifty cents they do not attract the still goodly number of book-lovers who demand, and are willing to pay for, a well-made and substantial book, fearing that a cheap book makes a cheap man.

That the booktrade is justified in its attitude towards cheap books, is apparent in the light of recent events in the French book market. According to M. Uzanne, whose communication on the subject of cheap books to the London Athenaum is reprinted elsewhere, it seems that the enormous increase in cheap reprints of books published within the last decade has cut down the sale of new fiction to such a degree that it is now almost impossible for new authors to get a hearing. With many of the older novels of note to be had at a franc or even less, the great multitude of readers is content to ignore new productions; nor does it appear that the development of an appetite for books, which might be supposed to follow the circulation of such a large number of inexpensive reprints, has been of the least use to new authors. The remedy now proposed is to raise the price of new fiction from 3 fr. 50 c. to 7 fr. 50 c., to have the books more carefully made and to endeavor to appeal to a few select readers with small editions of from 500 to 700 copies. It is anticipated that in this scheme the publishers will find their account and the authors will be kept going "until they are ripe for the popular monster." This is an extreme case, but it carries its moral nevertheless.

THE Fifty-ninth Congress passed into history, on March 4, without having taken action on the copyright bill, though it was favorably reported in both houses on January 29. Certain Senators objected to giving consent for its consideration on the ground that the bill contained various matters that were in controversy, and that some considerable discussion was required. It was admitted that there was not time in the condition of the Senate calendar for the consideration of any bill, involving new matter, which called for discussion, and, by general consent, therefore, the bill was thrown over for the consideration of the new Congress. The two committees—House and Senate—made material alterations, some of which are considered to be very undesirable alterations, in the text of the bill since it was printed for consideration at the committee hearings, and the bill as it stood when Congress adjourned therefore gave satisfaction to few, if any, of all who were interested in its passage. A further consideration of the text of these interpolated provisions will no doubt be called for before approval will be given to the enactment of the bill in the next Congress.

LEGISLATION on postal matters was also delayed, but it is likely that a more active campaign will be undertaken in the next Congress and legislation of some kind secured. Mr. Cortelyou signalized his last day as Postmaster-General by doing what Congress failed to do, namely, adopted a reform in the system of weighing the mails. Hitherto the mail was weighed for seven days and the amount divided by six, leaving out Sundays from the divisor, to ascertain the amount on which to base the compensation of the roads. Under the new plan there will be used as the divisor in reaching the average weight of mails the actual number of days the mails are carried in the weighing period, which is good arithmetic and also good business. It will mean a reduction of at least $5,100,000 annually in the pay the railroads will receive for this service.

CHEAP BOOKS IN FRANCE.

WHILE certain interests in this country and in England are trying to rouse interest in a movement to induce publishers to reduce the price of novels, the French publishers are seriously considering the need of raising it.

"For some time," according to a communication from Octave Uzanne to the London Athenaum, "several of the inferior publishing firms have put into the market hundreds of thousands of cheap reprints of novels published within the last fifteen years. This swarm of more or less needed popular editions seems to have choked all the outlets for new productions, and, for the present, publishers have ascertained that novels by new authors find no market.

"It may be argued that cheap reprints by the thousand develop a taste for reading, and increase the number of bookbuyers; but at the present moment they have only served to reduce the buyers of new fiction, who are glad to find an opportunity of reading novels which passed unnoticed when first issued, and are now of importance on account of the fame since acquired by their authors.

"Anxious to prevent their writers from going to these second-rate firms for popular reprints, some first-class publishing houses have also started cheap collections of the sort. Messrs. Ollendorff, Flammarion and Calmann-Lévy are issuing editions at 95c. of the most successful of their novelists. The last-named have agreed with less important firms to include in their own collection such reprints; they pay larger sums to authors, and so they are setting up an opposition difficult to withstand.

"Meanwhile, of the fifteen hundred copies usually printed of a new novel at 3fr. 50c. not more than a few hundred sell, as amateurs who buy books in order to keep them do not care for badly printed things with a paper cover that becomes loose and torn before the book is read. So it has been thought fit to raise the price of new novels. Instead of bringing out 1500 copies at the usual price, on bad paper with the ordinary yellow cover, publishers will print only five, six or seven hundred copies at 7fr. 50c., more carefully got up, and designed for a few hundred choice readers who will establish the reputation of new authors, and keep them in practice until they are ripe for the popular monster. The profit would, it is said, be greater for both author and publisher, as a limited edition at a high price is likely to be quickly sold out."

In connection with the foregoing it may be interesting to note Octave Uzanne's opinion as expressed to an English writer apropos of the "Battle of the Books" waged between the London Times and the booktrade. Says M. Uzanne:

"Through the smoke of all this artillery the public is trying to see in which camp its direct interests lie—the interests, that is to say, of its purse; and as it is, and always will be, on the side of cheapness, I think that the opinion of the majority favors the Times; in other words, that it is in favor of books, both new and second-hand, at lower prices than those which now obtain. The general public sees only the specious and seductive aspect of the question, and it would be difficult to make it consider the matter with a loftier philosophy, when its reasoning is based on the economic condition of its purse.

"But between ourselves, my friend, if I had the honor to belong to the English nation . . . I should endeavor, even at the risk of being disregarded, to warn the more serious intellects of the kingdom against the illusory progress of cheap books.

"I cannot set forth here all the historical evidences necessary for the demonstration of my opinion; a whole book would hardly suffice for this. But I am none the less ready to declare that, in my opinion, the trade in books, seriously undertaken, and exclusively devoted to the making known of the pure intellectual geniuses of a people or of a race, while methodically excluding mediocrities and bad writers, ought not to be rudely convulsed, i.e., reduced to the compromise of low prices, bad workmanship, and speculations of all commercial adventurers.

"A country so rich as yours in historians, philosophers, essayists and novelists would soon fall below its noble literary standard if the booktrade, by lowering its level of excellence in accordance with sale prices, should be gradually led—as has happened with us—to increase its production, to disregard the quality of its manufacture and the superiority of authors, and to 'scamp' its output in every direction.

"Take what has happened in France since the middle of last century. The splendid Romantic School had just come to an end. Victor Hugo, Lamartine, Alfred de Musset, Dumas the Elder, Honoré de Balzac, Mérimée, Théophile Gautier, Michelet, Frédéric Goulée and many more among our best poets and novelists, had been given to the world by the leading publishers in several volumes octavo, at a price of from six to ten francs—a very high price—in spite of the fact that they were poorly printed on cotton paper, under conditions altogether inferior to those still obtaining in the principal English publishing houses. The sale-price of these Romantic works did not limit the number of impressions, neither did it check the growing fame nor restrict the monetary gain of their authors. Victor Hugo managed to be a very capable man of business, and Balzac, in spite of his debts, handled very considerable sums. Towards 1850 cheap bookselling made its appearance with Charpentier's 'Collection,' 8vo volumes, at 3fr. 50c., and at 1fr. when reprinted by Michel Lévy. At first every one was delighted, thinking only of the happy economic solution by which the public profited. Gustave Flaubert, Alphonse Daudet, Emile Zola enjoyed considerable sales; certain works boasted impressions of over four hundred thousand copies. Gradually the literary standard was lowered; publishers, seeing the success of the great novelists, became less exacting, more accessible, and amateur scribes became bolder. Now they are in the ascendant, and professional writers are confounded with literary people in society and business men who write. It is a confusion of genres, the anarchy of Belles-lettres, the Babel of publishing.

"Instead of the few hundred books a month which used to appear, we have now over a thousand, undistinguished by any particular talent. And such books! Hastily thrown together, printed on wood-paper, the typography faulty both in composition and impression, the binding of the flimsiest description. What duration can be looked for from such publications? Ten years, perhaps; at the outside, twenty. Who could compare them with the superb volumes of the English firms? No one would venture on such a paradox.

"In France, then, the cheap book has overstimulated production, destroyed material excellence in the manufacturing department, and lowered the dignity of letters: The public no longer recognizes the generals of its literature, it no longer distinguishes the banners of schools; all it sees are personalities made prominent by advertisement; all it hears are those clamorous writers who, as we say, fire off pistols to attract attention.

"Before this flood of nameless literature, of shameless novels, of cynical autobiographies, of psychical exhibitions by writers of both sexes, criticism has been forced to retire, making room for charlatans, mountebanks and the disaffected traders of the temple.

"Macaulay could not write of the literary France of to-day, as he did of our nation in the seventeenth century, that she exercised an influence over the human race greater than Rome had ever wielded. Cheap books, the throwing open of the careers of publishing and writing to every one, the spread of the cacoëthes scribendi, the decadence of letters and of books in France, are all, in my opinion, closely and logically connected, as might be readily demonstrated even to minds the most prejudiced against such a theory....

"I think that those among your compatriots who are in favor of cheap publishing must be blind to the fatal consequences of such a revolution in the future. Reserve for your admirable classics, for famous writers from Shakespeare to Dickens, popularization by means of dainty editions of 6d. or 1s. a volume. But beware of giving over your contemporary authors to the bazaar of cheap literature. To do so would be to strike a fatal blow at that dignity, that religion of letters and of talent which still survive on your soil, as yet untouched by those revolutions which have caused such irreparable ruin.

"Defend your publishers as you would defend the keepers of your locks against those who would fain destroy these necessary barriers on the pretext of 'free rivers.'"

CHANGES AT ROBERT GRIER COOKE, INCORPORATED.

GARDNER C. TEALL, who has just resigned the treasurership of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., and who has been elected vice-president of that house, with Walter S. Trumbull, secretary, left for Europe last Saturday morning on the Cellie, for a tour on the other side of about five months or more. They are going to make some important arrangements on behalf of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., in several parts of Europe, and Mr. Teall is, incidentally, going to make a typographical progress, so to speak, studying that sort of work, color work, and other things allied to them, with a view to utilizing this knowledge in his work for the house upon his return.

Robert H. Van Court, general office manager, has just been elected treasurer of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., to succeed Mr. Teall. Mr. Frederick L. Perine is, in various ways, interested in the work of this house, having been elected director recently.

Frederick Sherman, well known for his work at the house of Charles Scribner's Sons, has just accepted a position in charge of the manufacturing and art departments of Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., which have been under the management of Mr. Teall.

On Thursday afternoon, February 28, a reception to the editors, authors, artists and clients of the house was given by Robert Grier Cooke, Inc., which also marked the opening of the enlarged offices, which have recently been redecorated. Many products of the house were on exhibition at the time, including plates from the J. P. Morgan Porcelains Catalogue, and reproductions of the heavily-jewelled cover of the Lindauer Evangelii, one of the really great books of the world, and now in Mr. Morgan's collection; original caricatures from Caruso's book; wild flower plates from the book on that subject, by Miss R. C. Boardman, soon to appear, and a special display of bookplates, stationery and engraving, and material showing the three-color process and genealogical matter.

SCRIBNER'S NEW PRINTING OFFICE.

THE fourteen-story building put up by Charles Scribner's Sons for their manufacturing plant at No. 311 to 319 West Forty-third Street, just west of Eighth Avenue, in New York City, will be ready for occupancy by the end of next month. The building, which is within a block of the Times Square subway station, four-and-a-half blocks from the Grand Central Station and ten blocks from the new Pennsylvania R. R. station, has been designed by Ernest Flagg, the well-known architect, who is now also engaged on the new Singer Building and the Naval Academy buildings at Annapolis. No pains and expense have been spared to combine in its construction perfect adaptability to business requirements, with artistic effect.

It is built of steel and brick, fireproof throughout, and has been constructed for the carrying of heavy machinery. It is absolutely fireproof, with metal doors and window frames, and is provided with the Sprinkler system throughout.

Seven of the fourteen floors will be occupied by the Scribners themselves for manufacturing purposes, and of the remaining space two floors have been taken by the Redfield Brothers, printers, and the fourteenth floor, together with a roof house specially constructed for its needs, has been leased by the Color Plate Company.

The headquarters of Charles Scribner's Sons will remain at 153-157 Fifth Avenue.

RULING ON DUTY ON IMPORTED SHEETS REVERSED.

It was decided on March 7 by the Board of United States General Appraisers that sheets printed abroad and bound and finished into books in this country, are subject only to duty upon the percentage of royalty applicable to the parts involved.

The decision, which terminates the controversy between the Government and E. P. Dutton & Co., reverses the ruling made by General Appraiser Fischer, who sustained the action of the Appraiser of the Port of New York in adding to the dutiable value the entire royalty which was based upon the completed book.

The decision of the full board is broad, and includes three propositions, which are as follows: Books of foreign authors published in the United States are subject to no duty upon royalty. Books, printed and bound abroad, are subject to duty upon the entire royalty paid thereon. Sheets printed abroad and bound and finished into books in the United States are subject only to duty upon the percentage of royalty applicable to the parts involved.

CANADA BARS SUNDAY PAPERS.

TWENTY thousand American papers hitherto sold freely in Canada on Sunday are absolutely barred on that day, and Canada itself does not issue a Sunday paper. It is illegal even for express companies to bring these papers into Canada on Sunday. The legislation prohibiting the sale of newspapers throughout the Dominion on Sunday was passed at last year's parliamentary session, and the penalty for violation is a fine of $250, or two months in jail. The papers have always been obtainable on trains, at stations and at hotels and bookstalls. A meeting of those interested in the sale was held on March 1. The legal advice was that no loophole existed by which the papers could be paid for in advance or on Monday and given or delivered in rooms or at the houses of customers on Sunday.

ZIEGLER MAGAZINE FOR THE BLIND.

THE first number of the Matilda Ziegler Magazine for the Blind, which has been established by the widow of William Ziegler, came out on March 5. More than 7000 copies were printed, and while the price of the magazine is stated to be ten cents a year, nearly all these copies were sent out free. A subscription price had to be named so that the magazine could get the benefit of the second-class mail rates. On account of the weight of the magazine, if it were sent at third-class rates, each copy would cost twelve cents to mail, and the total postage would be increased nearly $8000.

The magazine is 14 inches long, 12 inches wide and nearly 2 inches thick. It contains ninety-six pages in New York point and Braille point, groups of raised dots representing letters.

The publisher's announcement says that the magazine is to have short stories, a continued story, the news of the month condensed, a department of poetry, and one of letters from successful blind people telling of their work. There is to be a page devoted to games in which the blind can engage. A page will be devoted to humorous paragraphs, and later a music column is to be added. If enough of the readers can read music a musical composition is to be printed, which will be the work of some blind composer.

In the first number are letters from President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland, telling of their interest in the blind magazine; a letter from Helen Keller expressing her thanks to Mrs. Ziegler for establishing the magazine is one of the features. There is an article covering eight pages telling of Mr. Ziegler's efforts to reach the North Pole and a long account of Anthony Fiala's expedition.

An interesting feature is an article giving simple physical exercises. The story "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" is to be printed in serial form, and the first two chapters appear in the first number. There are three pages of humorous paragraphs from the newspapers. Six pages of current events follow, the feature of which is an account of Fireman John Seufert's experience while buried in the Roosevelt Street ruins for twenty-four hours. The San Francisco school controversy is touched on, and a very complete account of the Kingston earthquake is given.

The New York point alphabet, in which most of the magazine is printed, is also given.

Requests for copies have come to the publication office of the magazine, (Walter G. Holmes, 1931 Broadway, New York City,) from all parts of the world. A plea from the Brantford asylum for the blind in Canada was so effective that Mrs. Ziegler decided not to limit the circulation to the United States. Copies will also be sent to applicants from Australia and India.

ADVERTISING BOOKS.

THE following appeared as a communication in the New York Sun on March 2:

Some one asked me the other day if I thought it dignified to advertise a book. I blessed his heart and told him yes, just as soon as I could voice the sentiment.

As near as I can make out a book is an article of commerce, and the writer having written it with all his heart and with all his soul and with all his mind, if he happens to have one, hopes it will sell like hot cakes—if he is honest with himself. And he ought to know that no matter how good it is it won't sell like hot cakes unless it is advertised like Somebody's Buckwheat.

Many writers with an oppressive sense of the dignity of their profession choose publishers who are secretive. Such publishers believe that advertising is all very well for a thing like a soap or a patent medicine, but that to advertise so dignified a thing as a book is to become a mere business man; and some old-fashioned publishers are no business men.

They are willing to make fortunes out of the books they publish if the gods are kind to them and cause their books to sell, but as for descending to methods used by students of psychology in other lines of trade, they simply won't do it.

A well-known American novelist once said: "When I have written a book I throw it over the wall to the public, and what becomes of it afterward I don't care."

Dear author! I wonder if he believed he was speaking the truth.

Well, there are publishers like this author. They print the books and throw them over the wall and walk around with dignity, and if the public were to take to buying their books in large quantities they would feel they were losing caste.

Publicity? Dear, no. Publicity for a book? Why, Shakespeare and Keats and Shelley and Milton wrote books. Books have therefore an inherent dignity. Publicity is all right for a criminal or an opera singer; but for a book! Dignity first, profits afterward.

It's lucky that Shakespeare can't come back to earth. I have a fancy that he was a pretty slick advertiser. He knew what the public wanted, and he gave it to them, and then saw that they knew about it, as his retirement with full pockets to Stratford shows.

If sandwich men had been known in those days you may be sure that he would have hired a file of them to march through London bearing some such notice as this: "Richard III. will die on the stage of the Blackfriars Theatre this morning (they had real matinées in those days) and all are invited who have the price."

A "still small voice" when no one else is talking is more noticeable than a Comanche yell during a flurry on the Stock Exchange.

A coyote on a prairie is more noticeable than he would be in a menagerie.

It's the tardy shot in a squad of soldiers who attracts the most attention.

Holler in the middle of the night if you want to be heard.

When every one else is advertising automobiles, you wait until the day after. Some people think slowly, and the other advertising will have prepared them to buy your machine.

These pearly aphorisms I cast before any who choose to dig them up.

CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS.

TO PUT THE POST OFFICE ON A BUSINESS BASIS.

WAYS and means of putting the Post-office Department on a business basis were discussed at the White House at a conference in which the President, Senators Penrose and Carter, Representatives Overstreet and Gardner and Postmaster-General Meyer took part. The Senators and Representatives are members of the joint postal commission created by Congress a year ago and re-created at the last session to make a thorough investigation into the business methods of the department, with a view, primarily, of ascertaining the cause of the annual deficit, and, secondly, of stopping the leak.

At the close of the conference it was announced, according to a special despatch to the New York Tribune, "that a general discussion of postal matters had been held, but nothing of a definite nature had been determined upon. The Congressional members of the commission will remain in Washington until about April 1, and, in the meantime, it is expected, definite plans for the overhauling of the department will be prepared.

"The Post-office Department will be placed, if possible, on a business basis like any other big business enterprise ought to be," said Postmaster-General Meyer. "Although nothing definite has been decided upon, it may be said the commission will try to find out and stop the leaks that exist, and so reorganize the system of bookkeeping that future mistakes cannot happen. There is no intimation that the deficit is caused by dishonesty, but I have no doubt that a great deal of money is sacrificed by obsolete or unimproved methods of doing things. I will do everything in my power, of course, to co-operate with the commission in its efforts to bring the service up to the plane of efficiency that it should have and maintain."

"The appointment of A. L. Lawshe as Third Assistant Postmaster-General, to succeed E. C. Madden,* is in line with the general scheme of business betterment in the department. Mr. Lawshe is an expert accountant and auditing officer of wide experience. He was sent to Cuba and Porto Rico by the President to straighten out the finances of the islands when the United States took charge of their troubled fortunes and acquitted himself admirably. It was as a reward for his good work on this exacting task that he was selected for the Third Assistant Postmaster-Generalship, and his friends are confident that he will speedily bring order to his new post."

DETACHABLE COUPONS IN ADVERTISING MATTER PERMISSIBLE UNTIL FURTHER ORDERS.

THE following communications will explain themselves:

SIR: Referring to the circular letter of this office, dated November 12, 1906, relative to detachable coupons, forms, advertisements, etc., in second-class publications, I have to invite your attention to the following order of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General:

"Office of Third Ass't P. M. General,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 27, 1907.

The law officer of the Department having, under date of Feb. 4, 1907, rendered an opinion which will permit of a modification of the ruling of this Office, dated Nov. 7, 1906, relating to detachable advertisements and coupons in advertisements, in periodicals, the same is hereby suspended until further notice. Instructions as to the limitations of such detachable forms in periodicals will as soon as possible be issued."

EDWIN C. MADDEN,
Third Ass't P. M. General.

UNITED STATES POST OFFICE, NEW YORK, N. Y.
March 2, 1907.

Therefore until otherwise instructed by the Department publications containing unperforated coupons, forms, or other matter intended to be detached will continue to be accepted for mailing at the second-class rates of postage if they conform in other respects to the requirements of the postal laws and regulations applicable to second-class matter.

Very respectfully,
WILLIAM R. WILLCOX, Postmaster.

[*This appointment has not as yet been officially confirmed.—Ed. P. W.]

NEW SYSTEM OF WEIGHING THE MAILS.

Mr. Cortelyou's last act as Postmaster-General was to adopt a long-delayed reform in the weighing of the mails. He put the new system into effect by issuing the following order:

"That whenever the weight of mail is taken on railroad routes the whole number of days the mails are weighed shall be used as a divisor for obtaining the average weight per day."

The railroad lobbyists, it is reported, were amazed by the order, and it was said that the railroads would question the Postmaster-General's authority in the courts. No one, however, seems prepared to say why this simple measure of justice should not have been insisted on long ago either by Congress or the Post-office Department.

An idea of the effect of the order can be obtained from the fact that on one route of the New York Central, from New York to Buffalo, the mail payments probably will be reduced $250,000 a year. All of the through lines will be affected. The reduction on most of the Western roads will be about 10 per cent. of the amounts they now receive.

OBITUARY NOTES.

MARY ELIZABETH BLAKE, poet and prose writer, died February 26 at her home in Boston. Mrs. Blake, née Mary Elizabeth McGrath, was born in Dungarvan, County Waterford, Ireland, in 1840. In 1849 her parents removed to Quincy, Mass. Her first literary work appeared in the Boston Pilot, the Gazette at the time edited by P. B. Shillaber, and in the Transcript. In 1865 she was married to Dr. John G. Blake. Her first book was "On the Wing," after which she published five volumes of verse, among them "Verses Along the Way," and several volumes of travel sketches.

ALFRED HODDER, for five years secretary to District Attorney Jerome, of New York City, died on March 4 in his apartments in the Hotel San Remo, New York City. Mr. Hodder was born on September 18, 1866, at Celina, Ohio. He was admitted to the bar in Denver, Colo., in 1889, and was admitted to the graduating class in Harvard, 1890-91. After a two years' stay in Europe he came to New York and became a regular contributor to The Nation. He was the author of "Adversaries of the Sceptic," a series of philosophical essays; "The Fight for the City," an account of the first Jerome campaign; "The New Americans," a novel, and, under the name of Francis Walton, collaborated with "Josiah Flynt" Willard in writing "The Powers That Prey," a series of stories based upon the illicit relations between the police and criminals of New York City, which created a considerable stir for some time after their publication.

WENDELL PHILLIPS GARRISON, forty-one years editor of The Nation, died on February 27 at South Orange after several months of declining health. Mr. Garrison, the third son of William Lloyd Garrison, the famous abolitionist, was born in Cambridgeport, Mass., June 4, 1840, and was graduated from Harvard with the class of '61. After two years of tutoring at the university he came to the New York Independent as a reviewer and editorial writer. In July, 1865, he associated himself with Edwin Lawrence Godkin to establish The Nation. From that time until June 28, 1906, when ill health forced him to withdraw from active work, Mr. Garrison was one of the most active literary workers in American journalism. He took only one vacation in twenty-two years. He had full charge of the editorial policy of the periodical and personally directed the details of making up and printing each issue. When The Nation was combined with the Evening Post, in 1881, Mr. Garrison became literary editor of the Post, and editor-in-chief of The Nation. He filled this double duty until his retirement last June. Despite his editorial labors Mr. Garrison found time for some independent writing. His "Life of William Lloyd Garrison," in four volumes, represented the effort of ten years. One day a week he devoted to research work and writing necessary to produce this work. Other books produced by Mr. Garrison were "What Darwin Saw on His Voyage Around the World," a book for juvenile readers; a collection of "Bedside Poetry," for the instruction of children; "Lyrics of the Ever-Womanly," "The New Gulliver," "Parables for School and Home" and the "Memoirs of Henry Villard," his brother-in-law, were other works of his.

ORSON DESAIX MUNN, head of the firm of Munn & Co., publishers of The Scientific American, died on February 28 at his home in New York City. Mr. Munn was born on June 11, 1824, in Monson, Mass. After passing through the academy in his home town Munn found employment in a Springfield bookstore, where he remained two years, returning to Monson to work in a country store. When he was twenty-two years old he came to New York, and with Alfred E. Beach, son of Moses Y. Beach, then proprietor of the New York Sun, he bought The Scientific American, a publication which had been founded by Rufus Porter about six months before. Porter was retained as editor, and young Munn began to devote his energies to putting the publication on a sound business basis. Success came quickly. It was the first popular scientific journal in the United States. Numerous requests made on the publishers for advice concerning the procuring of patent letters for new inventions led to the establishment of a patent agency. At that time there were hardly any professional patent solicitors, and for many years Munn & Co. enjoyed a virtual monopoly of this class of business. It is estimated that more than 100,000 applications for patents have been made by this house. Mr. Munn laid down the principle never to invest a penny in any patented invention, and he adhered to that faithfully. Mr. Munn before he became associated with Mr. Beach in The Scientific American enterprise had known him as a classmate in Monson. Their business relations and friendship continued until 1896, when Mr. Beach died. Then the company was incorporated under its present name.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AGENCY FOR THE ENGLISH SOCIETY FOR PSYCHICAL RESEARCH.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We notice in your issue of March 2 Professor Hyslop's notification of change of base on the part of the American Society for Psychical Research. We beg to say that we have assumed the agency of the English Society for Psychical Research, and receive payment of dues, and attend to the sale of the publications of the society.

W. B. CLARKE CO.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

It is reported that the Rev. Dr. Henry van Dyke intends to resign his Murray professorship of English in Princeton University, and after a two months' trip through the Holy Land to devote his entire time to literature.

THE first medal which the Camp Fire Club has given in honor of an outdoor book was presented to W. T. Hornaday, the director of the New York Zoological Park for his book "Camp Fires in the Canadian Rockies." Ernest Thompson Seton presented the medal. Since his return from the trip described in the book Dr. Hornaday and Mr. Phillips, who took the mountain goat photographs which illustrate the narrative have been making efforts to induce British Columbia to set aside their late hunting grounds as a permanent game and forest preserve.

THE two hundredth centenary of the birth of Henry Fielding occurs on April 22, the great novelist having been born at Glastonbury, Somerset, on April 22, 1707, and died at Lisbon in his forty-seventh year. The London Academy thinks that Fielding remains still the greatest of the English novelists, and continues: "If he has a rival it is Sir Walter Scott, and Sir Walter, with characteristic modesty, ever looked upon him as a master. It has been the fashion in puritanical times to look upon Fielding as deficient in morality, but this, we think, is a mistaken view. It is the narrow-minded man who exaggerates human peccadilloes and offenses. It was a deadly sin in the eye of an old parish minister of Scotland to shave on Sunday. It is a deadly sin on the part of some martinets of to-day to play a game at cards, to bet on a horse race, or to indulge in what is called a little flutter on the Stock Exchange. But a mind raised above these trivial issues, although it may not defend offenses against the manners of the time, is able to look on them with a wide and sunny toleration."

"A FRENCH writer," according to the London Academy, "has been compiling an anthology of famous cats, or rather the cats of famous authors, which may serve as a companion to that quaint little volume, 'L'Histoire des chiens célèbres,' in whose pages our grandfathers made their first acquaintance with the French tongue. It appears that quite a number of eminent French writers have been conspicuously addicted to feline society, not to mention Tasso and Petrarch among the Italians. Solange Clésinger, the erratic daughter of George Sand, records that on a visit to Sainte-Beuve she found a cat and kittens in occupation of one corner of his room. Is there some subtle affinity between French literary greatness and grimalkin? Sir Isaac Newton and Dr. Johnson are among the few English writers whose cats have for a moment detained the pens of their biographers. And now the correspondent of a contemporary has been attributing the old story about the large and small holes cut in the door, which used to be told of Newton, to Ampère, the great electrician—and Frenchman."

ANOTHER charge of plagiarism against Jack London, with a very interesting and frank defense by the accused author, appeared in a recent issue of the New York Independent. It will be remembered that some months ago the same charge was made in connection with a magazine story by Mr. London called "The Love of Life." His answer was that he had taken a direct but vivid newspaper narrative of an actual experience as his material, and had transmuted this raw material into literature. Soon after this a too close similarity between part of the same author's current novel, "Before Adam," and Stanley Waterloo's earlier "Story of Ab," was discovered. The latest charge is brought forward by Mrs. L. A. M. Bosworth, who presents in parallel columns passages from the Rev. Egerton R. Young's "My Dogs in the Northland," (published in 1902,) and from Jack London's "The Call of the Wild," (which appeared in 1903.) The latter book, says Mrs. Bosworth, shows "certain startling resemblances" to the former, such as "marked similarities in the personnel of the leading dog characters, and in circumstances and situations."

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

KARSLAKE & Co., Hampstead, London, Eng., have just brought out Part 1 of the fourth volume of their "Book Auction Records," covering the period from October 1 to December 31, 1906, recording in all 4430 titles. Besides the auction sales record the pamphlet contains an account of Birmingham libraries and booksellers, by Robert K. Dent, chief librarian of the Aston Manor Public Library, and miscellaneous notes of interest to booksellers. (13+164 p. 12^s.)

GEORGE WAHR, Ann Arbor, Mich., has published "A Guide to the Current Periodicals and Serials of the United States and Canada, 1907," compiled by Henry Ormal Severance, librarian at the University of Missouri. The material is compactly arranged, first alphabetically by titles and in a second part by subject matter, thus supplying a want not met by the newspaper directories now in the field. It is hoped that the guide will receive sufficient support so that its publisher may be encouraged to continue it annually and to enable its editor to improve and enlarge it. (330 p. 8^s, cl.)

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce a "Bibliography of Oliver Wendell Holmes," compiled by George B. Ives. The need of a substantial bibliography of Holmes's work has long been felt. His writings are so widely scattered and so many of his poems have never been formally collected that the lover of Holmes has had to wander far in the search for his author's writing. Mr. Ives has made a most thorough search of the field, and has collected as complete as possible a list of all of Holmes's writing in prose and verse, together with a list of the more important things in print about him. A feature of the book which will especially commend itself to collectors and lovers of Holmes is the considerable number of rare or quite unknown poetical pieces by Holmes which Mr. Ives has discovered and printed. Subscribers to the Hawthorne and Lowell bibliographies will be given an opportunity to secure the corresponding numbered copy, not only for Holmes, but for the remainder of the series.

"It is surprising," says the London Academy, "that some of the best bibliographies which are being issued to-day should be produced in the University of California. The latest to come before our notice is a 'Survey of Scottish Literature in the Nineteenth Century (with some reference to the eighteenth).' The author is James Main Dixon, who, we notice, is a graduate of St. Andrews University, and also holds an Edinburgh degree. His bibliography is full of interest. From it we learn that there have been about nine hundred separate editions of the poems of Robert Burns, complete or selected. Scott is the next author in point of popularity. Bibliographies are given of, among other authors, James Hogg, Robert Tannahill, John Leyden, whose works would surely be worth republishing, Thomas Campbell, John Galt, the literary progenitor of J. M. Barrie, Lockhart, Motherwell, Hugh Miller, Henry Glassford Bell—of whom it is remarked that his 'Memoir of Mary, Queen of Scots' has had no little effect in forming popular opinion on the subject—John Stuart Blackie, who was sinking into undeserved oblivion, John Brown and George Gilfillan."

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Joseph Baer, Frankfurt a.M., Judaica and Hebraica. (No. 539, 1964 titles.)—Frank W. Coburn, Lexington, Mass., Miscellaneous. LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

A. T. CHAPMAN, Montreal, announce that they hold the exclusive agency for the sale of Baedeker's guides to the trade in Canada.

THE STOCKHAM PUBLISHING COMPANY, 70 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ills., have just brought out a new edition of "Brother of the Third Degree."

THE annual meeting of The Booksellers' League will be held at the rooms of the Aldine Association on the evening of March 13. Members intending to be present must promptly notify Francis Gilman, Room 413, 5 Beekman Street, New York.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. announce for publication on March 30 "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," by Eliza Calvert Hall, a character study of a philosopher in homespun.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will publish on the 28th inst. a novel entitled "The Unseen Jury," by Edward Clary Root, a story of love and mystery, in which a great crime forms the pivot. The book has been illustrated by Philipps Ward.

MR. STANLEY UNWIN, representing T. Fisher Unwin, the English publisher, sailed by the Carmania on March 2. He expects to visit Canada and the chief American cities. His address in New York will be in care of the Century Company.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish shortly "Personal Idealism and Mysticism," by William Ralph Inge. A series of lectures on which the volume is founded, delivered at the General Seminary, New York, in 1906, was largely quoted in defense of Dr. Crapsey when the latter was on trial for heresy.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. are about to publish "The Ministry of David Baldwin," a timely novel, in that it deals with so-called "heresy in the modern pulpit," such as has been exemplified by the Crapsey case and the confessions of an "undistinguished heretic," which recently appeared anonymously in a religious journal.

A. J. HOLMAN & Co. call attention to their large and varied assortment of Bibles. This line so popularly known everywhere as the "Holman Line" now comprises a complete variety of popular price Testaments and Text, Reference, Teachers', Family and Pulpit Bibles—with and without Pronouncing features, with and without Red Letter features, and with and without illustrations. Among their newest editions we note particularly their "Pictorial Text Bibles" for children and the "Pictorial Home Bible."

FEDERAL LODGE, No. 1, of Washington, D. C., the lodge of Freemasons which was specially raised to lay the corner stone of the Capitol in 1793, proposes to build a new Masonic Temple in Washington, D. C. To enable them to augment their building fund they will hold a Fair beginning April 15, to which every manufacturer and dealer is invited to lend a helping hand. Anton Heitmuller, 1307 Fourteenth Street, N. W., is the chairman of "Books, Literature and Art," and solicits goods and contributions in these lines.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. announce for immediate publication "The Battle of Tsu-Shima," by Captain Vladimir Semenov, (one of the survivors,) translated by A. B. Lindsay, with a preface by Sir George Sydenham Clarke; "Before Port Arthur in a Destroyer," the personal diary of a Japanese naval officer, translated from the Spanish edition by Captain R. Grant; "Sicily the New Winter Resort," an encyclopædia of Sicily, by Douglas Sladen; "The Pyrenees," by Baring-Gould; "Submarine Warfare," by Herbert C. Fyfe, with introduction by Admiral Sir E. R. Freemantle; and "Three Vagabonds in Friesland," with a yacht and camera, by H. F. Tomalin, with 99 illustrative plates.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., Boston, announce the "Practical European Guide," by Mrs. M. D. Fraser, who has had experience during twenty years as a tourist's agent. The book is to contain instructions for the preparation and inception of the trip, maps, lists of "sights," and a bibliography of works describing or relating to the places seen. "Many Thoughts on Immortality" is also announced, a compilation by Robert J. Thompson of the arguments presented by leading scientists and philosophers in support of the belief in life after death. Joaquin Miller's new poem, "Light," is also announced. It is in four books, and the poet says its fundamental lesson is that "courtship should begin at the altar instead of ending there." The scenes are laid at the Golden Gate, in the Klondike, in Japan and in Hawaii.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY are about to publish "The Philosophy of Ingersoll," by Vere Goldthwaite, of Boston. The work is a compilation from Colonel Ingersoll's more constructive philosophy, under such heads as Life, Love, Marriage, Home, Children, Education, Justice and Immortality. They also announce for the spring "The Spinners Book of Fiction," a collection of short stories by California writers, compiled by the Spinners Club, a group of literary people in San Francisco. Gertrude Atherton, Mary Austin, Jack London and Charles Warren Stoddard are among those who have contributed. "Bird Notes Afield," by Charles Keeler, will soon be published as a companion book to "The Garden Book of California." It is to be illustrated with Finley snapshots of birds in their wild state.

RECENTLY there was announced a historical work on Richard the Third, which endeavored to show, by documentary evidence, that the popular belief in the bad character of Richard the Third is a mistaken one. By a singular coincidence, in John Reed Scott's new novel, "Beatrix of Clare," to be published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Richard the Third is one of the leading characters and is portrayed in a very different aspect from the general conception—not a hunchback nor deformed, not ugly nor a devil in human guise, but a man no worse and some better than the majority of the princes and kings of his time and age—of boundless ambition, unswerving determination and supreme ability. Mr. Scott states that it has been many years since he was first persuaded that Richard the Third was a vastly different character, and a victim of Tudor lies, and his manuscript has been in the hands of his publishers for some months, so it must not be concluded that Mr. Scott received his inspiration from this forthcoming historical work.

JOHN LANE COMPANY publish this week Dolf Wyllarde's new novel, "As Ye Have Sown," a story of life in society. The author's other books have created a great deal of interest and comment, among them being

"The Story of Eden," "The Rat Trap" and "Captain Amyas." "The Dangerville Inheritance," a novel by A. C. Fox-Davies, announced by the Lane Company, is a detective story on the lines of Conan Doyle's fascinating tales. Mr. Fox-Davies is a barrister in London who found the legal points of some of Conan Doyle's stories handled in such a fashion as to render the tales uninteresting to lawyers and persons conversant with the law, and he endeavored to supply the deficiency. The story is concerned with the remarkable career of a member of Parliament and its connection with the fortunes of a famous race horse. "Woven of Dreams" is the title of a volume of poems by Blanche Shoemaker, who has already one excellent volume of verse to her credit. Her book deals with a variety of subjects, and includes among poems of more serious tenor some sonnets and love lyrics. They also announce a new edition of Lawrence Gilman's "Analytical Guide to Strauss's Opera Salome."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on the 13th inst. "Hilma," by William Tillinghast Eldridge, a story of the "Prisoner of Zenda" type, which moves to an accompaniment of jingling spurs, clattering swords, through lovers' meetings by moonlight and "through hot and crowded hours when a loaded revolver is indeed a trusty friend." The book is illustrated by Martin Justice and has a cover in colors by Harrison Fisher. They have also just ready "Mr. Barnes, American," by Archibald Claverling Gunter, who has made "Mr. Barnes, American," to be as great in Europe as his "Mr. Barnes of New York" was in his own country; "The Thinking Machine," by Jacques Futrelle, whose hero, or rather principal character, when he applied his relentless logic to a mysterious crime, unearthed secrets in a way that set detectives aghast; Maeterlinck's "Joyzelle," translated by A. Teixiera, and "Morna Vanna," translated by Alfred Sutro, published in one volume; also, "My Garden Record," by Luther S. Livingston, editor of "American Book Prices Current," etc., which is intended to be a help to the gardener's memory as to what vegetable and flower seeds he ordered the year before, when and from whom, the cost, the time of planting, etc.

L. C. PAGE & Co. announce a new issue of Alexander Smith's "Dreamthorpe." Written over fifty years ago, their charming descriptions of nature, the beautiful images which abound throughout and the sweet soundness of the author's philosophy make these essays as delightful to the reader of essays to-day as when they first appeared in Blackwood's and the other English magazines. The book once read is apt to be found thereafter in that corner of the library shelves where the reader gathers "my favorite books," and where his hand is wont to stray when he seeks a companion by a blazing fire on a winter's night, or a book to pack among his vacation necessities. They have added the following titles to their list of reprint copyright fiction, which includes books of standard value whose popularity has outlived the usual year limit of novels: "Asa Holmes," by Annie Fellows Johnston; "The Flight of Georgiana" and "The Bright Face of Danger," by Robert Neilson Stephens; "A Sunny Southerner," by Julia Magruder; "Mrs. Jim and Mrs. Jimmie," by Stephen Conrad; "My Strangest Case," by Guy Boothby; "Castel del Monte," by Nathan Gallizier; and "The Hound from the North" and "The Foss River Ranch," by Ridgwell Cullum.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just published the remaining volumes of the Knutsford edition of the complete works of Mrs. Gaskell, edited by Dr. A. W. Ward, forming volumes four to eight of the set of eight volumes. V. 4 contains "North and South." V. 5 contains the following stories originally collected into a volume entitled "Round the Sofa," "My Lady Ludlow," "An Accursed Race," "The Doom of Griffiths," "Half a Lifetime Ago," "The Poor Clare" and "The Half Brothers," also, "Harrison's Confessions" and "The Manchester Marriage." V. 6 contains "Sylvia's Lovers" and "An Italian Institution." V. 7 contains "Cousin Phillis," also, "Lois, the Witch," "The Crooked Branch," "Curious if True," "Right at Last," "The Grey Woman," "Six Weeks at Heppenheim," "A Dark Night's Work," "The Shah's English Gardener," "French Life," "Crowley's Castle," and "Two Fragments of Ghost Stories." The eighth and concluding volume contains "Wives and Daughters." They will publish early in April a new book by Arthur Christopher Benson, "Beside Still Waters." The book is in the form of a record of the sentiments and changing opinions of a young man recipient of an unexpected legacy, and is said to possess all the mellow charm of "The Upton Letters" and "From a College Window." They will also bring out next month a translation of Prince Kropotkin's "Conquest of Bread," ("La Conquête du Pain,") which advocates the communism for which the author is known to stand—a communism embodying a strain of anarchy and considerable orthodox socialism.

State Publications: Part III.

WESTERN STATES AND TERRITORIES:

Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Dakota Territory, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Alaska, Hawaii.

Compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER

Embracing provisional bibliographies of the official publications of the above-named States and Territories, from their organization. While the difficulties of compiling a bibliography of this sort at the present time make absolute completeness impossible, every effort has been made to obtain accuracy to the extent covered, by means of the coöperation in most of the States of the State Librarians, State University librarians, or officials of State Historical Societies.

ALREADY PUBLISHED

PART I: NEW ENGLAND STATES.—Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut.

PART II: NORTH CENTRAL STATES.—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin.

The complete work, exceeding 800 pages, will be furnished at $10.00. Subscriptions will be received only for the whole work.

Only 133 copies remain unsubscribed.*

The attention of State Libraries, of the central public libraries, and of foreign libraries, is especially called to this bibliography, but it is also important to that larger number of libraries which cannot undertake to collect the State publications even of their own State and yet should be able to inform students and inquirers as to what is to be found in the publications of their own State and of other States. What New York and Massachusetts are doing in forestry, for instance, is of importance in all States and to foreign students of the subject.

INDIAN LOVE LETTERS

By MARAH ELLIS RYAN

SELDOM have love letters been written which contained more of the beauty of pathos, the poignancy of despair, than these messages, which seem literally written with the heart's blood of the noble-minded Indian who sent them to a girl he had loved in the East.

"He who writes was first an Indian shepherd, who dreamed dreams and sang songs. Then for one little breath of Heaven he was called by you 'friend'—and now he works at a forge in a tower over a gateway that was very ancient when the first Castilians came to the land."

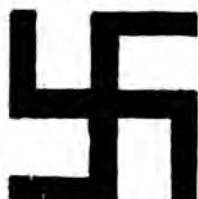

"When you let the Indian's eyes look into your own across a dinner table in New York, the Indian knew in that flash that his bonds were farther in the future than his eyes could see."

Of course it was all hopeless. What place could an Indian, no matter how highly educated, have in the thoughts and life of an American girl of birth and breeding? But he was inspired to these letters, which breathe the spirit of renunciation and show how inevitable is reversion to type. Each one is a veritable prose poem.

DRINK

By HALL CAINE

Author of "The Christian," "The Eternal City," "The Manxman," Etc.

THIS remarkable book was a great author's labor of love, and his contribution to a big cause. Mr. Caine wrote "Drink" some time ago, but refused every offer. Finally he consented, provided it were sold at a low price. It has already been translated into most of the European languages, and in England has sold nearly 200,000. The cost here is but ten cents.

"DRINK" is a powerful story based on the curative value of hypnotism. As Mr. Caine says, whether or not hypnotism cures directly, it certainly aids by its appeal to the imagination. The book tells a peculiarly appealing story of poignant tenderness and beautiful purpose. It is destined to repeat in this country its European success.

TRAVEL

Uniform with "Among English Inns," etc.

The Italian Lakes. By W. D. McCrackan, author of "The Fair Land Tyrol," etc. Illustrated with 40 reproductions in duogravure from photographs taken by the author. 12mo, decorated cover, $2.00. (Ready April 1st.)

From advance notice in the New York Times: "Mr. W. D. McCrackan's 'Italian Lakes' fills one with respect for the author, so many are the familiar and unfamiliar beautiful places which he describes. History has made itself on the shores of these lakes; the Church has planted many a wonderful edifice in the towns looking down upon them. He describes the towns about each lake, and the Alpine valleys where dress and customs are unaffected by fashion and change; and dwells in delightfully entertaining fashion upon their distinguishing peculiarities. The solitude of the lakes will be disturbed by many another traveller after this book is published."

FICTION

Haunters of the Silences. By Charles G. D. Roberts, author of "Red Fox," "The Watchers of the Trails," etc., etc. With 54 full-page illustrations, of which 4 are in full color, and many minor decorations by Charles Livingston Bull. $2.00. (Ready April 25th.)

In his new book of animal life Professor Roberts deals largely with those animals rarely met with in books, whose lives are spent "In the Silences." This collection undoubtedly represents the author at his best. (Send for photogravure poster of "Haunters of the Silences.")

Prisoners of Fortune. By Ruel Perley Smith. With frontispiece in colors by Frank T. Merrill. $1.50. (Published February 2d. Second Edition February 20th.)

"The author is a born raconteur. The atmosphere of old New England and the austerity of life under Cotton Mather is in sharp contrast to the brilliant details of pirate adventure. The story stands out by itself, dazzling by its naturalness and convincing in its deft interweaving of history and fiction."—Alfred Ford in Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Rome Express. By Major Arthur Griffiths, author of "The Passenger from Calais." With colored frontispiece. $1.25. (Send in your requisition for a three-colored poster of this book.)

"An absorbing mystery story, showing the methods of the French police. In a traveller's hand it will make any train go very fast, because of its originality, and its quick action, due to the absence of all tiresome description."—New York Morning World.

The Morning-Glory Club. By George A. Kyle. With frontispiece in colors. $1.25. (Just Published.)

Like Conrad's popular "The Second Mrs. Jim," the doings of the "Morning-Glory Club," organized to "elevate society," pictures the humor of village life. Readers who enjoy wholesome fun will find many a hearty laugh between its covers.

FICTION—Continued

The Flying Cloud. By Morley Roberts, author of "The Idlers," etc. With a colored frontispiece and especially attractive sea-pictures. $1.50. (Ready April 15th.)

The trade scarcely needs a word of commendation of a new sea tale by the author of "The Promotion of the Admiral," but its announcement as in every sense the biggest book on the sea yet issued the publishers believe will be justified by its sales. One reader said: "There remains no more to be written descriptive of the sea. Morley Roberts has said the last word!"

NEW ILLUSTRATED EDITION OF

The Chronicles of Martin Hewitt. By Arthur Morrison, author of "The Red Triangle," etc. With six pictures by W. Kirkpatrick. $1.50. (Ready March 25th.)

The success of Mr. Morrison's recent books, "The Green Diamond" and "The Red Triangle," has led to a demand for the reissue of "The Chronicles of Martin Hewitt," which has been out of print for a number of years.

It will be remembered that Martin Hewitt is the detective in "The Red Triangle," of whom the New York Tribune said, "He is a better detective than Sherlock Holmes."

Mystery Island. By Edward H. Hurst. With colored frontispiece, and decorative cover by Blanche McManus. $1.50. (Ready June 1st.)

A hunting camp on an island, surrounded by an almost impenetrable swamp in the Florida Everglades, is the scene of this original story.

The murder of one of the hunters, and the loss of the secret of egress from the island, furnishes the motive. There is much that is unusual in the plot and its development, but the incidents are handled with a fine delicacy.

The Lady of the Blue Motor. By Sidney Paternoster, author of "The Motor Pirate," etc. With cover design and frontispiece in colors by Frohn. $1.50. (Ready May 15th.)

A unique romance, with an audacious heroine and a manly and gallant fellow motorist. Love, mystery and adventure, in up-to-date surroundings and modern situations, fill its pages; and climax follows climax till the well-nigh breathless reader reaches the last and most exciting incident.

NATURE

Tenants of the Trees. By Clarence Hawkes, author of "Shaggy-coat," etc. With 8 full-page illustrations, of which 3 are reproduced in color, and cover design and many decorations by Louis Rhead. $1.50. (Ready April 15th.)

Deals more particularly with birds and the smaller woodland animals, though it contains much charming and vital description of still life.

Mr. Hawkes's nature biographies are welcomed for their simplicity and truth, and there is a delightful individual note in all his work.

KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN'S NEW CHRONICLES OF REBECCA

"The nicest child in American literature."—T. B. ALDRICH.

—Life, New York.

Native wit and the wholesome charm of untrammelled American girlhood brighten every page. Rebecca is a favorite in the hearts of thousands. She has become almost a national character, as she certainly is a national type.

"A nicer, jollier girl never danced through the pages of fiction. A brighter, sweeter, sunnier story one could hardly imagine."

Helen R. Martin's delightful romance

His Courtship

One of the most delicious and idyllic of recent love-stories. The author has conceived a type of the most delicate and exquisite girlhood, and set it in sharpest contrast with the coarse, stolid environment of a Pennsylvania "Dutch" household. A strong element of humor enters into the book.

Holman Bibles

FOR nearly half a century Holman Bibles have been better known and more largely used than any other editions. There is a Reason for this, and We know the Reason—so do you if you are using a Holman Bible.

To those who may not know Why we took our place at the front as Bible publishers so many years ago and Why we have held that place ever since, we would like to talk a little through this medium.

During the years we have been printing, binding and distributing Bibles, there have been many marked improvements in bookmaking, and Holman Bibles have always been the first to show these improvements because of our keen appreciation of the value of durability, as well as beauty of bindings. We therefore have successfully endeavored to combine both and as a result Holman editions Look Well and Wear Well.

We first introduced the Pronouncing Text in Teachers' Bibles; special large face open readable type was made especially for our editions; then better paper than had originally been used was introduced and these improvements combined with flexible and durable bindings have made the "Holman Bibles" household words with Christian people.

It is not only true that more Holman Bibles are used to-day than ever before, but it is also true that They Are Used More, and consequently require expert care in the choice of materials, printing and binding. Every person in our house who contributes of his ability to print, bind and distribute our Bibles and Testaments is thoroughly trained to his work. This means a unity of purpose and action that results in giving to the Christian world the very best editions of the Holy Scriptures.

By Edward Clary Root

THIS is a story of mystery and love. A great crime is committed. From the first hint of the coming of the tragedy to the last words of the trial, the reader is mentally on tiptoe. It is not alone the plot, but the living, breathing people, their trying situation and their heart-moving emotions that hold one.

The account of the trial is a unique piece of work, which in itself would be the making of a novel. It is told with such vivid realism that one almost holds his breath, as he would in a real trial.

Crowell's New Spring Books

The Ministry of David Baldwin

A Novel by HENRY THOMAS COLESTOCK

With four full-page illustrations in color by E. Boyd Smith. 12mo, $1.50

This striking story is abreast of the times. Its hero, a young clergyman just out of the seminary, endeavors to preach the Bible in terms of modern criticism. He is declared "unsound," and is tempted to "suppress his message." The conflict which ensues between his duty and his desires is rivalled by the factional fights in the church itself. The characters are strongly and faithfully drawn as though from actual types.

THE PRESS OF THIS COUNTRY TELL

Why Ralph Connor is Popular

New York. World :

"Ralph Connor is popular because there are so many things he is not afraid of. He dares to give his heroes a capable muscle as well as high moral principles. One who cares for his neighbors' reading as for his own will surely prescribe Ralph Connor."

Boston. Transcript :

"Ralph Connor's works are alive with interest upon every page, and do not appeal to, but compel the attention and hold it to the end."

Toledo. Times :

"Ralph Connor has a style distinctly his own and has won for himself a unique place in American literature."

Cleveland. Plain Dealer :

"Ralph Connor is one of the few authors whose books find an immediate and tremendously extended reading. He has the advantage of a background that is invariably fascinating, for deep in his heart every American is a pioneer and loves the life of endurance and bravery that won his country from the wilderness."

Chicago. Record Herald :

"Ralph Connor's many admirers need only to be told that he has written another novel of the Rockies like 'Black Rock' and 'The Sky Pilot' in order to send them hurrying hot-foot for the book."

Atlanta. Journal :

"Mr. Gordon has done the world a service. It is the sort of service which Cooper and later novelists did for the frontier of colonial times on this side of the border. Ralph Connor has a passionate love for the woods and mountains, for the weird harmonies of nature, and he has, too, a keen appreciation of the best in men; also a full knowledge of the worst in them."

St. Paul. Dispatch :

"Ralph Connor gets near to earth. Besides being able to touch deeply the emotions of man and woman he is a wizard of outdoors, and makes one feel a kinship to nature which is wholesome and refreshing."

Kansas City. Star :

"Everybody reads them; people who would scarcely sit through a sermon read them as do those strictly religious folk who do not yet accept fiction as quite a legitimate form of literature."

WHISTLER

(Published January, 1907)

The Newspapers freely call this book "EPOCH MAKING" and there is GOOD BUSINESS in having THE REASON well in mind. It is this:—There exists a WHISTLER CULT of considerable size and greater influence. Whistler himself, during his life time, started it. As everybody knows, he defied the critics, even writing a book to uphold his contention. Since his death several thousand admirers in England and America have remained faithful to the idea that NOBODY COULD APPRECIATE WHISTLER EXCEPT THE SPECIALLY CULTIVATED FEW.

But here comes a book that DARES to TREAT WHISTLER FRANKLY as RAPHAEL, MICHELANGELO, REMBRANDT, and ALL THE OTHER GREAT ONES have been treated. It presents A GREAT OPPORTUNITY. Talk it up and you will sell it—to THE CULT and to THE PUBLIC, both.

"Well executed."—New York Sun.

"A careful, suggestive study."—Chicago Record-Herald.

James Huneker calls him, in the North American Review, "that youthful prodigy, the bi-lingual German-American poet whose imaginative verse is shot through and through with the splendors of Heine, Swinburne, and Keats."

Mr. Viereck is a German by birth, a graduate of the City College of New York, and a celebrated poet at the age of twenty-two. His early verses in German made him famous on two continents, and the great Stuttgart house of Cotta is publishing his complete poems in German while this volume presents them in English. In it Mr. Viereck has anglicized the poems which, in his native tongue, brought him such fame, and included those originally written in English which, many of them, have appeared in the American magazines of recent issue.

HON. BRAND WHITLOCK
Mayor of Toledo

By
BRAND WHITLOCK

Author of THE 13TH DISTRICT

Brand Whitlock's first novel, THE 13TH DISTRICT, has been called by President Roosevelt, Ex-President Cleveland and Mr. William Dean Howells "the best American political story that has ever been written." THE TURN OF THE BALANCE is even more remarkable and important. It is a book of the scope, breadth and humanitarian impulse of Dickens.

The Turn of the Balance

THE TURN OF THE BALANCE reveals everywhere the author's wonderful knowledge of all classes of society, from the great and the rich to the miserably poor and the hounded criminals. Taken as a whole, it constitutes a tremendous arraignment of the law as it is administered in America to-day and an appalling picture of the savage cruelty at the heart of our boasted civilization. But it impresses one first and most of all as a great drama made out of the stuff of actual life.

THE WHITE CAT

An odd, original and most unusual novel, stamped with the author's genius for whimsical sentiment, piquant adventure, startling surprises, and psychological romance. The plot of THE WHITE CAT turns upon the double personality of a beautiful woman, beloved by two men. The conflict of the two natures and the two loves lies in that borderland of science and mystery which is fruitful in fascination and which, prior to Mr. Burgess, has never yielded up its full measure of fictional value.

Boyles, Kate and Virgil D. Langford of the Three Bars; with il. in color by N. C. Wyeth. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907. c. 278 p. O. cl., $1.50.

A story about South Dakota when the "rustlers" held sway in the cattle country and owned the deputy sheriffs and the juries. Paul Langford and Richard Gordon stood out among the cowboys as men of fine principles and great courage, and two girls of fine character play brave parts in the story. It is a story of life on the plains as it was actually lived in the sixties.

Burgess, Gelett. The white cat; with il. by Will Grefé. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1907.] c. 390 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of a dual personality. Joy Fielding, a beautiful young woman, wakes one morning in every seven, another person, as opposite in character, as is possible, to her true self. While she is refined and cultured, Edna, "the other one," is vulgar and ignorant. The story is told by a young architect, who meets with an automobile accident and is carried into Joy's house and nursed back to health. He falls in love with her and is perplexed, naturally, by the two women in one. Whether she is "plum crazy," as her coachman thinks, or enchanted like the "white cat" of the fairy tale, is left to the reader to find out. A remarkable ending exorcises "the other one" finally.

Burne, Sir Owen Tudor. Memories. [N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co.,] 1907. 9+343 p. il. por. pls. O. cl., *$4.20 net.

The writer is Major-General in the English army. He received his commission in 1855, first serving in the Crimea and going to India two years afterward, where he served during the Mutiny in fifteen actions, being present at the siege and capture of Lucknow. He was military secretary to Sir Hugh Rose, when Commander-in-Chief in India, and to the Earl of Lytton when Viceroy of India. His memories, although largely personal, throw light on many of the great events of English history.

Carr, Sarah Pratt. The iron way: a tale of the builders of the West; with four il. by J. W. Norton. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1907. c. 367 p. O. cl., $1.50.

"The iron way" is the Central Pacific Railroad. The father of the author helped to build it, and the author literally grew up along the line of the road. The completion of this great enterprise in 1867 provides the material for the story. The author has made skilful use of some of the giant promoters of that day—Leland Stanford, Collis P. Huntington, Mark Hopkins, and Charles Crocker—upon whose initiative the railroad was planned and built. It is not all railroad affairs, not only is there an attractive love story, but many lively reminiscences of the California of fifty years ago.

Cook, Albert E. The bright side and the other side: what India can teach us; introd. by Rev. J. G. Haller and Bp. W. Fitzjames Oldham. Cin., Jennings & Graham, [1907.] c. 142 p. il. por. D. cl., *75 c. net.

The author, a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal church, spent nine years in India. He therefore writes from observation and personal knowledge of the people, their physical condition, and their social and moral life. He aims to be thoroughly impartial, pointing out much that is good in Mohammedanism, as well as much that is to be condemned.

Cornish, C. J. Animal artisans, and other studies of birds and beasts; with a prefatory memoir by his widow; two por. from photographs and twelve drawings by Patten Wilson. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1907. 34+274 p. O. cl., $2.50.

The greater number of these thirty-six papers have already appeared in the English periodicals—the Spectator and Country Life. The habits and activities of animals and birds are most interestingly described and illustrated with anecdotes taken from the author's own experience. Mrs. Cornish furnishes a brief memoir of her late husband, who was for twenty years an assistant classical master at St. Paul's School, London. His natural history studies were in addition to his school duties. He was born 1858; died 1906.

Eldridge, W: Tillinghast. Hilma; il. by Harrison Fisher and Martin Justice. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1907. c. 10+331 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Hilma was a princess in one of the little kingdoms of Hungarian and Bohemian Austria. A rich young American meets the chief actors of the story on an American train, again later on an Atlantic steamer. Everything "happens" to promote mystery and surprises. Revolvers play quite a part. The hero does some clever detective work, brings the heroine into her rights and then departs, hoping perhaps to be recalled at a future day.

Mr. Foster is author of "The fundamental ideas of the Roman Catholic church," "Christian life and theology," etc. With the aid of the great libraries this history has been written directly from the sources and is built up on the historical background of the first century in New England, 1620-1720. Accounts are given of the pioneers and fathers of New England theology, with an exposition of the doctrines they represent—Jonathan Edwards and his contemporaries and co-laborers, Joseph Bellamy, Samuel Hopkins, and Jonathan Edwards the younger. The Unitarian and Universalist controversy are fully considered, and chapters are given to Nathaniel W. Taylor, the later New Haven theology, the new school in Presbyterianism, the Oberlin theology and Edward A. Park, and a final one to the sudden collapse of New England theology as an accepted system of thought.

L. C. Page & Co., 1907. c. 235+12 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A detective story in line with the author's previous story, "The passenger from Calais." A mysterious murder, committed in the sleeping-car of the through express from Rome to Paris, is the starting point. As the train is not supposed to stop on its way to Paris, and as one of the passengers, a woman, is missing after the murder is discovered, the situation for a time seems most perplexing. Innocent persons are suspected, the real culprit escaping for a long time. A clever French detective unravels the tangle.

Soon nature asserts that her child has the "first claim" upon her. She steals it and goes to France to hide it. Her husband grows very jealous of the child, who is a most unattractive child of seven years, while the incidents of the story are taking place. The end is dramatic and a surprise.

The scene is England at the opening of the 19th century. It introduces a large number of characters and a wealth of picturesque incident from the days when England was still traversed by post roads, on which highwaymen might still be encountered. The hero tells the story. He is a younger son who, after a youthful escapade, is forced to resign from his regiment. He starts to roam through every part of England, and studies at close quarters the life of England just before the modern era.

Author is connected with Columbia University. Objects made of amber are to be treated in a separate paper.

Phillipotta, Eden. The whirlwind. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1907. c. '05, '06, '07. 3+3-407 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Dartmoor is again the scene of a new story by the author of "Children of the mist," etc. The characters are elemental types of humanity, but forceful and picturesque. A powerful love story is told, carried with much simplicity and directness to its dramatic ending. A husband betrayed would take into his own hands the punishment of the culprits, but fate deprives him of his revenge.

Potter, Margaret. The princess. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 386 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Although the present Emperor of Russia, the Empress Dowager Dagmar, and others of the Russian Court are introduced in the opening chapters, this is not a political novel. The Princess Catharine, the central figure, is the wife of the Grand Duke Dmitri, and a most unhappy woman. The infidelities of her husband and the moral weakness of her son Constantine create almost all the situations in the story. It follows in time the author's previous novel, "The genius," in which the Russian composer Ivan Gregoriev was the principal character, his death occurring in the end. In this narrative his spirit often appears to admonish or advise the Princess Catharine.

In this she is opposed by her husband's family, who also aim to get possession of her eight-year-old boy.

Durham would marry her and she would him, but every difficulty is placed in their way. Madame de Treymes is her sister-in-law, and her only friend, and the chief actor in the family intrigue.

Money and influence he shows help the rich man to evade the penalty of his crime. The poor and friendless criminal is cruelly hounded to the death. There are realistic scenes and characters from low life, and a most human lovable heroine from the higher grades of society, whose love story has a satisfactory ending. The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 16, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

FOLLOWING a phenomenal fall and holiday season, the activity of the booktrade since the new year has been normal rather than spectacular, at least so far as the retail branch is concerned. We doubt whether there has ever been such a complete clearing out of stock in the large cities as there was during the December and January months, or what may be broadly called the winter season. Early in January the wide-awake dealer began to prepare for the Valentine season, which this year saw the biggest trade in this line ever known. Never before have sales been so large, and never before has there been such a demand for the better grades. Indeed, so active was the advance demand for Valentines that a number of manufacturers and jobbers were obliged to notify their customers early in February that they could accept no more orders. There was virtually no carry-over stock—one manufacturer being so confident of the selling quality of his goods that he offered to take back any unsold lots of his line, an offer he was not called upon to make good. Apparently, Valentine is becoming a more and more popular saint each season, a fact which those who were slow in recognizing should note for future guidance.

Much of the activity of the Valentine trade seems to have been due to the increasing demand for post cards, the output of which is reported to run into the millions—one authority placing it at a billion a year. This is perhaps an extravagant statement; yet, when it is considered that one dealer alone disposed of 25,000 Valentine cards in a month—from the middle of January to the middle of February—the aggregate must be stupendous. Furthermore, it seems now as though the post-card would form a considerable factor all the year round for some time to come, and the dealer who is alert enough to take advantage of locality and season, and make an effective display, will reap a rich reward for his efforts.

The Easter season, which is almost upon us, also promises to be a busy one, offering a larger scope for the bookseller than the Thanksgiving and Valentine seasons.

As for the publishers they seem to have been busier than ever—482 firms having already published upwards of 1500 books since January, as against less than a thousand books brought out during the same period last year by 427 publishing houses. Of course, last year the printer's strike interfered with considerable of the early productivity of the publishers; nevertheless the showing this year is extraordinary and gives evidence of a heavy spring and summer trade.

The announcements given elsewhere show that almost all the publishers have stepped beyond their normal boundaries, and are covering many departments of literature in the books for which they have contracted.

In spite of all the year has brought of views that fiction is on the wane, partly because the taste of the reader has improved, partly because new good fiction is of too high price to be popular, fiction still holds its own, and the novels already issued and those promised do much to swell our Spring Announcement list. As far as novels have come to hand, they prove to be of higher quality than those of the past two seasons.

America, as the United States is chiefly called outside our own borders, has had such a career of fabulous success that books on the subject are legion. The history of this land is studied by experts, and the result is books on every phase of life in which special Americanism shows. Biographies of leading Americans and bibliographies of the American writers that are known throughout the reading world are a feature of the year. Automobiles, Japanese, Chinese, railroads and international and interstate legislation are occupying much attention, and their merits, rights and responsibilities have produced a big literature. Histories and works of reference are also undertaken with all the enthusiasm such works demand.

The publishers show confidence, energy and good judgment; the booksellers must also show confidence, energy and good judgment, and there is no reason why the readers of various localities in this broad land should not fall in and make the spring of 1907 a successful beginning of another phenomenally successful year for the booktrade. Certainly the new plan for reform adopted by the American Publishers' Association will do much to help towards this end in the book-trade.

H. M. UPHAM MUST NOT COMPETE WITH THE OLD CORNER BOOK STORE.

THE Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts on February 28 handed down the following rescript in an appeal from a final decree of the Superior Court dismissing the plaintiff's suit, in the case of George A. Moore, of the Old Corner Book Store in Boston, Mass., to restrain H. M. Upham from competing with him in the book business, Upham having sold to Moore his interest in the business, including the good will:

Let the decree of the Superior Court be reversed and an interlocutory decree be entered perpetually enjoining and restraining the defendant Upham from working for or holding stock in, or being otherwise connected, directly or indirectly with the defendant corporation and perpetually enjoining and restraining the defendant corporation from employing the defendant Upham, directly or indirectly in its business, or recognizing him as a stockholder therein, or as otherwise connected therewith, except to allow him to sell or assign his shares of stock or to receive what is or may be due in respect thereof, on the corporation being wound up.

Said interlocutory decree shall also direct the defendant Upham to account to the plaintiff for all damages suffered by it in respect to the matters and all of them covered by the bill.

The plaintiff to recover its taxable costs from both defendants.

This without prejudice to further relief against the defendant corporation.

Judge Loring in his decision said: "It appears from the evidence that the defendant Upham was employed as a clerk in the Old Corner Bookstore from 1866 to 1872. In 1872 he became a partner and thereafter carried on the book trade at that store (as a partner or alone) until October 30, 1902, when he sold his interest therein to his then partner, George A. Moore. Moore paid Upham for his interest (it was a two-thirds interest) in the partnership $35,000, and by the terms of the assignment Upham sold and assigned to Moore (among other things) all his interest in the stock in trade of the partnership 'and all other assets of said firm and of the business heretofore conducted by said Moore and myself under the name of Damrell & Upham, and including all my interest in the good will of said business.' In the following month, that is to say, in November, 1902, Moore organized the plaintiff corporation and sold and assigned to it all his stock in trade 'and all other assets, pertaining to the business now carried on by me, and recently carried on by one Upham and myself, under the name and style of Damrell & Upham, including the good will of said business.'

"The defendant Upham then went abroad. On his return he was for a time engaged as the assistant treasurer of a milk company, and later in real estate and insurance business. In the summer of 1905 he conceived the idea of establishing a bookstore in Boston, primarily for the sale of books used in the Episcopal Church, and secondarily for the general trade of a bookstore.

"It appears in the evidence that from the time that Upham became an employee of the Old Corner Book Store until he sold his interest to Moore in October, 1902, a period of some thirty-six years, a part of the business carried on there was the selling of books used in or in connection with the Episcopal Church. It further appears that Upham was employed in that department when he first came to the store; that from the time when he became a partner until he sold his interest to Moore in 1902 that department of the business was under his special control and direction, with this qualification: During the last three years he had to devote himself to the financial affairs of the partnership and therefore left more of the church department to one Wentworth, who at the time the defendant corporation was organized, had been employed in that department of the Old Corner Book Store and its successor the plaintiff corporation, for ten years, with a short interruption.

"The defendant Upham testified that while he was connected with the Old Corner Book Store that store was 'the most prominent church depository' in Boston. And by this we understand him to mean that it was the most prominent store in Boston for the sale of church books, or at any rate for the sale of Episcopal church books. He further testified that the business of the new corporation was intended to be and was a business which was to compete with that of the plaintiff corporation. . . .

"After conceiving the idea of setting up a rival bookstore the defendant Upham's next move was to solicit personally and through some one employed by him for the purpose men prominent in the Episcopal Church to subscribe to shares in a corporation to be organized to carry on the business he proposed to set up. Some of these men were admitted by him to have been customers of the Old Corner Book Store, and all of them were men in the Episcopal Church. He succeeded in getting thirty persons to subscribe to stock.

"The result of this solicitation on the part of the defendant Upham was the organization of the defendant corporation on November 29, 1905. The name of the corporation was that of the defendant Upham, to wit, 'H. M. Upham Company.' The business of the corporation is stated in the agreement of association to be 'To conduct a depository for the Episcopal Church and to carry on a general book business and any other matters connected therewith.' The corporation opened a store at No. 15A, Beacon Street, on December 7, 1905. On December 23, 1905, this bill was filed. The suit went to a hearing on January 10 and 11, 1906, and the final decree dismissing the bill was entered on January 15, 1906. . . .

"So far as appeared the only persons employed in the store of the defendant corporation were the defendant Upham and Wentworth, who already has been spoken of as having been employed under Upham in the church department of the Old Corner Book Store. In November, 1905, he was an employee of the plaintiff, in charge of its church department, and he left that employment to enter into that of the defendant corporation. . . .

"It is settled in this Commonwealth that when a man voluntarily sells the good will of his business he thereby precludes himself from setting up a competing business which will derogate from the good will which he has sold. Angier v. Webber, 14 Allen, 211; Dwight v. Hamilton, 113 Mass. 175; Munsey v. Butterfield, 133 Mass. 492; Webster v. Webster, 180 Mass. 310, 315, 316; Hutchinson v. Nay, 187 Mass. 262, 265.

"In each case where the good will of a business is sold and the vendor sets up a competing business it is a question of fact whether, having regard to the character of the business sold and that set up, the new business does or does not derogate from the grant made by that sale. In Bassett v. Percival, 5 Allen, 345, and in Hoxie v. Chaney, 143 Mass. 592, it was held that the new business did not derogate from the grant, while the contrary conclusion was come to in the cases before the court in Angier v. Weber, 14 Allen, 211; Dwight v. Hamilton, 113 Mass. 175; Munsey v. Butterfield, 133 Mass. 492.

"In the case at bar but one conclusion can in our opinion be reached on that question of fact. . . .

"We are of opinion that, on the uncontradicted facts in the case at bar, if the business set up by the defendant corporation had been set up by Upham personally, it would have been in derogation of his grant, and that the plaintiff is entitled to an injunction perpetually restraining the defendant Upham from working for or holding stock in or otherwise being connected directly or indirectly with the defendant corporation; and to have an accounting as against the defendant Upham for damages which it has suffered from his breach of contract. The plaintiff is also entitled to have the defendant corporation perpetually enjoined from employing directly or indirectly the defendant Upham in its business, or recognizing him as a stockholder therein or otherwise connected therewith except to allow him to sell his shares of stock or to receive what is due in respect thereof on the corporation being wound up.

"The further rights of the plaintiff against the defendant corporation remain for consideration. Its counsel has taken this position in his brief: 'The corporation, H. M. Upham Company, was a bona fide corporation, and not merely H. M. Upham in another form. It was composed of many stockholders besides Upham. It had a right to its name—at least so far as the present plaintiff is concerned. It had no contractual relationship of any kind with the plaintiff, and had not in fact received any transfer of any good will of Damrell and Upham. It is difficult to see on what theory it did not have the right to engage in the retail book business and to solicit the customers of the old firm.'

"We agree that as a matter of fact the defendant corporation is not Upham in another form.

"We also agree that the day after Upham sold his good will to Moore, the persons (other than Upham) who now constitute the defendant corporation could have organized that corporation and opened a store for the sale of Episcopal church books, and, if they had pleased, could have opened that store in the building next to the Old Corner Book Store.

"But the difficulty here is that the defendant corporation is not an independent body, and that it is the creation of the defendant Upham, brought into being by him in violation of the implied contract entered into by him with Moore in selling his good will to Moore. The very name which it bears is to-day and hereafter must remain a mark in the trade of that fact.

"What remedy the plaintiff is entitled to against the defendant corporation under the findings of fact which we have made has not been argued by counsel. It is possible that it never will arise. As the case must go back for an accounting in any event, we do not think it necessary to come to a decision on that point now."

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOOK-SELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE twelfth annual meeting of the Booksellers' League was held at the rooms of the Aldine Association on the evening of March 13. After the customary love-feast the retiring president, W. G. Preston, thanked the League for the confidence and support given him during the past year, and called for the report of the secretary, which was as follows:

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MANAGERS.

To the Members of the Booksellers' League.

GENTLEMEN: In accordance with the constitution your Board of Managers submit this, their twelfth annual report. During the year closed there have been frequent and well attended meetings of your board.

The League membership is practically the same this year as last, being 238 while last year it was 241. But the average attendance at dinners is greater, showing an increased interest.

We regret that it will be impossible to submit a report of the treasurer at this time, owing to a recent change in the office. The present treasurer was elected to office on March 2 and has not had sufficient time to balance the account.

The Employment Bureau under the faithful and quiet care of Mr. C. E. Bonnell continues to provide positions and to fill vacancies, as is shown in the report herewith:

"During the past year there have been 43 applications for positions and 45 applications for help. From these $7.75 has been collected. Many applicants for positions do not come back after securing a place and many are too poor to give a fee for the services of the Bureau."

Seven dinners have been held and the Entertainment Committee has kept up its record in securing entertaining speakers. We have listened with pleasure to such men as Dr. John G. Coyle, F. Hopkinson Smith, Rex E. Beach, Charles Battell Loomis, Dillon Wallace, J. W. Sargent, Anthony Fiala, Arthur C. Train, Esq., Rev. Dr. Steiner, Hon. Robert Watchorn, Dr. William Grenfell, Ellis Parker Butler, Captain Bradley Osborn, and others. Two dinners of especial interest were the joint dinner with the American Booksellers' Association in May, which was greatly enjoyed, and the Ladies' Night in January, at which we once more welcomed our fair friends and entertained them fittingly.

There has also been started a movement to create a Benevolent Fund, patterned somewhat after that in England, and through the efforts of the committee appointed to take charge of the movement it is hoped to secure a nucleus the object of which is the helping of those bookmen who are in trouble, or who have grown old in the service; in fact, to use this fund for such worthy objects as may call for aid, instead of drawing upon the necessarily slender resources of the League's treasury. For example, we feel sure that each member would have voted willingly to give Dr. Grenfell's work a substantial token of the hearty support it deserves had our purse been as large as our heart.

The outlook for another year is bright. There have been suggestions made that a glee club be started among the members and an outing association be formed; in fact, in an organization of this size, much more than is done could be done to fraternize and get together.

Your Board of Managers welcome your suggestions and ask now, as we have in the past, for your help.

Gentlemen, the Booksellers' League is not an eating club. Read the constitution of the Booksellers' League that was printed and given you a year ago. "The objects of the League are the cultivation of fraternal relations between its members and the furthering of the interests of their respective callings."

There is much undeveloped power and latent talent in the League, and the League expects every man to do his duty.

FRANCIS GILMAN, Secretary.

MARCH 13, 1907.

A gold button was presented to Charles A. Burkhardt for having added five new members to the League.

Nominations for president for the ensuing year were then called for, and A. Wessels was nominated. Upon motion, the polls were closed, and Mr. Wessels was declared unanimously elected. An election by ballot of six members of the Board of Managers followed, resulting in the choice of Charles E. Butler, W. G. Preston, Charles L. Bowman, F. D. Lacy, Cass Richardson and A. G. Seiler.

While the ballots were being counted, the president called upon the guest of the evening, Mr. John R. Anderson, who has recently completed a half century in the book business, for some reminiscences.

Mr. Anderson said, in part:

"Mr. Buchanan had the good judgment to take his chair on the same day that I took a standing position in the book business—March 4, 1857. To-day there are two or three prominent names in the trade that were well known at that time, but only one house contains active members bearing those well-known names. Probably only a small fraction of these who were then in the book business are still living. For myself, I mean to keep right on, for I love the business. I would sooner be in the book business at half the compensation than in any other commercial line I know of; and I have never put more time into my work than I do to-day."

Mr. Anderson stated that he entered the business in the firm of Clark, Austin & Smith in Park Row, who dealt largely with Southern patrons. The house went under as a result of having all its assets in the South; but in time the creditors were all paid in full, with interest, by Mr. Clark, of the firm of Clark & Maynard, one of the surviving partners.

"There used to be in the land the bookselling jobber," continued Mr. Anderson, "and as late as thirty years ago there were perhaps 100; to-day you can count all the jobbers in books on the fingers of one hand."

After leaving Clark, Austin & Smith, Mr. Anderson entered the navy and had two years' service in the Gulf; during the years 1863-64 he was with Oakley, Mason & Co., and in the last year of the war he was again in the navy, with the South Atlantic squadron.

After the war he entered the employ of Baker & Pratt, the predecessors of the Baker & Taylor Company, where there was most excellent training; he remained with them five or six years and then started in business for himself. This involved a good deal of traveling throughout the country, in the course of which he made some of the most enjoyable acquaintances of his life. He spoke also of book men who had received their first training under him, mentioning in particular Arthur Hinds, of Hinds & Noble.

Mr. Anderson told of having at one time been a publisher, and mentioned with some pride of having published Roget's "Thesaurus." "Latterly," he said, "I have become a publisher again," and he showed a small blue pamphlet containing a poem by Sam Walter Foss that had become popular with librarians. Another of Foss's poems, "The Calf Path," which he has printed in some of his circulars, he read aloud.

"My business," Mr. Anderson said, "has been not so considerable as enjoyable. Yet, while it is small, I think I am able to say that within the past twelve days I have taken probably the largest single order handled by a bookseller in some years, amounting to $90,000 worth of list." This transaction, he explained, was with a library.

In concluding he said: "I expect as long as I have the ability to get about to remain one of the brethren. I thank you for your courtesy in listening to this rambling talk."

At the close of Mr. Anderson's reminiscences the result of the election, as already noted, was announced. Mr. Wessels was then conducted to the president's chair, and said: "I am sorry to say that my impromptu remarks have been left at home. But I fully appreciate the honor you have conferred upon me this evening, and I thank you."

A vote of thanks to Mr. Anderson was passed, and the meeting adjourned.

REPRINT OF AN EARLY NEW YORK BOOK.

FRANK C. ERB, of the Columbia University, has just published a reprint of "A Letter of Advice To A Young Gentleman Leaving the UNIVERSITY Concerning his Behaviour and Conversation in the World," by the Rev. Dr. Richard Lingard, of Dublin, reprinted by William Bradford in New York in 1696. Mr. Erb in an interesting introduction says: "Since it is clear that the Laws [of the Colony of New York, 1693-1694] were published in the form of sheets or leaflets, and since there is doubt as to the place and time of publication of Keith's book, ['Truth Advanced in the Correction of many Gross and Hurtful Errors,' 1694?] and since the Almanac, [edited by Daniel Leeds, and published in 1694,] would not be considered a book, it seems altogether probable that the first book printed in New York was 'A Letter of Advice to a Young Gentleman Leaving the University.'" Dr. Lingard's admirable treatise is of sufficient importance to deserve reprinting and careful study, for that matter, by those to whom it is addressed. But antiquarians and bibliographers have long ago disputed its claim to being the first book printed by Bradford in New York. Admitting for the sake of argument that the Laws and Leeds's Almanac are not books in the restricted sense of the word and that the place and time of Keith's book is in doubt, there exists a book, (a copy of which is now in the Public Record Office in London,) which, according to recognized authorities, among them the late Dr. George H. Moore, may indisputably claim to have been the first printed book of any kind printed in New York by William Bradford. The work referred to was printed in 1693, and is "A Journal of the Late Actions of the French at Canada with The Manner of their being, Repuls'd by His Excellency, Benjamin Fletcher, Their Majesties Governour of New York, Impartially Related by Coll. Nicholas Reyard [Bayard] and Lieu-tenant Coll. Charles Lodowick," etc. The book is described as a "4to, Title and Preface, 2 leaves, Text, 22 pages." It became so scarce shortly after its publication that Governor Bellomont, Governor Fletcher's successor and bitter enemy, writing to the Lords of Trade on November 12, 1698, says: "The printed accounts of his [Fletcher's] great exploits against the French which he published and sent into England I cannot possibly get one of them for love nor money." The book was reprinted in New York in 1868, and was described in a pamphlet by Dr. Moore, entitled "Typographiæ Neo-Eboracensis Primitiæ."

BEST-SELLING FICTION IN ENGLAND:

White Fang, by Jack London.
The Diamond Ship, by Max Pemberton.
Running Water, by A. E. W. Mason.
The Spanish Necklace, by Mrs. Croker.
Benedict Kavanagh, by "G. A. Birmingham."
Temptation, by Richard Bagot.

LONGFELLOW FIRST EDITIONS.

OF the many Longfellow collections now in existence, the three finest are owned in New York City, these being the collections of S. H. Wakeman, Frank Maier and the late J. Chester Chamberlain. Mr. Maier has at least three copies of "Outre-Mer: A Pilgrimage Beyond the Sea," one of which, in original wrappers, is perhaps the most interesting copy in existence from the fact that both parts were originally purchased by the same owner just as published, and have the date of acquisition of each inscribed by him, 1834 and 1835. A copy of "Outre-Mer" in its original form cost William Harris Arnold $60 at private sale in 1896. The two parts are perfect and spotless, No. 1 being in the original marbled paper covers, entirely uncut, and No. 2 in light blue wrappers, side and bottom edges uncut. This copy, which, however, cannot be considered a companion set to Maier's unique copy, because the parts were originally procured from different sources, was sold in January, 1901, to the late Mr. Chamberlain for $310. A few other copies of the series are owned by bibliophiles and libraries in New York City, some partly cut, some in modern bindings.

Of "Poems on Slavery," Cambridge, 1842, according to a recent article in the New York Sun, one of the rare Longfellow books, there are three copies. One of the three, a fine example, in the original yellow glazed paper covers, uncut, was formerly in the library of James Russell Lowell, and bears this dated signature on the front cover: "J. R. Lowell, Dec'r 15, 1842." Lowell used this copy in preparing a review of the book. In 1903 it brought $205 at a Boston sale.

There are fine copies extant of "Ballads, and Other Poems," and "The Spanish Student," Cambridge, 1842 and 1843; of the "Poets and Poetry of Europe" and "The Waif," (both 1845, edited by Longfellow,) and of "Evangeline," Boston, 1847. The Arnold copy of the poem, in the original boards, uncut, with the paper label, brought $91 in 1901, and Frederick Locker-Lampson's equally fine copy was priced at $175 last March. The first issue of the first edition of "Evangeline" is identified by a curious typographical error, the letters "ng" having been omitted from the word "Long" at the top of page 61. This error, however, also seems to have occurred in the greater part of the second edition previous to its discovery.

"Noel," Cambridge, 1864, is also one of the scarce Longfellow items. Only a few copies of this poem, written by the poet in French, were privately printed by the author for distribution among friends. A curious Longfellow rarity is the first separate reprint of "Excelsior," published in New York City in 1872 by the Excelsior Life Insurance Company. A much rarer item is the original issue of the poem "From My Armchair to the Children of Cambridge, Who Presented to me on My Seventy-second Birthday, February 27, 1879, This Chair, Made From the Wood of the Village Blacksmith's Chestnut Tree."

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PUBLISHERS.

ACCORDING to the Bibliografía Española, Madrid, the sixth session of the International Congress of Publishers will be held at Madrid, probably in May, 1908. The publishers who are able to go to Madrid for the Congress will no doubt meet with a most gratifying and impressive reception by their Spanish colleagues. The Asociación de la Librería will take a prominent part in the arrangements.

RARE BOOKS STOLEN FROM PARIS STATE LIBRARY.

It having been discovered that a number of rare books and engravings, valued at several hundred thousand francs, had been stolen from the State Library of Fine Art, at Paris, an investigation was ordered. This resulted in the recovery of thirty-six of the missing volumes worth 100,000 francs. These books were brought in by the widow of a government architect named Thomas, who had abstracted them while Curator of the Grand Palace. The search for the remainder of the missing property is being continued.

REPRINTING OBSOLETE EDITIONS IN ENGLAND.

COMMENTING on a letter of John Ruskin Severn, the editor of the Saturday Review, of London, says: "It may be useful here to give the question about Ruskin's works put to the Government and Mr. Lloyd-George's reply. Mr. Beckett asked the First Lord of the Treasury whether his attention had been drawn to the fact that 'early and defective editions of Ruskin's books, discarded by Ruskin himself, were now being reprinted by several firms of London publishers and offered for sale in Great Britain and in the colonies; and whether, as the reprinting of misleading and obsolete editions of important ethical and scientific works, such as those of Ruskin and Darwin, was becoming so prevalent, he would introduce a bill amending the law of copyright with a view to check this evil.' Mr. Lloyd-George (who replied) said: 'I am unable at present to make any promise as to the early introduction of copyright legislation, but when this can be undertaken the question of finding a remedy for the evil referred to shall not be overlooked.'"

OBITUARY NOTES.

MADAME BLANC-BENTZON, the clever French woman who did a great deal to introduce English and American writings to French readers, has just died at the age of sixty-seven.

PROFESSOR JOHN KROM REES, who held the chair of astronomy in Columbia University for twenty-two years and was director of the observatory at that institution, died on March 9, at Summit, N. J. Born in New York City October 27, 1851, Professor Rees was graduated from Columbia in 1872, and from its

School of Mines in 1875, after which he filled the chair in mathematics and astronomy in Washington University, at St. Louis. He returned to his alma mater in 1881 to teach practical astronomy and geodesy, and became professor of these subjects in 1884. His published works are "Report on the Solar Eclipse of July 28, 1878," "International Time System and Standard Time," "Variation of Latitude and Constant Aberration," and "Index of Rutherford's Photographs of Sun, Moon and Stars."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

EDWARD ELGAR, the composer, arrives from Europe to conduct his works, "The Apostles" and "The Kingdom," with the Oratorio Society on the 19th and 26th of March, respectively. A biography of Elgar has been written by R. J. Buckley and published in handy form, with a number of illustrations from photographs, etc., by John Lane Company, New York.

KATHERINE ELEANOR CONWAY, editor of The Boston Pilot, was chosen by the Notre Dame University as the recipient of the Laetare medal for 1908. A medal is given annually to some member of the Catholic laity in the United States, distinguished for service to religion, art, science or philanthropy. Miss Conway, who has been connected with the Pilot for twenty-three years, is the fourth woman to receive the honor.

L. FRANK BAUM has completed the manuscript of his third "Oz" book and passed it along to his publishers, The Reilly & Britton Co. The title is "Ozma of Oz," in honor of the ruling princess of the Land of Oz. Besides introducing a number of new and amazing characters, the author has again brought forward Little Dorothy, who figured so extensively in "The Wizard of Oz." This is Mr. Baum's answer to the written appeals of at least 1000 children for "more about Dorothy." The famous Scarecrow and Tin Woodman are also largely in evidence. Realizing the importance of this publication in its present relation to the trade, the publishers are producing it in lavish form. The pictures by John R. Neill surpass any of his previous efforts, and they are being produced by a process that will give them a gorgeous effect.

BUSINESS NOTES.

AUSTIN, TEX.—Henry W. Gammel, son of H. P. N. Gammel, manager of the Gammel Publishing Company at El Paso, has established himself at the Driskell Hotel Building in the new and second-hand book business, as his father did in this city many years ago. He will be glad to receive catalogues from publishers and dealers in old books.

MOUNTAIN GROVE, Mo.—M. A. Rowden has sold his book business to J. F. Lee.

NEW YORK CITY.—The rare book and publishing business conducted under the name of Francis P. Harper will after May be known as Francis P. and Lathrop C. Harper. Mr. Lathrop C. Harper, who has been a silent partner since 1884, is equally as well known as his brother. Having sold their building at No. 14 W. Twenty-second Street, they will remove May 1 to 437 Fifth Avenue, Knabe Building.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish early in September May Sinclair's new novel, "The Helmsman," now appearing serially in the Atlantic Monthly.

WALKER & STONESTREET, 52 Broadway, New York City, recently sold a small but very interesting collection of incunabula for $25,000.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready John Oxenham's new novel, "The Long Road," a story of Russian politics, exile and oppression, by the author of "Barbe of Grand Bayou."

MR. COEDEN-SANDERSON, JR., the son of the well-known English bookbinder, is at present in this country, making his headquarters for the present at the Everett House, Union Square, in New York City.

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. have in press a new Indian story by Franklin Welles Calkins, "The Wooing of Tokala," a romance of the courtship of an Indian girl written by a man who has spent his life among Indians.

JOHN ERHARDT, JR., recently connected with W. F. Brainard, book manufacturer, has associated himself with the manufacturing department of F. A. Stokes Company, and will be there after March 18, 1907.

THE limited large-paper edition of the memoir of Longfellow by Charles Eliot Norton, which was issued in honor of the centennial, was all subscribed for on publication, but the book may be obtained in the regular edition at 75 cents.

THOMAS WHITTAKER is about to bring out "The Way to the Altar," helps to the Holy Communion," by the Rev. Charles L. Pardee, rector of St. Andrew's Church, Orange, N. J., with an introduction by the Bishop of Pittsburgh.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish in the fall "With Fighting Jack Barry," by John T. McIntyre, who wrote "The Ragged Edge" some years ago, a timely book in view of the forthcoming unveiling of a statue of Commodore Barry in Independence Square.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY have just ready "The Morning-Glory Club," by George A.

Kyle, a humorous description of the founding and growth of a woman's club in a small country town, which is determined not to be outdone by its larger and more experienced sister clubs.

DANA ESTES & Co. will publish shortly a new story by Frenssen, entitled "Three Comrades," which will be followed by "Along the Labrador Coast," by Dr. Charles Wendell Townsend, a book in which the interest is equally divided between the hardy inhabitants and the multitudinous birds of the shore and the neighboring waters.

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD will publish on the 25th inst. the following books for young people: "The Diamond Key," by Alvah Milton Kerr; "Dave Porter's Return to School," by Edward Stratemeyer; "Raymond Benson at Krampton," by Clarence E. Budleigh; "Priscilla of the Doll Shop," by Nina Rhodes; and "Fifty Flower Friends," by Edith Dunham.

LITTLE, BROWN & COMPANY will publish on March 23 Anna Chapin Ray's novel, "Ackroyd of the Faculty," a story of a man of the masses "in contact with a social class for whose life he had no previous training." They also announce the St. Lawrence edition of Parkman's "Pioneers of France," and a new popular five-volume edition of Hugo's "Les Misérables," said to contain twelve chapters lacking in other translations.

THE J. S. OGILVIE COMPANY have just brought out a book entitled "Don'ts for Everybody," a pocket guide of hints and helps for all sorts and conditions, showing what to do and what to avoid, compiled by Frederic Reddale. They announce that in consequence of the increased cost in every department of manufacture of their books the price on all of their paper-covered books will be advanced on April 1 half a cent per copy. The price of their cloth bound books will remain as heretofore.

THE CENTURY Co. will publish on the 27th inst. Charles D. Stewart's new book, "Partners of Providence," some parts of which have already been published in The Century. It is a story of life on the Mississippi and the Missouri steamboats, set down, as was "The Fugitive Blacksmith," in the first person. Sam tells the story in a racy vernacular that adds to the flavor of the adventures he recounts; and C. J. Taylor's pictures, of which there will be over a hundred in the book, are altogether in sympathy with the spirit of the text.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. announce among their forthcoming books "The History of Modern Painting," by Richard Muther, in four volumes quarto, containing nearly 1300 illustrations in black and white, and 48 in colors; "The Outlook in Ireland," by Lord Dunraven; "The Old Country," by Henry Newbolt; "Seeing and Hearing," by G. W. E. Russell; "Christian Theology and Social Progress," being the Bampton lectures for 1905, by F. W. Bussell, D.D.; Ruskin's "Stones of Venice," in three volumes, (in the New Universal Library;) and of boys' books—"Frank Brown, Sea Apprentice," by Frank T. Bullen, and "War on the World's Roof," by Dr. Gordon Stables.

MITCHELL KENNERLEY is about to publish "Letters to a Daughter," by Hubert Bland, husband of the novelist, "E. Nesbit," to whose daughter Rosamund these letters were written. The intellectual interchanges between father and daughter are more intimate and frank than is usual in that relation, and refer to those problems which present themselves inevitably to an intelligent girl of eighteen. The point of view is unconventional, but it is the one held by most modern men who think. Mr. Kennerly will bring out on March 20 Edgar Saltus's "The Lords of Ghostland, a History of the Ideal," which purports to give a history of the Divine, and to indicate the sources of revelation.

THE REILLY & BRITTON Co., Chicago, announce three "gift books"—"A Booklover's Notes," by Louise Perrett and Sarah K. Smith, for entering quotations, names of books loaned, read, etc.; a new edition of "The Girl Graduate," by the same authors, in which may be entered items of interest in school life, bound in vellum or flexible morocco; and "Sweethearts Always," a compilation of famous love poems, by Janet Madison, illustrated by Fred S. Manning, bound in vellum or morocco; "Simplified Spelling and American Usage," which identifies many proposed forms with spelling already authorized by standard dictionaries; "My Lady's Recipes," a book-file for inserting recipe cards, divided in dinner courses; also, "Fruits of Solitude," a new volume of the "Patriotic Classics," being "Reflections and maxims relating to the conduct of life," by William Penn.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have in preparation a poetic drama by Sara King, author of "Alcestis, and Other Poems," etc., entitled "The Coming of Philibert," which deals, presumably, with the kingdom of Naples and Sicily during the period when it was held by the descendants of Frederick Barbarossa; "A Victor of Salamis," a romance by William Stearns Davis, author of "A Friend of Cæsar," which deals with early Grecian history; "The New Theology," by the Rev. R. J. Campbell, who was recently spoken of as the man "who has made the whole world discuss theology;" "The Truce in the East and the Aftermath," by B. L. Putnam Weale, whose book is divided into three parts, dealing respectively with "Japan and the New Position," "China and the Chinese," and "The Powers and Their Influence;" "The Major Symptoms of Hysteria," by Professor Pierre Janet, Director of the Psychological Laboratory at the famous Salpêtrière in Paris, and probably the foremost authority on hysteria; also, a new edition of Professor Richard T. Ely's "Outlines of Economics," revised and enlarged by the author, with the assistance of Professors Adams and Lorenz, of the University of Wisconsin, and Professor Young, of Leland Stanford.

THE BERGER COMPANY, formerly The Holiday Publishing Company, have in preparation a number of their popular books entirely made over. The booklets, which are fully protected by copyright, are artistically lithographed on fine plate paper, in fifteen printings, in color and gold, and many of them are in new and attractive full binding. Their line embraces the Missal Series, twelve favorite hymns, such as "Abide With Me," "Lead, Kindly Light," etc., in old missal style, with gothic and ecclesiastical cover designs; the Floral Greetings Series, twelve numbers containing extracts from the great writers, with handsome floral and landscape plates, in full white binding; the Floral Jewel Series, six separate collections from the poets, with frontispiece portraits; also, the Gift of Love Series, six numbers specially designed as offerings of affection and souvenirs for St. Valentine's Day. For the young people they have an especially attractive Rosebud Series, with full-page color plates and black and white drawings by Ruth M. Hallock, including "Betty and Buddy on the Farm," "Rosebud Stories," "Bible Stories," "Story of Jesus," "Mother Goose" and "Billy Mouse;" the Holiday Series, six numbers, including "Happy Holidays," "Holiday Stories," "The Night Before Christmas," "A Letter to Santa Claus," "A Christmas Hamper" and "Mother Goose Rhymes;" the "Alice" Series, including "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," stories from Grimm and Andersen, "Fairy Stories" and "The Golden Staircase," a volume of poems and verses for children; also, the Peter Rabbit Series, including a new edition of "Peter Rabbit," with pictures in color and half-tone, "Silver Paw," "Twinklenose" and three other volumes of which the titles are not yet ready.

The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics

Edited by CHARLES WELSH

THIS anthology presents the best examples of Irish Songs and Lyrics from the earliest Bardic literature, the folk songs, street ballads and patriotic poetry; the pathetic romantic and sentimental poetry; the humorous and convivial verse with which the Irish literature abounds, and the refined, tender and mystical spirit which breathes in the poetry of the Irish Renaissance of to-day.

In compiling this collection the editor has had the advantage of the critical judgment of some of the foremost Irish scholars and poets, among whom may be mentioned Dr. Douglas Hyde, Stephen Lucine Gwynn, Lady Gregory, D. J. O'Donoghue, as well as the best English scholars on this side of the Atlantic, including Professor F. N. Robinson, who occupies the Celtic chair at Harvard University; Dr. Maurice F. Egan, of the Catholic University, in Washington; S. R. Richardson.

The Leading Novel of The John C. Winston Co. for 1907

By HENRY PETERSON

Author of "Pemberton: or One Hundred Years Ago."

With illustrations in color by HOWARD PYLE

Rarely is a love story so beautifully told, or thrilling and exacting situations so delicately and skilfully handled. The humor which crops out everywhere is of the spontaneous, infectious character that is irresistible. The plot, half true and half fiction, takes place in the strange period of the Salem witch trials, when the best educated men of New England were carried away in their narrow bigotry by the charges of a few vindictive and mischief-making girls. The great love of Dulcibel, beautiful, wealthy, fascinating, and Ellis Raymond, clever, resourceful and courageous, will appeal with great force to any man or woman who possesses even a grain of sentiment.

$250.00 to Readers

For writing a review of Dulcibel which will voice the sentiment of the majority of the newspapers and magazines of the United States, the publishers will give the following prizes :

First Prize	$100.00
Second Prize	25.00
Forty other Prizes Ranging from	.						$1.00 to $10.00

Names of Judges and full particulars on wrapper of each book.

Cloth, 12mo, 400 Pages, Price $1.50

Gentlemen:

Enclosed find my check for $5000. I send it to you with the understanding that it is to be paid to anyone who can show to me why the stock operations conducted by Robert Brownley, as shown in my book, "Friday, the 13th," could not have been executed by any member of the Stock Exchange in the past or why they cannot be executed today.

You will understand I make this offer in the broadest way and will not interpose technicalities. As a matter of fact, I say to you that such operations as Bob Brownley's have taken place in the past. Believe me,

Nearly five years ago we were invited to become associated with those Bible publishers who are governed by an agreement to maintain high prices. We refused to do so. The wisdom of our refusal, and its importance to booksellers, becomes apparent when at this time we are able to say that our Bible business is entirely satisfactory, and Bibles of equal quality to ours cannot be purchased elsewhere at prices less than from 25 to 50 per cent. more than we ask for them. JUST THINK THIS OVER.

Chestnuts Open When Frost Comes

HAVE you seen the ad. of G. & C. Merriam Co. headed "The Publisher's Claims Sustained?" No? Well they are running one with that heading—containing a so-called endorsement for their dictionary from some judges of the Court of Claims.

Their ad. is not a violation of the decree against the Merriam Co. You understand that the U. S. Circuit Court found that they have not the exclusive right to the name "Webster" in the title of dictionaries. Their ad. at this time is apparently more of an attempt to throw dust in people's eyes as to this recent decision of the U. S. Circuit Court against them than anything else, and I should call it merely a prevarication.

The personnel of the judges of the Court of Claims is not, and has not been for years, what it was when they secured the endorsement which they now publish. I have taken pains to look this matter up, and I find that the Court has not been so made up since May 5th, 1902. It was made up of the five judges they give the names of from January, 1897, to May, 1902, so that sometime during those five years their endorsement was procured.

Judge Howry was appointed January 28th, 1897, and he, together with Judges Nott, Weldon, Davis and Peelle, constituted the Court until Davis' death May 5th, 1902.

In the first place the use of the language "The publisher's claims sustained" and "Court of Claims" is evidently intended to convey the impression that that Court deals with the claims of various people, that is, with the pretensions which they make relating to what they have to sell, whereas it is well known that the Court of Claims is one whose jurisdiction covers claims arising from contracts with the U. S. Gov't, French spoliation claims, etc., etc., and it has nothing to do with Merriam's "claims" or their dictionaries.

The ad. must have been written at least five, and possibly ten, years ago because the endorsement may have been obtained just after Judge Howry was appointed in January, 1897. In fact the language of the ad. would imply that it was written soon after the International was published, because it speaks about the dictionary "as it now stands, having been thoroughly re-edited in every detail," whereas it has not been "thoroughly re-edited" since 1890.

The ad. is a pitiful attempt, when they are defeated by the Court's decision in this year of our Lord, 1907, to convey an impression by juggling with words, that some court has sustained their "claims," whereas the language of the endorsement simply says that what the Merriams saw fit to say in praise of their dictionary was, for some reason or other, years ago accepted by these judges as a statement of the dictionary's merit.

I am not quite certain, but it is my impression that not one of the men whose names are signed to this endorsement is now living, or at least, if he is, he is not now one of the Judges of the Court of Claims.

I could, I presume, get the endorsement of the judges of the Municipal Court of Kalamazoo, (if there is such a court,) and publish it with the heading, "All the Court's judges declare Ogilvie's Webster's Dictionary to be infinitely better than any other dictionary." That would be the same sort of "brag" which the ad. in question is. It would be exceedingly cheap advertising, but no less so than the Merriams' ad.

I think that the Merriam Co. ad. gives me the best chance in the world to make the Merriams a laughing stock, if I saw fit, but I don't. I'm too sorry for them.

Which is better, the judicial opinion and injunction of A LIVE JUDGE IN 1907, (Hon. LeBaron B. Colt,) of the United States Circuit Court, or the perfunctory "puff" of five judges now dead, given ten years or so ago, and furnished under circumstances and for reasons which are not disclosed?

By the way, would any judge, trained to care and accuracy of expression, himself write that a book was "the source of constant reference?" Yet that language is contained in the endorsement of the Court of Claims judges.

The "puff" bears internal evidence of having been prepared in the summer in Arizona, or the engine room of a boiler factory—where the air is always hot—by interested parties and then signed with little consideration.

It must be apparent why this ad. is headed "Chestnuts Open When Frost Comes." The frost was the opinion and decree of the United States Circuit Court against G. & C. Merriam Co. The "chestnut" endorsements follow as a natural result.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "Fighting on the Congo," by Herbert Strang, a story of exciting adventures in the Congo Free State. DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. announce for publication on March 26 "Wuthering Heights," by Emily Brontë, the first volume of the Large Print Library, which is arranged for those of defective eyesight; also, "Farm Management," by F. W. Card, dealing with systematic and economical methods of farm financing, the volume being the second of the Farm Library.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY is handling for D. Appleton & Co. the paper-bound edition of Hall Caine's remarkable book on "Drink," a story based on the curative value of hypnotism. It has already been translated into most of the European languages, and in England has sold nearly 200,000.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will issue early in April a new kind of "nature book"—one that is suitable for all seasons of the year. It is entitled "Four Seasons in the Garden," a book for the amateur gardener, and is the work of Eben E. Rexford, one of the foremost amateur gardeners in the United States. There are twenty-seven full-page illustrations in tints, a frontispiece in color, decorated title-page, half titles and lining papers. The fifteenth volume of Dr. Horace Howard Furness's Variorum edition of Shakespeare will be ready for publication during May. "Antony and Cleopatra" is the play chosen by Dr. Furness for his latest work.

DODD, MEAD & Co. have just ready "Where the Trail Divides," by Will Lillibridge, author of "Ben Blair," with illustrations in color by the Kinneys, a vivid story of the Dakota prairies in the '60's and '70's, of massacring Indians and desperate frontiersmen, of cowboys and tough characters, of rough, hard, healthy life in a tiny settlement and the surrounding ranches far out in the prairie country; "The Flyers," by George Barr McCutcheon, an exciting story of a double elopement, with pictures in color by Harrison Fisher; "Is He Popenjoy?" by Anthony Trollope, the third in the series called The Manor House Novels; "The Many-sided Roosevelt," an anecdotal biography of the President, by George William Douglas; also, "Recollections of Men and Horses," by Hamilton Busbey, who was for thirty-eight consecutive years editor of Turf, Field and Farm, and a recognized authority on his subject.

Hopkinson Smith's long-promised new volume, "The Veiled Lady, and Other Men and Women," stories of life in the East, in Holland, in New York, and on Long Island Sound, all told with the same tone of kindly humor and genial but keen observation of character; "Rudin" and "A King Lear of the Steppes," "Father and Children," "A Nobleman's Nest" and "On the Eve," four volumes in the new edition of the works of Turgénieff, translated from the Russian by Isabel F. Hapgood; "A Bird's Eye View of American History," by Leon C. Prince, a concise history of America, presenting clearly and interestingly the essential facts and preserving a just proportion between events; also, "A Short History of the American Navy," by John R. Spears, with illustrations by Carlton T. Chapman and others, published under the auspices of the Navy League of the United States.

He is promptly declared "unsound," and a battle ensues between his desire to be true to his principles and to keep his position. A counter picture of the congregation itself, with its little factions and bickerings, is given so faithfully that it must appeal to every reader as being founded closely upon fact.

His wonderful powers are illustrated in seven stories, each one at first sight representing an apparently impenetrable mystery. Contents: The problem of Cell 13; The scarlet thread; The man who was lost; The great auto mystery; The flaming phantom; The Ralston bank burglary; The mystery of a studio. geometry, algebra and trigonometry usually read by pupils that do not specialize in mathematics. In detail there are a few differences. Thus the addition theorem in trigonometry is of no great use for the solution of triangles, nor has the manipulation involved sufficient training value to justify the inclusion of the theorem. On the other hand, a certain amount of solid geometry is included from a belief in its value for both knowledge and training. The book has the form of a summarized discussion between teacher and pupils."—Preface.

Intended for the use of upper forms in schools. The editors give two reasons why Martial should be read in these forms. In the first place, his epigrams belong to a distinct species of literature, characteristically Roman both in form and matter. Secondly, Martial throws a valuable and instructive light on the social life of Rome in the first century of our era. The introduction gives a connected account of certain features of Roman life constantly referred to in the epigrams. There is also a sketch of Martial's life. Index of first lines. The older scalawag had loved the younger scalawag's mother, and the boy became a great influence for good in his careless life.

Oxenham, J. The long road. N. Y., Macmillan, 1907. c. 356 p. front. D. cl., $1.50.

The long road" is from Kazan in Russia to Irkutsk in Siberia, tramped by a group of political exiles. The scene is laid entirely in Siberia, the story having to do with the life of Stepan Ilne, the son of one of the exiles. Stepan comes to Siberia so young that it is home to him; he has married a woman he loves and has a charming child, when he comes in conflict with the brutal governor of his province, who devises for him an extraordinarily injurious punishment that makes him forever a wanderer on the face of the earth. Stepan's struggle with his fate, and his effort to wring some happiness out of his lot, is told with much pathos and poetical feeling. The central incident, the author states, is a historical fact. Mr. Oxenham has written "God's prisoners" and other novels.

The Biblical Aramaic is "the vernacular speech of the Jews in the Persian and Greek periods of their history." The Aramaean dialect, during the seventh and eighth centuries A.C., was used even in Babylonia and Assyria, along with the native speech. By grammatical analyses, Dr. Powell arrives at the conclusion that the supposed Hebraisms in the grammar of this dialect were really very few, and that these at best originated not in the Hebrew, but in a dialectal variety of Aramaic.

A beautiful woman, who began life as a singer in a café, is the adventuress. When a very young girl a great banker married her and committed suicide, so it was said, within a week, leaving her his immense fortune. The story represents her as being received by the best people of London, where she runs an amazing career of crime. She uses her fortune as a means of getting young men in her toils. When unable to return her loans she threatens them with ruin, unless they aid her in her criminal and revengeful schemes.

Van Eeden, Frederik. The quest: the authorized translation from the Dutch of "De kleine Johannes," by L. W. C. Bost., John W. Luce & Co., 1907. c. 519 p. O. cl., $1.50.

The author is a recognized leader in the modern school of Dutch thought. The present work is difficult to classify; the publishers say "it is a mingling of a novel, an epic, a fairy tale, a popular book and an ethical and philosophic treatise." The central figure is the little boy, John, a seeker after truth, asking, as all men in all ages have asked, for the solution of the riddle of the universe. He meets many friends, both in the real world and in the wonderful fairy world of his imagination. All profess ability to help him, and to each he gives himself up unreservedly, only to learn in the end that the great task before him is yet to be begun. The romance abounds in symbolism and allegory. Dr. Van Eeden was born in 1860 at Haarlem, Holland.

The author says: "It is obvious that the attitude of the educated man to the Bible has undergone nothing less than a revolution. Instead of the authoritative pronouncement of Deity through arbitrarily chosen instruments, the Bible is now regarded as a great body of literature, one part differing from another part in glory. And the parts have been seen to be of far greater value than the whole."

Little Reu is poetry and sunshine; she brings about the happiness of all. Her search for her mother is original, and her influence upon her grandfather is remarkably well worked out.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 23, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SELLING BOOKS ON THE "SALE OR RETURN" PLAN.

INSTIGATED by the experiments which are now being made by several English publishing houses that have recently offered some of their new books "on sale or return," under certain restrictions and for a limited period, the question has been raised in several quarters whether it would not be desirable to introduce the system into this country also. The London Publishers' Circular last month touched on this subject, and concluded that it saw nothing in the system that would materially benefit the English booktrade, and, we must confess, we are inclined to agree with our contemporary that we also see nothing in the system that would materially benefit the American booktrade.

Theoretically, the Continental system of sending out books "on sale" seems to have met every requirement of affording to the public in every locality an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with all the latest important books at a minimum of cost to all concerned in the making and distributing of books. The "on sale" system in years past has no doubt proved of considerable benefit to the publisher and has contributed much in maintaining the high standard of efficiency of the bookseller in Germany. Since it is impossible for a bookseller to stock up at his own expense with even the books that might be likely to appeal to the book buyers in his neighborhood, it is desirable that the bookseller should have an opportunity of bringing to the attention of his customers such books as he may think will be of interest to them, and, if unsuccessful in his efforts to make a sale, that he should be able to return them to the publisher at a small expense for carriage.

However, seductive as the "on sale" system may appear in theory, in practice it is proving of decreasing value. Modern commercial transactions are more and more founded on a cash basis, and the retail merchant is more than ever required to know his field and to cultivate it and provide for it in the most economical manner and with absolute promptness. Even in Germany it is now the exception, no longer the rule, to send books "on sale," and every year publishers are offering greater inducements to buy for cash and are endeavoring in other ways to discourage buying on commission.

There are a number of objections to the "on sale or return" system which would prejudice the American publishing trade against it. The most serious objections are the necessity of locking up capital, the returns on which are bound to be slow if not altogether uncertain, and the inevitable waste in manufacturing books to provide for a demand that may never exist. Other, but by no means minor objections to the "on sale and return" plan, are the complexity of bookkeeping and shipping involved; the extra expense of correspondence, and several others which would no doubt be encountered in following the system. Unless the considerable deterioration of stock unavoidably caused by handling cloth bound books is considered a negligible item, that proportion of books which is to be sent out "on sale" must be bound in paper, an innovation that would not find favor with the bookbuying public which is interested in still better bindings rather than in no bindings at all.

And, finally, we question whether the "on sale" system would prove an unmixed blessing to the bookseller, or whether it would even stimulate him to greater enterprise. As a mortgage on a church is supposed to act as an incentive to greater zeal and activity, so a bookseller's capital invested in the stock that lines the walls of his store will prove vastly more impelling to make sales than perfunctorily sending out books to curious customers on the chance that he may make a sale at the small cost of the carriage both ways of the book by mail or express. In the one case it is despair if a sale is not made, in the other it is only a hope deferred, and the difference makes all the difference in the world in moving stock.

HOW "UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" WAS PUBLISHED.

A CORRESPONDENT ("L. S. G.") of the Boston Transcript some time ago gave the following information concerning the publishing of Mrs. Stowe's early works:

I feel disposed to correct some misapprehensions, concerning Mrs. Stowe's early works and her Boston publishers. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was never rejected. As book material it was offered first and only to Messrs. Jewett & Company, after running in weekly instalments in the National Era with immense vogue. It was "Dred," the famous author's second book, that went to a publisher of second choice, for a peculiar reason about to be given, and the transfer was vice versa as between the publishers interested.

It took years for American book publishers to convince themselves that serializing may be an excellent way of advertising. The house of Jewett deliberated on the question of commercial availability in a volume from copy that had been widely circulated for months. Everybody had read "Uncle Tom," what was the prospect of creating a new demand for the familiar tale? A proposition was made to publish the book for the author, by which, of course, she would receive the profits and the publisher the usual commission only; but Mrs. Stowe would not hear of it, and carried her point with the young publisher, who proceeded to risk handling the re-birth, with what success the world knows. Sales were rapid and phenomenal. When he could count twenty-five thousand net, something happened. Mrs. Stowe applied for annulment of their contract and recourse to that he had preferred and she had so vigorously opposed. It was now his turn to refuse, and no less was it her pleasure to urge. Like the woman of Scripture, by her continual coming she wearied him. Sometimes their interviews were attended by the lady's reverend husband, Calvin E. Stowe, to strengthen her side. Nothing was accomplished, however, beyond bringing the publisher to decide that dealing with a person utterly unbusinesslike would best be discontinued. Therefore the manuscript of "Dred" submitted to these publishers was forthwith declined, and, being necessarily withdrawn, found acceptance with Messrs. Phillips & Sampson.

This account, literally, was given me by Mr. John P. Jewett himself—the autumn of 1855, I think—in his office on Washington Street, near School Street. Shortly after, I met once for all the happy author of the seething anti-slavery story in the publishing house in Winter Street, north side, to whom I was introduced by her new publisher, the head of another deservedly popular though all too short-lived firm.

In connection with the foregoing the Rev. Dr. Charles M. Clarke's recollections of how "Uncle Tom's Cabin" came to be brought out in England may be interesting. We quote from Dr. Clarke's article as printed in the London Book Monthly last September. We note, by the way, that Dr. Clarke is under the mistaken impression that the book was first brought out "by Putnam of New York."

One evening, at the end of March, 1852, Mr. Henry Vizetelly walked into a certain printing office situated in Bouverie Street, where a young firm had recently started in business. He bore in his hand a copy of a book which, he explained, he had just received from David Bogue, the publisher—"Uncle Tom's Cabin," in two volumes, fresh from America. David Bogue was not disposed to issue reprints, and, in opposition to the counsel of his literary adviser, Mr. Henry Mayhew, had not thought sufficiently well of the work to make an exception in this case—a decision he always regretted. He had, therefore, entrusted the book for disposal to Vizetelly, who thus submitted it to Salisbury, Clarke & Co., because my father, apart from the printing firm, carried on a publishing business at 148 Fleet Street. Mr. Frederick Greenwood then acted as reader and literary adviser to him, and took part in what followed.

Vizetelly said that in view of the probability of another copy of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" arriving from America by the next mail, some decision must be come to at once. He could, therefore, only give until noon on the following day for a definite answer. My father put the first volume into his pocket and split the other into two portions. One portion he gave to Mr. Greenwood, the other to his own partner, Mr. Salisbury, and he promised the firm's acceptance or refusal of the offer by the time specified. Quickly my father skimmed through his volume. Mr. Salisbury sat up in bed half the night reading his pages aloud to his wife, while the tears streamed down his face, as, indeed, was depicted in a cartoon in Diogenes, the rival comic to Punch in those days. Mr. Greenwood reported that at the end of an hour he was actually in a tremble lest the interest of the story should flag; but that, on the contrary, the further he got the greater grew his admiration. His recommendation was to conclude the purchase of the book and print it quickly, lest the venture should be forestalled. The decision to do so was reached on the last day of March, and on April 15 a first English edition, consisting of 5000 copies, crown 8vo, bound in cloth boards, price 2s. 6d., of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was issued by Charles H. Clarke & Co., of 148 Fleet Street, London.

The trade hung fire, the subscription list proved small, and the publisher was reluctantly compelled to regard the thing as somewhat of a failure. For some months the sales remained very slight, but in August a five-column review of the book appeared in the Times. Eulogistic notices in other papers speedily followed, and it jumped into unexampled popularity, became the rage, as perhaps no other work has ever been. . . .

Such a success naturally brought rival editions into the English market, and one especially was reprinted bodily from my father's issue. Unfortunately for the reprinter, he included a preface which Mr. Greenwood had contributed, and which, of course, was copyright. A great supply had been distributed to the booksellers, but none could be legally sold till a satisfactory agreement had been come to with Clarke. Later on a still greater advantage came to him at a moment when he really could not keep up with the orders which flowed in. In the early editions of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' the chapters were without head-lines; but it struck my father that here was a blemish which should be repaired in a more sumptuous edition. Mr. Greenwood supplied the headings, and what must another house do but print an edition with these very headings. This was a more grievous blunder than the one already mentioned, for, while a preface is a thing apart and may be deleted, head-lines distributed throughout a book infect it with illegality. Thus Clarke & Co. were able to acquire this guilty edition at less than the cost of paper and print, and by merely substituting a fresh title page had an abundant supply of 'Uncle Tom,' drawn from a rival source.

In the autumn of 1852 my father sent his confidential clerk, Mr. S. O. Beeton, to America to interview Mrs. Harriet Beecher-Stowe, and hand her an honorarium of a thousand guineas in recognition of the profit he had realized from her book. This is believed to be the first instance on record in which an English publisher recognized any moral obligation to share his profits with the author of a non-copyright reprint. Meanwhile, the sales in England romped along. My father supplied Routledges with 400,000 copies of a shilling edition, and that firm religiously preserved their ledger for 1852-53 as a unique curiosity, the entire entries for the year having reference to 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' A quarter of a million copies of a sixpenny edition were done for another house, and within twelve months no less than a million and a quarter copies of the book were produced by Clarke & Co., with a net profit to them of £18,000. . . .

Even now the publishing houses are continually reprinting "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and its annual sales run to some fifty thousand copies, a circulation which not more than half a dozen authors of our present day can rival with a current work of fiction.

THE NATIONAL CYCLOPÆDIA OF AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY.

THIS new biographical cyclopedia, just completed, is, according to its title-page, "The history of the United States as illustrated in the lives of the founders, builders, and defenders of the republic, and of the men and women who are doing the work and moulding the thought of the present time." The thirteenth volume, which completes the biographical part of the work, may be taken as an example of the whole.

Its biographies are arranged not chronologically nor alphabetically, but by institutions, movements, or any other connecting links in human work. This is an important feature of all the volumes. Each one covers a certain period of American history, and gives in groups all the presidents, national officers, authors, artists, etc., of the time. Thus the thirteenth volume begins with the governors of Kentucky, and these biographies are followed by those of the bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, while members of various publication concerns, business houses, corporations, colleges and universities are treated in order, when possible, only those of a certain period being included. This volume also contains the biographies of prominent American authors, artists and sculptors, and inventors of the period. Each volume is separately indexed under names.

The publishers, James T. White & Company, maintain that the work will be found as accurate as is possible, each proof having been read eight or ten times, every date having been carefully verified, and each biographical sketch having been corrected by the person concerned or by a relative or a descendant. The Spanish-American war is contained in the ninth volume, in the biographies of those concerned.

Work on the Cyclopedia has been going on through the past seventeen years. The first volume was made of Revolutionary biographical matter, the fourth of that of the Civil War, the sixth of that of the Mexican War, and so on through American history.

The fourteenth volume is made up of the main index and the "Conspectus." The index to the set is both personal and topical, and the former contains cross references indexing not only the biography of a man, but references to him in other biographies, poems, etc. The Conspectus of American Biography the publishers claim to be a unique compilation. It contains lists, among others, of the delegates to the Colonial Congresses, the Presidents and other officers of the country, national and state, the officers of churches and universities, the editors of magazines and newspapers, the directors of astronomical observatories, actors, authors, statues, pseudonyms, notable sayings, last words of famous characters, and character lessons to be drawn from the whole.

A SOCIETY FOR THE STUDY OF THE GYPSIES.

STUDENTS of Romany and others interested in the gypsies, will no doubt be interested to learn that the British Gypsy Lore Society has been revived, under the presidency of the veteran gypsy scholar, David MacRitchie.

The society is to publish a quarterly journal devoted to original research, the first number of which will appear in July next. John Sampson, librarian of the Liverpool University, will contribute the leading article, in which he will give a summary of the present state of Romany knowledge and indicate the problems still in need of elucidation. George F. Black, of the New York Public Library, Lenox branch, will contribute a bibliography of works relating to the gypsies.

R. A. Scott Macfie, 6 Hope Terrace, Liverpool, England, is the secretary of the new society, and will be pleased to hear from any one desiring to become a member. The annual subscription has been fixed at £1.

THE TRADE SUFFERS IN PITTSBURGH.

THE news from Pittsburgh, Pa., is not encouraging. The damage through the floods that have destroyed a large portion of the city is now estimated as running considerably over $20,000,000. The climax was reached on the night from the 14th to the 15th inst., when the water had risen to thirty-six feet two inches, the highest for a century.

Business has naturally suffered, if not directly from the flood then from the demoralization caused by it. While we have thus far been unable to hear directly from only one member of the trade, judging from his loss we fear that others in the neighborhood must also have sustained some loss by the inundation. The bookselling firm from which we have word is R. S. Davis & Co., on Wood Street, whose reserve stock of new spring books, etc., kept in the basement, was almost entirely ruined by water in the night of March 14 to 15. Owing to the extraordinary weight of book stock, and the dust conditions of Pittsburg, Davis & Co. had only a small part of their stock on exhibition, the bulk being stored away in the basement. On the fateful night the water reached their building and flooded the lower part to the height of five feet, ruining most of their new spring stock, which had just been received and stored away.

Bonnell was re-appointed manager of the Employment Bureau, which he has so efficiently administered since 1899, and the secretary was instructed to forward to Mr. Bonnell a vote of thanks of the League for his splendid services.

The president, A. Wessels, appointed the following committees:

Entertainment Committee.—E. B. Hackett, F. Gilman, W. G. Preston and C. E. Peabody.

Finance Committee.—C. L. Bowman, A. G. Seiler, S. Reis and J. B. Pratt.

It was decided to give the next annual dinner on the evening of April 10, at the Aldine Association.

NEW YORK STATIONERS' DINNER.

THE NEW YORK STATIONERS gave their second annual dinner at the Hotel Astor on the evening of March 19. Upwards of three hundred members of the association and their friends were present and all had an uproarious time. Theodore L. C. Gerry, the president of the Association, acted as toastmaster until his voice gave out, and William C. Popper relieved him. Among the speakers were Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America; Judge Charles F. Moore, of West Virginia, and First Deputy Police Commissioner O'Keefe, of New York City.

OBITUARY NOTES.

PIERRE EUGÈNE MARCELLIN BERTHELOT, who was regarded as one of the most brilliant experimental scientists of his time, died suddenly in Paris on March 18, his death being due to shock at his wife's unexpected death. Professor Berthelot was born in Paris in 1827. He received his doctor's degree in 1854, and in 1860 was made professor of organic chemistry at the École de Pharmacie. In 1865 a chair of chemistry was established for him at the Collège de France, with which he was connected up to the time of his death. Among his more popular discoveries were acetylene gas and smokeless powder. His scientific work embraced the widest scope. He made experimental researches into the phenomena of explosives and the generation of heat in chemical transformations. The science of thermo-chemistry is largely built upon his initial experiments. His published works number over a dozen and he was a constant contributor to the scientific press.

DR. ALBERT SAMUEL GATSCHE, for twenty-eight years one of the chief scientists of the bureau of ethnology of the Smithsonian Institution, and probably the highest authority in this country on Indian languages and dialects, died on March 16 at his home in Washington, D. C. As a linguist and writer on languages and dialects he was well known in the United States and abroad, but his most novel accomplishments were shown in his work among the Indians, to whom he had devoted his greatest energies for the last thirty years. Dr. Gatschet was born at St. Beatenberg, Berne, Switzerland, October 3, 1832. His early studies were of German and Romance dialects in Switzerland, relative to which he wrote his first books. Later he pursued antiquarian investigations in the British Museum. He came to the United States in 1868, and immediately became interested in the almost unknown Indian languages and dialects. Major J. W. Powell was making geographical surveys for the government at that time, and his attention being called to some of the articles of Dr. Gatschet, he appointed him ethnologist, and assigned him to accompany the expedition. It was in 1879 that the bureau of ethnology was established, and the linguist was transferred to that bureau. He retained that place until the time of his death. His published work includes "A Creek Migration Legend," "The Klamath Indians of Southwestern Oregon," and a glossary and critical analysis of the Creek language, also in the dialect, which books are now in use among the Indians of these tribes in Alabama and Georgia, and numerous reports and articles.

THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH, poet and novelist, died on March 19, at his home in Mount Vernon Street, Boston, Mass. Several weeks ago Mr. Aldrich submitted to an operation which was not believed to be serious. His recovery was slow, but sufficient to make it possible to remove him from the hospital to his home. His vitality was very low, however, and he failed to rally. Mr. Aldrich, the last connecting link between the old and new literary school in this country, was born in Portsmouth, N. H., described by him as "the prettiest place in all the world," on November 11, 1836. The town of his birth was often pictured in his writings. It was the "River-mouth" in his "Story of a Bad Boy," in which Aldrich wrote the story of his own life. Much of Aldrich's early life was spent in New Orleans, La., where his father was engaged in a banking enterprise. Young Aldrich was prepared for Harvard University, and it was to complete his preparation that he was sent back to Portsmouth when he was still a boy. When he was about seventeen years old the banking enterprise in New Orleans failed and the elder Aldrich died soon afterward. A wealthy uncle in New York offered to send young Thomas through Harvard, but Thomas preferred to enter his uncle's counting house, where he served as a clerk for three years. During this time he published a volume of poems entitled "The Bells: a Collection of Chimes." During the years from 1856 to 1870 he wrote much of the poetry on which his fame rests. Among his works of that period were "The Ballad of Baby Bell, and Other Poems," "Daisy's Necklace and What Came of It," "Pampinea, and Other Poems," "Out of His Head: a Romance in Prose," two more collections of poems, and "The Story of a Bad Boy." His other works include "Marjorie Daw, and Other People," "Prudence Palfrey," "The Queen of Sheba," "The Still-water Tragedy," "From Ponkapog to Pesh," "An Old Town by the Sea," "Two Bites at a Cherry," "Unguarded Gates," besides essays and several plays. He was a contributor to Futnam's Monthly, the Knickerbocker and the New York Evening Mirror. For three years he worked as assistant editor on the Home Journal, then published by N. P. Willis and George P. Morris. From 1865 to 1874 he edited Every Saturday, and from 1881 to 1890 he was editor of the Atlantic Monthly. In 1890 he retired from active editorial work. His last work was a poem on Longfellow in commemoration of the centennial of the poet's birth. In 1896 Henry L. Pierce, a life-long friend and literary patron of Aldrich, died leaving the poet an estate at Ponkapog, Mass., together with $200,000.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE body of Immanuel Kant is soon to be transferred from the "Stoa Kantiana" adjoining the Cathedral of Königsberg. The Stoa is a small modern chapel and its architecture is out of harmony with that of the cathedral, which dates from the fourteenth century and has recently been restored. The body of the philosopher will be transferred to the cathedral. A splendid monument is to be erected to Kant, who was a native of Königsberg and died there in 1804.

MONCURE DANIEL CONWAY celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday on March 17, having been born on that day at Middleton, in Stafford County, Virginia, in 1832. Originally a Methodist preacher, and holding extreme Southern views, he came under the influence of Emerson and the radical opponents of slavery and changed both his political belief and his religious creeds. He entered the Divinity School at Cambridge, and on graduation essayed to preach Unitarian Doctrine in his native State. His anti-slavery sentiments made his stay in the South impossible, and he therefore went to Cincinnati. Afterward, for a time, he edited the Boston Commonwealth, and in 1863 he visited England to make propaganda for the anti-slavery cause. The trustees of the ultra-liberal South Place Chapel, in London, secured his services, and there he preached from 1863 to 1884, when he returned to the United States. Again, from 1892 to 1897, he occupied his London pulpit, and then he retired to devote himself exclusively to literary work. A profound scholar, who has touched life at many points, who has come into contact with many of the greatest men of his time, and whose personality is ever most charming, Dr. Conway has won for himself many friends and admirers in all parts of the world, who showered congratulations upon him on the anniversary of his birth.

OLD BOOK NOTES.

ON March 16 Sotheby's sold four rare historical items. One of these was "A Prayse and Reporte of Maister Forbisher [Sir Martin Frobisher, the redoubtable English explorer and naval hero] on a Voyage to Meta Incognita," 1578, which fetched $5000. Only one other copy of this work is known, and that is in the British Museum. A rare first edition of Frobisher's second voyage, 1577, brought $3800. The third and last voyage, 1578, fetched $4600. "The True Declaration of the Troublesome Voyage of M. John Hankins to Parts of Guynea and West Indies in 1567-68," printed in 1569, sold for $3150. The four items were purchased by B. F. Stevens & Brown for an American customer. The same firm also bought the "Relation of Maryland," with the map dated 1635, for $2000. Only three copies with the map are known. A second folio Shakespeare fetched $1100 at the same sale. An autograph manuscript of Robert Burns's "Scots wa hae wi' Wallace Bled," offered as the original copy, fetched $1775; a sixteenth century manuscript of "Preces Pia" sold for $3850, and the manuscripts of Bret Harte's "The Devotion of Enriquez," "Clarence Barker's Luck" and "Susy" fetched $85, $60 and $255, respectively.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Arena for March contains an interesting essay on Oscar Wilde by Professor Archibald Henderson, of the University of North Carolina; "The Poet of the Sierras [Joaquin Miller] on his Problem-poem dealing with Love after Marriage;" "Some Aspects of Poe's Poetry," by H. Holland Carter.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

GEORGE H. RICHMOND, 358 Fifth Avenue, New York, has published two interesting catalogues of Americana. One of these is entitled "Fifty-five Letters of George Washington to Benjamin Lincoln, 1777-1799," briefly described, with a foreword by A. J. Bowden. A short time ago Mr. Richmond offered a remarkable series of letters by Washington written to George and James Clinton, thirty-five in all, of which twenty-six had never been published. It was then thought that such another series of historic Revolutionary manuscripts would never be met with again. How futile such conjectures are likely to prove is again shown in this case, and Mr. Bowden's statement that "the present series will never be rivalled" may in time also be refuted by the discovery of another such "find," though that now seems highly improbable. The present collection is of interest because it contains a number of letters wholly in the handwriting of Washington, while the Clinton series did not contain one. These letters also include some of the longest and most interesting ever written by Washington and none of them has ever been printed, or has been published only in part. (64 p. 16°.) The other catalogue is entitled "The Unpublished Revolutionary Papers of Major-General Edward Hand, of Pennsylvania, 1777-1784," catalogued, with preliminary note, by A. J. Bowden. The documents comprise sixty-one pieces, several of them being answers to queries by Washington relating to his long-planned but never accomplished siege of New York—a practically unwritten chapter of Revolutionary history. (30 p. 16°.)

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly publish in book form the novel "Mother," by Maxim Gorky. The book will have the same illustrations by Ivanowski that have appeared in Appleton's Magazine, in which the novel has been running serially.

ADOLF HEPNER's book, "America's Aid to Germany in 1870-1871," published in St. Louis, Mo., two years ago, has been brought out by J. H. W. Dietz, of Stuttgart, in a German version entitled "Der Schutz der Deutschen in Frankreich. 1870, 1871."

A. C. McCLURG & Co. have just ready "The Iron Way," by Sarah Pratt Carr, who has made not only an interesting but a strong story out of the facts connected with the building of the Central Pacific Railroad. John W. Norton has illustrated the book.

ALL who have left the city behind to live in the country, and all who are planning to do so, will be interested in two small books full of practical suggestions and attractive illustrations entitled "The Little Farm" and "The Stable Handbook," issued by John Lane Company.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just published an edition of "The Spectator," in four volumes, in Everyman's Library, reproducing the spelling, punctuation, type, etc., of the edition of 1714, and giving notes, a general and biographical index, and a brief account of all contemporary persons mentioned in the essays.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS, New York, have ready for immediate publication "The Cumulative Speller," by Charles E. Smith, a modern and practical speller for commercial education. The work also contains a special chapter on new spelling, together with 300 words recommended by the Simplified Spelling Board.

TENNANT & WARD will bring out shortly after Easter "A Short Introduction to Franciscan Literature," by Fr. Paschal Robinson, O.F.M., which will contain a brief outline of the early sources of Franciscan history, and a list of works relating to the Franciscan movement, which have appeared since the thirteenth century.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY will issue early in May "Coillard of the Zambesi," by C. W. Mackintosh, giving the life histories of François and Christenah Coillard, of the Paris Missionary Society in South and Central Africa; also, E. D. Morel's book, "Red Rubber," a story of the rubber slave trade to-day flourishing on the Congo.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly a new volume by E. Ray Lankester, Director of the Natural History Departments of the British Museum, containing three papers dealing respectively with the responsibilities of man incidental to his defiance of the laws of natural selection—The Advance of Science, 1881-1906, and that strange disease The Sleeping Sickness, into a volume entitled from the first paper "The Kingdom of Man."

FREDERICK J. DRAKE & Co., Chicago, announce that they have purchased all copyrights, plates, sheet stock, etc., of the subscription books of the Railway Publications Society, Chicago. They will bring out this modern series of railway publications for the trade in trade editions in the near future. They have also arranged for the publication of the books formerly published by the Hennebry Company, of Chicago.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out a new story by Basil King, entitled "The Giant's Strength," a story of ruthlessness tempered with a beautiful love episode; "Katherine," by E. Temple Thurston, a story of temptation bravely resisted; also, "Tiberius Smith," by Hugh Pendexter, the story of a clever showman whose business takes him into the out-of-the-way corners of the earth and furnishes a series of most unusual situations humorously told.

G. W. DILLINGHAM Co. announce "The Lincoln Story Book," compiled by Henry L. Williams, containing upwards of six hundred stories ascribed to Lincoln, full of philosophy and humor; "Cinders, the Diary of a Drummer," by Wright Bauer, a collection of up-to-date stories that will appeal especially to the "Knights of the Grip;" also, "Flip Flap Fables," by Frank E. Kellogg, twenty-seven tales concerning animals of various kinds, from which may be deduced many morals.

AN interesting find of an unknown Ibsen ms., according to W. R. Prior in The Author, has recently been made, forming a half-completed epic poem written in 1864-5. The ms., which in many ways is "Brand" roughly outlined, was lost during Ibsen's stay in Rome in the sixties, and only found many years after, the owner presenting it to the Royal Library, Copenhagen. As arranged with the family of Ibsen, a Danish author is superintending the publication of the fragment, which will appear in print during the year.

THE Société du Mercure de France will publish at once "Paul Verlaine: sa Vie, son Œuvre," by Edmond Lepelletier, who knew Verlaine intimately from his earliest years. The poet entrusted him with the task of writing his biography, and left him his papers. M. Lepelletier, according to the London Athenæum, "tells the truth as to Verlaine's adventures and misfortunes, which have been distorted by various writers." Unpublished sketches written in London, and a correspondence dealing with Verlaine's religious opinions, are given.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON Co., Philadelphia, announce a novel entitled "Dulcibel," by Henry Peterson, author of "Pemberton," with illustrations in color by Howard Pyle. The plot, half true and half fiction, takes place in the strange period of the Salem witch trials, when the best educated men of New England were carried away in their narrow bigotry by the charges of a few vindictive and mischief-making girls. They offer $250 in prizes to readers for a review that will voice the sentiment of the majority of the newspapers and magazines of the United States.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will bring out immediately "Ian of the Orcades," a novel by Wilfred J. Campbell, laid in ancient Scotland. They will publish early in the spring "The Higher Ministries of Recent English Poetry," by Frank W. Gunsaulus, a book which has grown out of Dr. Gunsaulus's lectures at Chautauqua; W. L. Watkinson's "The Supreme Conquest, and Other Sermons Preached in America," also, a work by Dr. Arthur J. Brown, entitled "The Foreign Missionary," which tells of the labors of nineteen thousand Protestant missionaries all over the world.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & Co. will publish about April 1 Dr. Harvey W. Wiley's timely book on "Foods and Their Adulterations." Dr. Wiley is chief chemist to the United States Department of Agriculture, at Washington, and his wide researches in the interests of purity in food commodities give anything he might write on the subject an authoritativeness that is unquestioned. The fact that the new national food and drugs law have become effective and that public interest in the matter has been thoroughly aroused will no doubt result in quite a demand for the volume. The book will be adequately illustrated from original photographs and drawings.

THE SAALFIELD PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish shortly "The Trail of the Seneca," a new book for boys, by James A. Braden, author of "Connecticut Boys in the Western Reserve," and "Far Past the Frontier." The new book continues the story of John Jerome and Return Kingdom, the two boys who ventured into the unbroken forests to make their fortunes as Indian traders and to establish their homes. They built their cabins on the banks of the Cuyahoga, and it is in this river's beautiful and historic valley that the scene of the story is laid. A tale of frontier life when danger was the constant guest at every settler's fireside, there is sufficient action, deeds of daring and adventure to win for "The Trail of the Seneca" even greater popularity than Mr. Braden's first Indian stories.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish at once "The Life of Walter Pater," by Thomas Wright, a two-volume work, which will contain many personal anecdotes heretofore not known to the public. They will publish in April "A Journey in the Back Country," by Frederick Law Olmsted, in two volumes; the second volume of Albert Bielschowsky's three-volume work, "The Life of Goethe," translated by William A. Cooper, this volume covering the period from 1788 to 1815; also, "The Shadow of a Great Rock," a western love story by William R. Lighton. They announce for May publication "Our Struggle for the Fourteenth Colony: Canada and the American Revolution," by Justin H. Smith, a book by the Professor of Modern History at Dartmouth, which gives the story of our efforts from 1774 to 1783 to incorporate Canada in the American Union.

Irish, who has recently retired from the firm of Dana Estes & Co., at Clark's, by a few of his Boston friends in all branches of the trade on the eve of his departure for a much-needed vacation. Solomon's book, "The Old Engravers of England in Their Relation to Contemporary Life and Art," which covers the English school of engraving from its commencement in the sixteenth century to its climax at the end of the eighteenth; a translation by Albert Keyzer of M. Goron's experiences as chief of the Paris Detective Police among the criminals of Paris, entitled "The Truth About the Case;" and four novels—Jack London's "A Daughter of the Snows," an inexpensive edition of an Alaska story first published four years ago; "The Lifting of a Finger," by Ina Breevoort Roberts, also a new edition; "Running Horse Inn," by Alfred Tresidder Sheppard, the scene of which is laid in England at the close of the Napoleonic wars when riots threatened the government; and Mrs. Stella M. Düring's "Disinherited," a novel of present-day England dealing with the marriage of an aged baronet, the birth of his child, and the consequent disinheritance of his former nearest of kin.

DODGE PUBLISHING Co. announce "The Golden Treasury of Irish Songs and Lyrics," edited by Charles Welsh, well known to the booktrade. This anthology presents the best examples of Irish songs and lyrics from the earliest Bardic literature, the folk songs, street ballads and patriotic poetry; the pathetic romantic and sentimental poetry; the humorous and convivial verse with which the Irish literature abounds, and the refined, tender and mystical spirit which breathes in the poetry of the Irish renaissance of to-day. In compiling the collection the editor has had the advantage of the critical judgment of some of the foremost Irish scholars and poets, among whom may be mentioned Dr. Douglas Hyde, Stephen Lucine Gwynn, Lady Gregory, D. J. O'Donoghue, as well as the best English scholars on this side of the Atlantic, including Professor F. N. Robinson, who occupies the Celtic chair at Harvard University; Dr. Maurice F. Egan, of the Catholic University, in Washington; S. R. Richardson. They also announce "Knocks from the Little Hammer of Diogenes Knockersmith," a collection of cynical and wise sayings; also, "Poems We Love," a collection of old favorite poems from well-known writers, edited by Leigh Mitchell Hodges.

Masters and others,) exciting stories of courage displayed in the struggle to obtain the "diamond key," a badge of honor, which is hardly fiction, but rather more a history of American steam railway building and management; "Heart Melodies," a collection of noble and gracefully expressed thoughts by great writers, edited by Mary Allette Ayer, an appropriate Easter gift; "Fifty Flower Friends with Familiar Faces," a field book for boys and girls, by Edith Dunham, with twelve full-page colored plates, decorations and fifty text illustrations from nature by W. I. Beecroft; "Dave Porter's Return to School," by Edward Stratemeyer, the third of the Dave Porter Series, illustrated by F. Gilbert Edge, in which Dave's return to the boarding-school at "Oak Hall" is marked by interesting experiences; "Raymond Benson at Krampton," by Clarence B. Burleigh, the second volume of the Raymond Benson Series, illustrated by L. J. Bridgman, a story of life at a typical country academy; also, "Priscilla of the Doll Shop," by Nina Rhoades, illustrated by Bertha G. Davidson, which is said to equal in interest any book yet written by this favorite writer.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week a new edition of Le Blanc's "Elements of Electro-Chemistry," translated by W. R. Whitney. Not only is this a new translation from the third German edition, but extensive additions have been made and the whole text has been revised and brought up to date by Dr. J. W. Brown, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The chapters that have been added make the English text more than twice as long as that of the original German. They will publish about April 1 a book entitled "Individual Training in Our Colleges," by Clarence F. Birdseye, a well-known legal author and Amherst graduate of 1874. More than five years ago Mr. Birdseye began a thorough investigation of the students' problems in our colleges from the standpoint of the student himself, rather than from that of the college authorities or alumni. The author, while he believes thoroughly in the college course, does not believe that college students as individuals are getting the mental and moral training that they should from the splendidly endowed institutions of to-day. His work, however, is constructive even more than it is critical, for he points out in the most practical way a remedy for the false conditions, which is likely to commend itself to every interested person. Among the subjects discussed with particular fullness and candor are the problems of college athletics and of the college fraternities.

PICK-UPS.

RECENTLY there was a request at a bookstore for a book on "The Children of Queen Elizabeth," and at once every one in that bookstore fell over himself and industriously hunted through all the available bibliographic helps after that mythical work on the children of the "Virgin Queen."

PROFESSOR PERCIVAL LOWELL is the latest victim of the literal-minded New England printer whose dislike of abbreviations once led him to announce the celebration in a Catholic church, of "High Massachusetts." Professor Lowell's recent book on "Mars and Its Canals" appears in a Boston newspaper as "Massachusetts and Its Canals." Coming at a time when Bostonians are discussing the proposed canal across Cape Cod, the announcement doubtless seems wholly appropriate.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY recently received a manuscript evidently from some author who nurses a grievance against the lack of appreciation editors show in regard to the work of unknown writers. The manuscript was submitted by "Viola Cloud"—no one knows whether the name is a pseudonym or the real name—who lives in Alabama. Miss Cloud had made a copy of "Jane Eyre," and changing only the names of characters and places sent it in under the title of "Willie May," hoping, no doubt, to see the editor nod. The hoax was discovered by one of the readers and the manuscript returned as decidedly "unavailable."

SHORTHAND.—Shorthand, or stenography, is that tremendous device of enlightenment by means of which a man is enabled to put his thoughts on paper faster than he can think them. It is of the fruitage of hurry, the genius which makes us great and famous. Shorthand has dislodged and banished the obscurity which formerly lurked in handwriting, and imported, instead, the obscurity of diction, which is one of the wonders of the age. The merest business man, of the present day, can dictate a letter which would be thought, fifty years ago, to have been stolen from Immanuel Kant or Bishop Butler, so heavily veiled is its meaning. And in literature, it is a great thing not to have to keep an idea in your mind during all the tedious interval you would occupy in writing it out in longhand. Inspiration is no better for cooling than gravy. Besides, how many authors are there who, if they had to write in their old, laborious way, could get out books often enough to keep themselves from being forgotten, as forgetting is now done? Most likely, but for stenography, we should have no literati beyond those three or four million Parnassides whose pens make them rich enough to bill the country and in that way stave off the deadly blight of oblivion.—Life.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," book-sellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Published April 17

Order Early

"A nicer, jollier girl never danced through the pages of fiction."

—The Interior.

Mrs. Wiggin's new story will be one of the most welcome books of the year. Rebecca is a favorite in the hearts of thousands. She has become almost a national character, as she certainly embodies a national type. Native wit and wholesome charm of untrammelled American girlhood brighten every page. Rebecca's old friends figure largely in these new episodes of her life in Riverboro—Abijah, Mrs. Cobb, Emma Jane, and the others. It is a story glowing with humor, full of human kindness and winning realism.

EVERY MAN A KING

Or, MIGHT IN MIND MASTERY

By ORISON SWETT MARDEN

12mo, cloth, $1.00 net. Postage 10 cents.

"The Highest Compliment Possible"

"I have read every word of it and am now on the second reading. It has done me good, as all Dr. Marden's fine books have, as it is uplifting, optimistic, sane and practical. You will be interested to know, I am sure, that I have every work Dr. Marden has ever given to the public, and I very much prize them and urge my boys to read them, as I have done. This is the highest compliment possible from me regarding the books' great value, as my boys and their highest development are, naturally, very close to my heart."

—From the Commandant of a Military Academy.

"Has Changed Me," says a Millionaire

"Under the doctor's advice I have spent the past three days at home, and have put in the time every day reading 'Every Man a King.' It has done me a great deal of good, and has changed me so that I am anxious to give a good word to everybody in the future."—From the President of a Great Shoe House.

"Strikes the Keynote of Life"

"For years I have been an admirer of Dr. O. S. Marden and have read about all that he has written. His latest book strikes the keynote of life. It ought to be put in the hands of every young man."—From a Reader.

"From Despair to Delight"

"It is a superb work and is sure to transport many a man from despair to delight. I believe it will have upon my life a more profound effect than any book I have ever possessed."—From a Reader.

"A Real Nugget of Gold"

"I am delighted with the book. I shall always treasure it as one of my most precious literary possessions, a real nugget of gold that has given me renewed inspiration and encouragement and a truer conception of the great possibilities of the mind over matter."—From the Principal of a Commercial College.

"A Philosophy of Optimism"

"Strong, wise, sound, pleasant, helpful, well written—these are only a few of the complimentary adjectives which can honestly be applied to this book. The title may be a good one from many points of view, but it hardly denotes the whole scope of the book, which is really a delightful expression of modern practical philosophy. That it is a philosophy of optimism it is needless to say."

—ALICE BROWN, in Ohio State Journal

"His Attention was Fixed"

"We know a boy of seventeen who found this book in his room on his arrival after a hard day's work. He resolved to go to bed early, but opened the book first. His attention was fixed from the first page, and presently he was surprised to find that he had lost several hours' sleep."—Richmond County Advance.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & CO., NEW YORK

AN IMMEDIATE SUCCESS

"The book is full of excitement and breathless interest from cover to cover."

—N. Y. Herald.

"The story is full of snap, full of real life and adventure—a real heart-stirring romance."—New Haven Journal.

LANGFORD

WHEN Paul Langford started in to put an end to cattle-rustling in his part of South Dakota, he and the county attorney had to make the fight alone—the thieves owned nearly everyone else. But there was strength and determination back of it, and there was an abiding faith in the power of the Three Bars ranch to make things happen. Two high spirited girls play a brave part in this exciting tale of a fighter of the right sort, and make it a delightful love story as well.

THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Brass Bowl," a new detective story by Louis Joseph Vance, of which the heroine belongs to the New York "400."

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press the third edition of Dr. Orison Swett Marden's stimulating book, "Every Man a King, or, Might in Mind Mastery."

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish at once "The Isle of Dreams," a delightful romance of charming lovers and humorous children, by Myra Kelly, who has endeared herself to a large public by her charming descriptions of real life,

THE CENTURY COMPANY have just ready "Partners of Providence," by Charles D. Stewart, author of "The Fugitive Blacksmith," a book full of rich and racy humor, telling of the happy-go-lucky life on the Mississippi and Missouri rivers fifty years ago, with upwards of 100 illustrations by C. J. Taylor. Agnes Repplier called "The Fugitive Blacksmith" "a masterpiece," and says that Mr. Stewart's new book is "away and away ahead of it."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," by Eliza Calvert Hall, "a masterpiece of rural character delineation, native humor and homespun philosophy," with illustrations by Beulah Strong; "Ackroyd of the Faculty," by Anna Chapin Ray, a story of life in one of the largest universities, embodying a study of social maladjustment, with a hero who is a "misfit," also, "Under the Harrow," by Ellis Meredith, which deals with a talented girl's chances of success in the business world of New York City.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY are about to publish "Darefoot," by Herbert Edward Bogue, which is said to combine a history of the achievements of a Vermont regiment during the war between the States, and a truthful description of one of those camping parties in which Green Mountain folk delighted long before the days when Murray led the way to the wilderness in the neighboring State. They will also publish shortly "Fires of Desire," by Laurence R. Mansfield, and "Christy of Rathglin," by James Riley, the author of the brilliant defense of the Catholic Irish-American soldiers against certain Orange assailants, desirous, as he expressed it, of "importing patriots to help us keep out Rome."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publish on April 6 "Indiscreet Letters from Peking," by B. L. Putnam Weale, the author of "The Re-shaping of the Far East," etc., the story of the siege of the legations in Peking. It is not a history, but the story of the dramatic scenes and events told by an eye-witness. Reading the book one sees the worn and harassed defenders of the legations in scene after scene of grim fighting, beating back the hordes of Chinese soldiers. The book in telling the story of 1900 is an explanation of much that is going to happen. They will bring out at the same time "The Whirlpool of Europe—Austro-Hungary and the Habsburgs," by Archibald R. and E. M. Colquhoun, a succinct and comprehensive account of the dual monarchy which is agitated by a number of racial and political problems that may at any time revolutionize the Continent and alter the course of modern history. The volume will have 100 reproductions of original drawings of characteristic types, street scenes, old cities, etc., and nearly forty original maps and diagrams. Three other books to be published with the above are "The Thinking Machine," a story of mystery, by Jacques Futrelle, and two novels—"The Penalty," by Harold Begbie, author of "The Story of Baden-Powell," etc., and "Davenant," by Albert Kinross, who makes his hero dream of America, whose ideal above all is America.

Askew, Alice and Claude. The Shulamite. Rev. ed.; with two pors. N. Y., Brentano's, 1907. 320 p. D. cl., $1.50

The Shulamite is a Boer woman of surpassing beauty, with passions wholly unmastered by civilization, who is put in contrast with an English spoiled darling of fortune devoted to frivolity and conventionality. Robert Waring, an Englishman, combining in his dual nature the characteristics of both women, is tossed by circumstances from the natural woman to the doll woman. He goes as overseer to the African farm and rescues the Shulamite from her old adoring but brutal husband by shooting him to save her life. The woman loves the Englishman and hates the rival he tells her stands between them. A complicated plot leaves him the victim of the Shulamite's African superstitions. Fine study of Boer conditions. The portraits of two actors in the play made from this story appear in the book.

A marriage entered into by two young English people seems to possess every element for future happiness. The couple have a sincere admiration for each other, have wealth, rank and most attractive personalities. But after a few years of wedded life the man discovers that the woman is not his affinity. There is no quarrel, but their interests are no longer mutual, and the husband easily falls a prey to the fascinations of a wild Australian cousin of his wife who comes to visit them. The cousin meets with a violent death and for twenty years afterward the husband lives alone with his broken heart. Then the desire comes to again see Isabel—the cousin. He visits spiritualists and mediums, makes a study of re-incarnation, some remarkable and dramatic events following. The author wrote "The garden of Asia," "The house of shadows," etc.

A novel by the author of "Let not man put asunder." Paula Trafford, the heroine, is the daughter of a man of many millions, the head of a great coal monopoly. She is about to marry the Duke of Wiltshire when accident makes known to her how the world condemns her father's methods of acquiring wealth. Accident also brings her into contact with Roger Winship, a young portrait painter, who is the son of a man whom Paula's father had ruthlessly pushed to the wall in business. Paula adores her father and determines to let the world see she believes in him. She asks the Duke to release her from her engagement, and her one thought from thenceforward is to help the Winship family and bring her father to a realization of the error of his business ways. He finally makes broad restitution.

The club finally has a really good influence. A young school teacher has most to do with the teaching of the necessity "to live and let live."

"Hypnotism is absolutely reprehensible, immoral . . . but sometimes may be applied in public courts . . . and in medicine. . . Spiritism is always dangerous, harmful, immoral . . . to be most severely prohibited without reserve, in all its grades . . . with the rare exception, perhaps, of the study of certain manifestations, either spontaneous or induced in certain cases only . . . by persons authorized . . . who do not themselves participate directly in the provocation of the spiritistic phenomena to be studied."—Conclusion. Author was chief physician to the Pope. Sir Oliver Lodge is one of the great scientists of the day and author of "Modern views on matter." He is a leader in the movement commonly termed the "new thought," which seeks to show complete harmony between science and religion. Throughout, his religious philosophy, keenly analytical though it is, is not destructive, but the reverse. It aims at doing away with a too literal interpretation of the Scriptures while at the same time retaining the vital truths that lie at the bottom of real religion.

Inasmuch as the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission shows that for the year ending June 30, 1904, there were in the United States 10,017 persons killed and 93,888 persons injured, the author of this book, a practical railroad man, thinks that for the sake both of the public and of railroad employees the causes of accidents should be investigated and remedies for prevention applied. Therefore, he illustrates certain kinds of accidents by specific cases of recent occurrence, all of which might have been avoided by proper care and thoughtfulness on the part of employees, as "accidents caused by carelessness, thoughtlessness and neglect of employees are the large majority of all that happen." In conclusion there are suggestions and appendix of operating rules.

This new biography of Julie de Lespinasse throws light upon the hitherto obscure history of her birth, early life and education. She was the illegitimate daughter of the Countess d'Albon, and was born at Lyons in 1732 and died in 1776. She grew up under her mother's protection and shared the educational advantages of her legitimate brother and sister. Many other details of her career and of her amours, illumined by fervent love letters, give to the work the fascination of a novel. Mrs. Humphry Ward, in her novel of "Lady Rose's daughter," made use of the more notable events in her life.

Chiefly a character study of three unusual English types. Nevill Tyson, after an adventurous life as soldier and reporter in many parts of the globe, finds himself, at thirty-five, the owner of a fine estate in suburban England. He marries a pretty girl half his age and settles down to the life of a country gentleman. Shortly his intimate friend, Captain Stanistreet, comes to pay him a long visit, and the three people by the eccentricities of their speech and acts so shock their neighbors that they are excluded from all society. An intense story follows, in which the innocent young wife is a pathetic figure. It closes with a dramatic episode in the Soudan. By the author of "The divine fire."

Thurston, Ernest Temple. Katherine: a

- novel. N. Y., Harper, 1907. c. 330 p. front. D. cl., \dagger $1.50.
- By the author of "Traffic." Katherine Crichton, young, handsome, full of fire and life, longing for the romance that she has never had, suddenly learns that as the insidious, physical result of an accident she has but two more years to live. Her husband is rich and a prominent member of Parliament. He worships her and does his utmost to make her happy, but without success. She determines that if her life is to be brief she will snatch from fate the happiness she has yearned for. Then comes a Captain Seyd, whom she imagines she loves, a tragedy being averted on the very brink of disaster. Her husband rises to unexpected heights of nobility and generosity, and the surgeons discover their diagnosis was a mistake and that Katherine has a long life before her and all ends well.

- A detective story. A New York young, rich man about town, a burglar of jewels who resembles him so as to throw even detectives off the track, a lawyer of good standing who gives points to thieves by way of excitement, a young girl of the 400 who purloins papers from the safe to help her father out of a lawsuit, midnight automobile rides and break-downs, rides on elevators in thirty-one story buildings in early morning hours, with shots between the cars ascending and descending—surely here is material! Jewels are stolen from a safe in Long Island. The circumstances lead to love at first-sight. The "brass bowl" is used to cover the impression of a woman's hand on a dusty table in bachelor apartments.

- By the author of "Three rolling stones in Japan." The hero, "Skipper," once a fisherman owning his own boat, is a caddie on the St. Andrew's golf links. He has a passion for travel and adventure which nothing can satisfy. He also has a love story, which does not come to a satisfactory ending. Much care is given to the delineation of his character; he is humorous and enthusiastic, somewhat given to whiskey drinking, but not without lovable and even heroic qualities.

- First published by J. F. Taylor & Co. in 1900. With wit and humor the story is told of a daring plot entered into by several English manufacturers to bribe the members of the cabinet of a South American republic to vote against a proposed treaty with Great Britain, which if passed will affect certain business interests. The most important thing is to get the bribe—$40,000 in gold—out of the country. This is attended with many odd adventures. The chief actor in the exciting scenes is the young secretary to the London Legation from South America. He is sent by his chief for an indefinite visit to a country house to watch the plotters. He not only succeeds in getting the whole story and the evidence, but also the money.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

EMILIO MARTINI, Prefect of the Biblioteca Nazionale at Naples, and Domenico Bassi, librarian of the Brera, at Milan, after twelve years' labor have completed the catalogue of the Greek Manuscripts in the Bibliotheca Ambrosiana. Hitherto it has been impossible for scholars to obtain information of this splendid collection, comprising about eleven hundred Greek manuscripts, unless they went to Milan and laboriously worked their way through the manuscript catalogue of the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries—an undertaking practically denied to those whose time was limited or who lived at a distance.

THE SOCIETY OF ICONOPHILES, New York City, has published a very welcome book in "An Index to the Illustrations in the Manuals of the Corporation of the City of New York, 1841-1870," commonly known as "Valentine's Manuals." The work contains a list of the plates and maps in the Manuals—the volumes being arranged chronologically; a list of the maps and plans of the city of New York and vicinity, arranged chronologically from 1643 to 1870, with a list of the miscellaneous maps appended; a list of the facsimiles—letters, signatures, documents, broadsides and certificates; also, a general index, in one alphabet, to all the illustrations. The lists are prefixed by an introduction by William Loring Andrews, giving a sketch of David Thomas Valentine, to whom the antiquarian owes a debt which will be estimated at its true worth only after the face of old New York has been completely changed. A photograph of Valentine, etched by C. W. Jarvis, forms the frontispiece. (18+107 p. 12", cl. 250 copies.)

THE LIBRAIRIE DAMASCENE MORGAND, (Ed. Rahir, successor,) Paris, has just brought out "La Bibliothèque de l'amateur. Guide sommaire à travers les livres anciens les plus estimés et les principaux ouvrages modernes," by

Edouard Rahir, the well-known antiquary and proprietor of one of the famous bookshops of the world. The work is based on the catalogues of Rahir's book shop, which in its day has owned nearly every known famous book. For this reason M. Rahir may safely claim that his catalogue is a guide to the most valuable specimens of the printer's art in all ages and countries. The catalogue is arranged by subjects, (1) Books notable for their literary value, for example, (a) literary works, (belles lettres;) (b) theology, law, science, art, geography and history; (2) Illustrated Works; (3) Rare or valuable specimens of printing, and alphabetically by author or title. M. Rahir supplies an introduction of special interest to the young collector as well as to the bookseller. (456 p. 8°, pap., 10 fr.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 30, 1907.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

RAISING THE PRICE OF FICTION.

WHILE the press in this country and in England has been discussing the possibility of putting out new fiction at lower prices than now prevail, the retail book trade in Chicago has joined in a movement to put the price of $1.50 fiction from 98 cents or $1.08 up to $1.18. This is noteworthy because, owing to certain legal restrictions as to trade regulation, the rules of the American Publishers' Association were practically inoperative in Chicago. What is still more worthy of note is that the Chicago booksellers, according to all reports, have not the least difficulty in getting the increased price, and sell quite as many, if not more, novels at $1.18 as they did at 98 cents and $1.08.

The example of the Chicago trade is stimulating the retail booksellers in Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Providence and several other cities to institute a similar movement looking to the advancing of the price of fiction to $1.10 or $1.15 and possibly to $1.18 and $1.20—not at once, but by easy stages. Some booksellers in certain of these cities have never retailed fiction below $1.18 since the reform movement was inaugurated, and no one of them has ever wavered in his stand, even in face of the spasmodic competition of the department stores.

The ability to raise prices will, of course, depend upon local conditions and the quality of the trade to which the bookseller caters. In many localities bookbuyers rarely question prices when making purchases, insisting simply upon prompt and intelligent service. In other localities buyers do question prices, often indeed very closely, and quibble even at the lowest figures quoted, no matter how prompt or intelligent the service may be. In the one case the bookseller probably will be obliged to extend more or less credit, in the other case his credit accounts probably will be few and the transactions chiefly cash. If his clients demand long-time credit, as most gilt-edged custom does, it is obvious that retailing $1.50 fiction at $1.08 is not profitable; indeed, it may be a losing business, unless the deficit can conscientiously be charged to the advertising account. On the other hand, if the transactions are chiefly in cash and the turnover frequent enough there need be less anxiety as to losses, provided stock has been laid in carefully and strictly to meet the probable needs of the bookseller's trade. But, in neither case, is the selling of fiction at the minimum price much of a "business proposition;" and in view of the increasing cost of manufacture and of doing business, the bookseller seems to be justified in resorting to legitimate means of making ends overlap rather than of taking the risk of having them meet only as near as possible.

It has been our own feeling that the price of fiction should go down nearer to a dollar than further up, and particularly that the publisher's advertised price should be the actual retailing price as with present net books; but so far as fixing the prices of books is concerned, the publisher probably has reached the limit so far as the downward trend is concerned, he himself being confronted on all sides with the upward trend in everything that enters into the manufacture and distribution of books. Until a reaction downward sets in, therefore, the bookseller, as every other retailer is obliged to do, must look to the consumer to help him bear the burden of prosperity.

IOWA DISCOURAGES FOREIGN TRADE.

IOWA is making an effort to protect its merchants by means of a bill, known as the Bruce Bill, and numbered Senate 201, which specifically prohibits the taking of orders or the soliciting of orders for any kind of merchandise whatever outside of incorporated towns until the salesman or solicitor has secured a license from the county in which such soliciting is to be done. The fee for such license is to be one hundred dollars and the license is not transferable.

Quite apart from other considerations, which chiefly concern the citizens of the State of Iowa, the enactment of such a law would render it impracticable for most publishers to send to Iowa representatives carrying specimens of their current and forthcoming publications to present to the attention of the booksellers throughout the State.

Iowa is, of course, to be classed with the most intelligent of the communities in the country, and its towns are important, in proportion to their population, among the towns that purchase higher class literature, and it is to be assumed that there is an advantage to the State, as well as to the authors and publishers, in having such literature kept on the counters of the book shops and made available for the inspection of libraries and of other purchasers.

It is just likely that the Bruce Bill is not intended to prevent this kind of trade, but as the provisions are now worded, such trade would be prevented, and the publishers would have to instruct their travellers to omit from their trips the State of Iowa. For that reason it is to be hoped that the bill may not receive the signature of the Governor, and propaganda towards that end should be made.

COMBINATIONS TO MAINTAIN PRICES NOT ILLEGAL IN GERMANY.

THE Prussian Supreme Court of Judicature recently sustained the decision of the Berlin County Court against A. Jandorf & Co., proprietors of a well-known department store in Berlin in a suit brought by Jandorf against the Association of Manufacturers of Proprietary Articles, of the same city, to restrain the defendants from blacklisting the plaintiffs for underselling certain of their articles. The Association of Manufacturers of Proprietary Articles numbers sixty members, all of them manufacturers of cosmetics, tooth pastes, toilet articles, etc., who combined to protect their goods by fixing on each article a minimum price below which such article could not be sold. According to their rules the members of the Association agreed to cut off the supplies of any dealer who undersold the members of even one of the members of the Association. The goods were sold to the wholesale dealers under a special agreement to maintain prices, and the wholesale dealers in turn sold the goods to the retailers, under a similar agreement.

The Jandorf store, two years ago, offered certain widely-advertised toilet articles manufactured by two members of the Association, ordinarily sold for fifty pfennigs, at forty-five pfennigs, and when warned to desist declared itself ready to do so if other undersellers were obliged to conform. When the manufacturers had succeeded in bringing the other undersellers to terms and notified Jandorf of the fact that firm refused to cease underselling the articles in question. Thereupon the Association, in April, 1905, notified their jobbers to warn their constituents against dealing with the Jandorf concern, which promptly brought suit. In the lower court the defendants were sustained on the ground that as each individual is legally justified in fixing a price upon his manufactures and to protect that price, so a number of individuals may legally co-operate and exclude an offender against their rules even if he undersells only one article of a single member of such a combination. The court considered that such combinations are the result of the economic struggle in which the individual manufacturer is threatened with injury if not destruction by the ever-increasing mammoth mercantile establishments, and, in self-defense, is obliged to combine with others forced into a similar predicament. The higher court concurred in this view and the decision was sustained.

THE CONGREGATIONAL S. S. AND PUB. CO. ROBBED.

It is charged that systematic thefts covering a period of several years have depleted the treasury of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing Company at Boston to the extent of $12,000. There will be a thorough overhauling of the affairs of the corporation, and an upheaval of the directorate is expected at the annual meeting on April 1, when a committee consisting of five clergymen will take part in the choice of a board of directors.

As much as 400,000 pounds of printing paper costing $3\frac{3}{4}$ cents a pound has been stolen, it is alleged. Persons implicated are said to be known, and \$2500 has been recovered. A civil suit is in process, but no criminal action has been taken.

THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY AC- CUSED OF BEING A "TRUST."

THE New York World, on March 25, printed a sensational attack on the American Bible Society under the "scare" head of "Trust Controls Price of Bibles Like Oil or Sugar." Considering that any one in this country with ready money or credit enough may print Bibles to his heart's content, and that in England it requires only a license from the Crown to print an edition of the Bible, and that, as a matter of fact, there are a dozen firms or more in this country and in England that turn out thousands of Bibles and Testaments every year for Protestants and Catholics, and in almost every language, at from less than ten cents apiece upward, the charge against the American Bible Society that it is a "trust" and pursues methods "no different from those of the Standard Oil Company" certainly has no force, and needs reconstruction.

The administration of the American Bible Society and its methods of work have been the subject of severe criticism by Dr. Edmund F. Merriam, editor of The Watchman, who claims that "every dollar's worth of free Bibles distributed by the American Bible Society cost nearly $4 to circulate;" that Testaments which once could be had from Canada, laid down in Boston at a little less than three cents, and which were sold at that price, can no longer be had, and that a similar book put out by the American Bible Society costs five cents; that the American Bible Society has an agreement with the British and Foreign Bible Society that they will not invade each other's field; that the Canadian Bible Society will not sell Bibles for gratuitous distribution in the United States, and that the American Bible Society is guilty of much other un-Christian and unbusinesslike practices. Much of these "revelations" is ancient history, the only new thing that we have been able to discover is that it is actually impossible to obtain in this country the penny Testament formerly supplied by the British and Foreign Bible Society.

Referring to the charge that the British and Foreign Bible Society has a working arrangement with the American Bible Society to control the prices of Bibles here officers of the English society are reported to have said: "We don't sell in the United States because we don't work there. We know of no trust. In every country to which we send Bibles we lose money. The only arrangement we have with the American Society is that we supply them at cost price. We leave the distribution to them. The statement that we have anything to do with a trust, if there be such a thing, is not true."

The American Bible Society might invite an investigation and bring its traducers to book.

ROTHSCHILD'S BOOK ON EXTINCT BIRDS.

THE HON. LIONEL WALTER ROTHSCCHILD, according to a special cable despatch to the New York Sun, has been for a long time devoting part of his share of the Rothschild family's wealth to the production of one of the costliest books on record. The work will shortly be issued by Hutchinson & Co., of London.

Its subject is extinct birds. It aims to give accounts of all birds that have become extinct in historical times. The author, whose private natural history museum at Tring Park, Hertfordshire, is world famed, has spent about $100,000 on the books, while the Hutchinsons have expended more than $5000 for engraving blocks alone.

They have also been experimenting for years to obtain an imperishable paper, Mr. Rothschild wishing the work to endure for all time, because he thinks it improbable that the subject will ever be rehandled. It is stated that the Hutchinsons have now obtained for the plates paper so sure that it will take color printing without any coating and give perfect results. It costs about 36 cents a pound.

Only 300 copies of the English edition of the work will be printed. It will be sold for $125 a copy. Foreign editions will follow.

PLAYRIGHT AND COPYRIGHT.

MACMILLAN & Co., a short time ago, brought out a work entitled "Playright and Copyright in all Countries, Showing How to Protect a Play or a Book Throughout the World," by William Morris Colles and Harold Hardy. The book is intended to be a practical guide for authors, publishers and theatrical managers, and fills a decided want in providing a concise statement in ordinary language, avoiding, as far as possible, technical phrases, as to what must be done by an author before producing a play or a book in order to secure his rights not only in the country where his work is first published, but also in other countries where his work may subsequently find a market. While the work is written from an Englishman's standpoint, chiefly for English writers, the work will also be found extremely useful by citizens of countries outside the Copyright Union, especially by Americans. In an appendix are given the texts of the English Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833; the Copyright Act, 1842; the International Copyright Act, 1886; the Berne Convention, 1886; the Order in Council, November 28, 1887; the Additional Act of Paris, 1896; the Interpretative Declaration of Paris, 1896; the Order in Council, March 7, 1898; the U. S. A. Revised Statutes; the Act of March 3, 1905; Form of Application for Copyright Registration (U. S. A.); Information Circular, No. 33, (U. S. A.); Treaty between the United States and Japan; English Copyright Form of Registration, and the Australian Copyright Act, 1905.

THE HOLIDAY PUBLISHING COMPANY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Referring to announcement and advertisements in recent issues of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY regarding the change of name of the Holiday Publishing Company of Buffalo to the Berger Publishing Company, will you be kind enough to state in your journal that the Holiday Publishing Company, publishers of the Children's Magazine, are the owners of the corporate title of The Holiday Publishing Company.

The Holiday Publishing Company of New York still continues business under that name, publishing the best dollar magazine ever made for young children. The Buffalo company's inadvertent use of the name has caused considerable embarrassment to its rightful owners, especially as some of the announcements state "formerly Holiday Publishing Company" without further explanation.

Your publication of this explanation will be appreciated by

MORE LIGHT ON "HOW 'UNCLE TOM'S CABIN' WAS PUBLISHED."

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Since in your issue of March 23 you refer to my father's (the late Henry Vizetelly) connection with the publishing of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in England, perhaps in fairness to his memory you will permit me to ask you to print a statement which he made of his connection with the work over his own signature several years before his death. As you will see, the man whom you quote as an authority was a very young man, much too young to have any personal knowledge of the matters about which he has written, and therefore all he has written should be taken cum grano salis.

My father wrote: "It must have been soon after this affair that I brought out, in conjunction with Salisbury the printer, who used to machine 'Readable Books' for me, and Clarke, who bound the volumes, the first edition published in England of Mrs. Beecher Stowe's world-famous romance, 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' A year or two ago I found it necessary to tell the history of this reprint in a letter to the Literary World, the principal passages of which may be here quoted:

"I fail to see that any particular honor or merit is due to the person who first introduced 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' to the English public; still it may be as well to correct the misstatements contained in the letter you have published, signed Charles M. Clarke, who, if born at the time the incidents occurred, of which he speaks so positively from his own personal knowledge, could only have been a baby in long clothes, or, at most, a little boy in knickerbockers.

"The true circumstances connected with the issue of the English reprint of the book are these: In the first place no advance copy of the work was submitted to any London publisher, but Mr. Bogue received an ordinary copy of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' from a young man in Putnam's New York house, accompanied by a letter stating that the book was selling rapidly in the States, and suggesting that Mr. Bogue should reprint it, and send him a trifle for his pains. Mr. Bogue, however, not caring to embark in cheap reprints of American authors, offered me the work for my series of 'Readable Books.'

"The American edition of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' being in two stout volumes, I hesitated to run the risk of issuing the work at a shilling, and while I was considering what to do with it I received a visit from Messrs. Salisbury and Clarke, who, being well aware of the great success of the 'Readable Books' series, were constantly bothering me to suggest some further literary venture which would provide work for their establishments and might be undertaken in partnership. To get rid of their importunities, I offered them to join with me in reprinting 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and it was agreed to produce an edition of the book in shares, each of us being responsible for a third of the cost.

"Mrs. Stowe's second title, 'Life Among the Lowly,' was changed by me to 'Negro Life in the Slave States of America,' and a writer, then little known, but who is now widely appreciated, both as journalist and essayist, wrote a preface to the work for the modest sum of two guineas. The book was printed crown 8vo size, and the price was half-a-crown.

"Although well advertised the volume—of which 2500 copies had been printed—proved a failure; but a rather singular circumstance contributed to its eventual [sic] success. In the 'Readable Books' series I had reprinted Curtis's 'Nile Notes,' much to the annoyance of Mr. Richard Bentley, who had a half-guinea edition of the work. 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' being advertised with both my own and Clarke's imprint, Mr. Bentley, by way of retaliation against me, I imagine, announced a shilling edition of the book. With the view of checkmating him I had a cover printed with 'Price one shilling' on it and got Clarke to do a copy of our edition in paper boards, trimming it as near to a foolscap 8vo as could be managed. I then sent the volume to Mr. Bentley, with my compliments, and a notification that the accompanying shilling edition of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' was on the eve of publication. This induced Mr. Bentley to hold his hand, and as there was scarcely any sale of the book at half-a-crown in cloth, it was determined to work off the remaining sheets in paper boards at a shilling.

"Shortly after this had been decided I went abroad with Mr. Birket Foster and was absent for two or three months. On my return I found that 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' had been and still was the book which everybody was reading and talking about. After a reasonable delay I applied to Clarke for an account of the sales, when he referred me to Salisbury and Mr. S. O. Beeton, who, in the interim had joined Clarke and Salisbury in partnership. These gentlemen laughed at the idea of my asking for an account, told me that during my absence abroad they had paid my clerk for the work I had done in connection with the volume, and had also repaid to him the five pounds which had been forwarded to Putnam's young man, and that they declined to recognize me any further in the matter.

"I made short work of this impudent repudiation, told them I would give them a few hours to decide what they would do, but that if I did not receive a satisfactory proposal by noon, next day, I would at once file a bill in Chancery for an account. At 11 o'clock the following morning Mr. S. O. Beeton called upon me and offered me first £200 and then £300, provided I would waive an account. I replied that the extremest sum I had ever hoped to make out of my share of the 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' reprint was £500, and that after the dishonorable way in which I had been treated I was determined not to accept a penny less. Before the day expired I received the acceptances of Clarke, Salisbury and Beeton for the sum in question, and my connection with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' thereupon ceased."

Very truly yours,

FRANK H. VIZETELLY.

THE NEW THIRD ASSISTANT POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

A. L. LAWSHE, of Indiana, on March 22, succeeded Edwin C. Madden as Third Assistant Postmaster-General. Mr. Lawshe has occupied a number of Government positions. He was appointed deputy auditor of the Post Office Department in 1897. Later he was made auditor in Cuba during the occupation of that island by American troops immediately following the Spanish war. He then became Government auditor in the Philippines.

Mr. Madden before retiring is reported to have given out a statement in which he said:

"I wish the commercial bodies and citizens who have supported and commended my work to understand that I am not leaving the task unfinished for any reason over which I myself had control, and that so far as they gave me their encouragement and support it is appreciated and it was helpful in a most discouraging task.

"My appointment in 1899 was secured through the recommendation of the railroad labor organizations, I myself being a member of one of them. I have had their support all along and in the serious conflicts which have taken place. But for their confidence and support I might long ago have been deposed, the interests affected adversely were so powerful. The accomplishments speak for themselves. Whatever the benefit to the public may be, some measure of appreciation is due the railroad men."

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE death of the eminent Orientalist and palæographer, Monsignor Antonio Ceriani, Prefect of the Biblioteca Ambrosiana, at the age of seventy-nine is announced from Milan. He was the son of a peasant, and his learning was mainly self-acquired, the only places of education he attended being the priests' seminaries. He had a profound knowledge of Syrian, Greek and Roman palæography, and was a contributor to the publications of the Palæographical Society. He became custodian of the library in 1854. His most important work was "Monumenta Sacra et Profana ex Codicibus præsertim Bibliothecæ Ambrosinæ," which he edited in nine volumes.

FRIEDRICH WILHELM BLASS, the foremost Greek scholar of our day, died suddenly at Halle, March 5, aged sixty-four, having been born at Osnabrück, January 22, 1843. He made his fame at once, for his first work, on Greek and especially on Attic eloquence (1865) took the learned world by storm. He was then called to revise edition after edition of the texts of the Attic orators, and from Kiel, where he held his first chair, he was promoted to Halle. Finding that the main body of the students there were theological, he threw himself into the study of the Greek Testament, and produced a grammar of that dialect (1896), as well as a critical edition of St. Luke's two works which made an epoch in their way. He was associated, from 1890, with papyrus discoveries from Greek Egypt and was able to apply his matchless skill and learning to the deciphering and the identifying of these widely-scattered fragments.

CONSTANTINE PETROVITCH POBIEDONOSTSEFF, who, as Procurator-General of the Holy Synod, was one of the most feared and unpopular men of Russia, died in St. Petersburg, March 23. He was born in Moscow in 1827, and was graduated in 1846 from the Imperial School of Jurisprudence at Moscow, where his father was an instructor. From 1859 to 1865 he held the chair of civil law in the University of Moscow, and in 1866 was appointed instructor in jurisprudence to the hereditary Grand Duke Nicholas. He afterwards exercised the function of tutor to Nicholas's younger brother, Alexander, and to various other grand dukes. In 1881 he was called to the post of Chief Procurator of the Holy Synod of Russia, a position he held until 1905, when he retired to private life. Pobiedonostseff was the author of several published works. Among them were "A Cursus of Civil Law," (three volumes,) "A Manual of Civil Law," "Historical Essays," "Outlines of History of the Orthodox Church," "Biographical Essays," "Pedagogical Essays," "Essays on the Feast Days of the Russian Church," and his translation into Russian of Thomas à Kempis's "The Imitation of Christ," of Le Play's "The Constitution of Humanity" and of St. Augustine's "Confessions." To English readers, however, his best known work is his "Moscovsky Sbornik," issued in 1898, and translated into German, French and English under the title of "Reflections of a Russian Statesman."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ONE item in the inventory of the estate of Professor George A. Wentworth, the author of the famous series of arithmetics, appraised at $502,372, is "copyrights $100,000."

DR. HENRY VAN DYKE, of Princeton, has withdrawn his resignation, declaring that, "owing to the pressure brought to bear upon him, he cannot allow personal preference to stand in the way of fulfilling the desires of the friends who appreciate his poor efforts."

WALTER SICHEL is engaged upon a biographical and critical study of Richard Brinsley Sheridan. The Sheridan family have placed a large amount of partially unexplored material at Mr. Sichel's disposal. Important facilities and documents have also been promised in other quarters. The book, upon which

Mr. Sichel has already been engaged for some time, should thus prove of definite value. It is to be published by Constable & Co., of London.

IN a letter written by Marie Corelli August 4, 1892, to Stephen Massett, to be sold in the Crimmins collection of the Anderson Auction Company on April 8, the author says: "I am not the daughter of Charles Mackay and never was, but simply his adopted daughter, adopted under peculiar and extremely painful circumstances. . . . I am of Italian extraction . . . no relation whatever to the Mackay family." Indignantly disclaiming being married she continues, "I have made already . . . an ample fortune . . . what do I want with a husband?"

The document contains all the signatures of the various surveyors appointed by the two States, with the original marks and seals attached to the signatures.

THE LOUIS M. DILLMAN COLLECTION sold at Anderson's on the 21st inst., realized a total of $16,500. It comprised a remarkable collection of British and American authors of the early part of the nineteenth century and other rarities of later dates. The top price of the sale was $900, paid for a first edition of John Keats's "Poem," with Keats's autograph, "To my friends, the Miss Reynoldses [sic] J. K.," on the title-page. A first edition of "Pauline," Robert Browning's first book, was sold for $810. A copy of the first collected edition of John Milton's "Poems," 12mo, London, 1645, and the first book bearing Milton's name, was bought by Walter Hill, of Chicago, for $490. The rare first edition of Shelley's "Queen Mab," containing his name as the printer on the title-page, was sold for $650. A first edition of Keats's "Endymion" went for $475. The first edition of Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare," went for $800. "Hours of Idleness," by Lord Byron, first edition, on large paper, sold for $160. A tall, uncut copy of the first edition of Coleridge's "Poems on Various Subjects" fetched $100. A first edition of Edward Fitzgerald's "Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám" sold for $335. Keats's "Lamia," first edition, went for $200. A first edition of Charles Lamb's "Mrs. Leicester's School" fetched $125, and Charles Lloyd's "Poems on the Death of Priscilla Farmer" sold for $180.

THE VAN ANTWERP COLLECTION NETS $81,755.—At the sale of the W. C. Van Antwerp collection at Sotheby's on March 22, 23, an original Kilmarnock edition of Burns's poems sold for $3500. A copy of the exceedingly rare original Caxton Cicero "On Old Age" fell to Quaritch at $3000, some $1250 more than was given for a copy in the Earl of Jersey sale twenty-three years ago. It is interesting to recall that the Jersey copy was sold in 1766 for two guineas. Next in importance was William Hubbard's "Narrative of Troubles with Indians in New England," a fine and perfect copy, which had been the property of the family of Nathaniel Hawthorne more than 225 years, thus making it doubly interesting from an American point of view. This was sold to Quaritch for $2250. A notable feature of the sale was the remarkable prices obtained for Goldsmith items. A copy of the first issue of the first edition of "The Traveller" fell to B. F. Stevens for $1080, a record for this rare book. The first edition of the "Vicar of Wakefield" realized £59. A similar edition of "The Good Natured Man" went for £76, and an entirely uncut copy of "She Stoops to Conquer," believed to be unique and in the original blue paper wrappers, for £90. A copy of Grey's "Elegy," 1751, sold for £205, another record price. A first folio of Shakespeare from the Rowfant library was bought by Quaritch for $18,000. At a previous sale it brought $8600. Other folios brought $3250, $1750 and $1000. A copy of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler" sold for $6450. A copy of Sir Philip Sidney's "Arcadia" brought $1565.

SIR PHILIP SIDNEY'S "ARCADIA."—Bertram Dobell, the well-known London antiquary and bookseller, writes as follows to the London Athenæum: "Most of your readers, I suppose, will be glad to know that I have recently discovered a very remarkable manuscript copy of Sir Philip Sidney's 'Arcadia.' It is a volume of 226 folios, or 452 pages. It contains a complete copy of the 'Arcadia' in five 'Bookes or Actes,' and also 'Dyvers and Sondry Sonetts.' Although there must have been a number of manuscript copies of the book in existence soon after it was written, no other copy save that which is before me appears to be now extant. This alone would make it uniquely interesting; but its value does not lie only in its rarity. It is not merely an 'Arcadia'; it is, I believe, the 'Arcadia.' It differs greatly from the printed texts. It contains much matter which is not to be found in the latter, while it omits much that appears in them. It gives us five new poems, and many fresh readings in the known poets. Among the 'Dyvers and Sondry Sonetts' there is also an unknown poem. I have not yet been able to study the manuscript sufficiently to be able to see the exact relation which it bears to the printed copies; but I have found a good many indications which point to its being Sir Philip Sidney's first draft of the work. But whether it is this, or whether it is a recast of the first form of the romance, it is without doubt a most remarkable 'find.' Short of the discovery of a Shakspearean manuscript it is hard to imagine a more valuable treasure trove of its kind. Two things are plain—firstly, that it should find a place in one of our great public libraries; and secondly, that it should be printed with as little delay as possible."

The scenes of the story are laid in New York and London, and it opens with a sensational act in the New York Metropolitan Opera House. The story is a sequel to "Fair Margaret," and will be published in book form in the fall by the Macmillan Company.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have in press "A Progressive Spanish Reader" for beginners in school or college, by Professor Carlos Bransby, of the University of California. It consists of short stories—at first mere anecdotes, well graded and supplied with exercises in conversation and composition, notes and a vocabulary. It is brief, and will serve to prepare the way for edited texts.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have added to their illustrated College Monographs "King's College, Cambridge," by C. R. Fay; to their English Men of Science series, "Thomas H.

Huxley," by J. R. Ainsworth Davis; to Everyman's Library, "Speeches and Letters of Abraham Lincoln," with an introduction by James Bryce, and to their Favorite Classics, "The Poems of Emily Brontë," with an introduction by Arthur Symonds.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY publish this week "Sketches from Normandy," by Louis Becke, who in this book turns away from his favorite haunts on the South Seas and deals with the people in the North of France, telling most charmingly of the inhabitants and their ways. They have also ready this week the work on "The Old Engravers of England," by Malcolm C. Salaman, which our printer last week persisted in translating into Solomon.

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY DEPARTMENT has just promulgated new Treasury and Post-Office regulations governing foreign mail importations, forming "Department Circular No. 17, Division of Customs." The circular has been prepared for the use of officers of the customs and others interested, and covers copyrighted articles as well as all other classes of articles imported through the mails. It is therefore of particular value to the booktrade. The circular, to which we will refer in detail in a future issue, may be obtained upon application to the Secretary of the Treasury.

THE COLLECTOR AND ART CRITIC COMPANY, New York City, has brought out "Whistler Notes and Footnotes, and Other Memoranda," by A. E. G., essays on Whistler and his work originally published in various magazines in this country, London and Paris. In England the edition of the book, published by Elkin Matthews, is for the present suppressed because the executrix of Whistler's estate has taken objection to the use on the cover and title-page of the book of the well-known Whistler butterfly. Some lawyers say that legally the executrix is quite within her rights.

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY announce for spring publication "The Ministry of Beauty," ethical essays on love and service, by Stanton Davis Kirkham; "Where Dwells the Soul Serene," by the same author; the "Psychological Year Book," quotations for everyday needs, compiled by Janet Young; "Sonnets of Heredia," a limited edition of the translation by Edward Robeson Taylor, with additional notes; a new edition of "Impressions of Ukyo-ye," the school of Japanese print artists, by Dora Amsden; also, some wall cards—"Weaving of Life's Fabric," by Agnes Greene Foster; "Then Away with Longing, and Ho! for Labor," and Henry Van Dyke's "Foot Path to Peace."

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will bring out shortly "The Garden Month by Month," a book of flower culture by Mabel Cabot Sedgwick. Early next month they will publish Arthur W. Marchmont's Russian story, "In the Cause of Freedom"; and for May publication they announce "The Star of Valhalla," by Myra Gross, a story of the Christianizing of Norway; "The Nutrition of Man," by Prof. Russell H. Chittenden, of Yale, a book on food values; Dr. D. S.

Sager's more practical book on a kindred subject, "The Art of Living in Good Health," also, Dr. C. W. Saleeby's book entitled "Worry," explanatory of its effect on the human mechanism.

FORMER Senator Stephen M. Griswold, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who has been connected with Plymouth Church for fifty-five years and is the oldest surviving male member of the congregation, has compiled a history of that famous church, and it will soon be published in book form with the title "Half a Century in Plymouth Church." Fifty-three years ago Mr. Griswold became an usher in Plymouth Church and he has retained that office ever since. He has never been absent from his post a single Sunday except through illness or absence from the city. He was a close friend of Henry Ward Beecher's, and his forthcoming volume will contain many interesting reminiscences of the famous preacher.

JAMES WESTELL, the oldest of London's many and world-renowned second-hand booksellers, according to the London correspondent of the New York Times, has retired from business, and the shop in New Oxford Street, which was for forty years a haunt of Gladstone, is closed. Lord Macauley, Edward Freeman, J. R. Green, Cardinals Newman and Manning, and Dr. Pusey were among the frequenters of Westell's shop. Both Bulwer and his son were also customers of Westell, and the old collector of books has always believed that his first shop, off Tottenham Court Road, is the one described in "My Novel." Mr. Westell's son succeeds to his business, and will have a new shop along with the other second-hand book dealers, in Charing Cross Road.

WILLIAM J. HAY, at John Knox's House, Edinburgh, has published an interesting book entitled "The Old Quadrangle, Edinburgh University MCM-MCMV," essays dealing with the civitas life of the Edinburgh student, written by four graduates, G. F. Barbour, William Lawson, A. F. Giles and A. F. Whyte, son of Dr. Whyte of Free St. George's. All were brilliant students, and their book is not only reminiscent but helpful to those who intend becoming students at Edinburgh, as the regimen there differs considerably from that of other universities. But even for the casual reader the volume will have a charm not easily resisted. The frontispiece is from the pen of Dr. Otto Schapp, lecturer on German—for as yet the university has no chair.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY announce a reprinting of the ten small volumes of "The World's Famous Orations," edited by William Jennings Bryan; Francis W. Halsey, associate. The history of this publication is that the first printing of 30,000 sets was covered by orders before the books were off the press, and a second printing of 20,000 sets were ordered immediately. The 50,000 volumes in all have now been sold and a third printing is being ordered. The volumes contain 300 orations of 270 orators, many of the number, especially the orations of ancient Greece and Rome, being practically unobtainable by the average reader outside of this edition. They have also in press a new edition of the well-known "Travellers' Handbook," by Josephine Tozier. This has been rewritten in part and almost entirely reset.

CUMIN & MASSON, Lyons, France, announce a very important sale at reduced prices of the remaining copies of the éditions de luxe of Guy de Maupassant's "La Maison Tellier" and Jerome Doucet's "Contes de Haute Lisse." These remainders will be sold as a whole or separately, and extra reductions will be made according to quantity taken. "La Maison Tellier" is an octavo volume of 270 pages, with eighty illustrations by René Lelong, engraved on wood by G. Lemoine. There are 20 copies on Japan paper and 20 copies on Chinese paper. There is also an original design of Lelong's to be bound with the volume and proofs of the wood engravings with remarques. The "Contes de Haute Lisse" is a quarto volume, with sixty colored illustrations by Alfred Garth Jones. Of this there are 60 copies on Japan paper.

THE MERCHANTS' HELPS PUBLISHING Co., Delhi, N. Y., announce for early publication the following new books and new editions: A new and enlarged edition of "Talks by the Old Storekeeper," with five new talks added, full of good live store information. "The Clerks' Book," a book of pithy paragraphs for the clerk's information, and good talks on subjects of the most vital interest to the employes of the store; "The Merchants' Success System," a set of thirty lessons on storekeeping, treating all departments of success making in the retail business; also, "John Martin's Clerks," a noveltie of business life in a live, up-to-date New York State town, sandwiched in with which is a great deal of suggestive matter for the clerk who wants to know how he can better his conditions and make himself worth more money to himself and to his employer.

OLIVER DITSON COMPANY, Boston, have added to their valuable Musicians' Library "Twenty Piano Compositions by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart," selected and edited by Carl Reinecke, of Leipzig, the foremost living interpreter of Mozart's piano works. The compositions include: Two minuets, (No. 1, in G-major, and No. 6, in D-major,) the "Allegro einer Sonate," four sonatas, four fantasias, the Adagio in D-major, twelve variations upon the romance "Je suis Lindor," nine variations upon a minuet by Dupont, a suite "A Little Gigue," two rondos, a "Little Rondo," and a Fugue in G-minor. The literary apparatus consists of an essay on Mozart's life and work, and a word concerning execution, by Reinecke, given in German and in an English translation by Nathan Haskell Dole, and a bibliography of works on Mozart in English, German and French and notable contributions to magazines.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY will publish on April 6 "The Price of Silence," a romance of modern New Orleans, by Mrs. M. E. M. Davis, author of "The Queen's Garden;" "The Gate of Appreciation," by Carleton Noyes, a book of art thought for the layman; "A Theory of Pure Design," by Denman W. Ross, lecturer on the subject at Harvard, a work describing harmony, rhythm and balance; Earl Dean Howard's "The Cause and Extent of the Recent Industrial Progress in Germany," covering the past twenty years and analyzing the German system of technical and commercial education and the system of industrial and social labor legislation; also, a special limited edition of "The Familiar Letters of James Howell," in four volumes, with an introduction by Agnes Repplier. They will bring out on April 17, Kate Douglas Wiggin's latest book on "the nicest child in American literature," "New Chronicles of Rebecca." Rebecca's old friends figure largely in these episodes of her life in Riverboro, and the story is full of human kindness and winning realism.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, 110-114 West 32d Street, New York City, have ready this week "Women of the Second Empire," by Frederic Loli  , illustrated with 51 reproductions, three of them photogravures, from contemporary prints, portraits, etc., of the beauties of the Court of Napoleon III. This is an intimate account of a neglected side of French history of the period, drawn from first-hand sources, such as unpublished memoirs, letters and conversations with persons who took part in the events or who were intimately connected with those who did. They have also ready "Practical Wood Carving," by Eleanor Rowe, with 114 illustrations from photographs and 55 from line drawings of old and modern examples. The author has been for twenty years manager of the School of Art Wood Carving at South Kensington. Some of the topics are "The Wood-Carver's Outfit, Woods, Tools and Construction," "Low Relief in Flat Work, etc.," "Modelling in High Relief," "Gothic Tracery and Symbolism," "Gothic, Renaissance and Jacobean Mouldings," "Lettering, Pierced Carving, etc."

SMALL, MAYNARD & Co., who have removed from Cambridge to 15 Beacon Street, Boston, announce Mrs. Helen Philbrook Patten's "Intimations of Immortality," which originally was to have been ready for the holiday season of 1906. Mrs. Patten's book has an introduction by Laurens Maynard, and a biographical and descriptive index, and reference to its contents is facilitated by classification under the headings, "From the Bibles of Humanity," "The Testimony of the Ancients," "The Speculations of Philosophy," "The Deductions of Science," "The Voice of the Church," and "The Vision of the Poet." Among other anthologies in preparation by this firm are Laurens Maynard's "Latter Day Love Sonnets," a sequence which, it is said, could hardly follow in happier order had each poem been especially composed for such arrangement, and "The Way of Childhood," verses about children, arranged by Miss E. Maynadier. They are also planning a Pocket Book Series, and already have two books nearly ready for issue, "The Pocket Whitman" and "Early American Humorists."

The authors included in the "Early American Humorists" belong to the period of John Phoenix, Artemus Ward, Josh Billings, Petroleum V. Nasby, "Danbury" Bailey, and their rivals, the period when more than one prosperous weekly was sustained, and many a daily paper was made prosperous by its humorous column.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, Washington, D. C., has just published for the Library of Congress the "Calendar of the Correspondence of George Washington, Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army with the Continental Congress." The Papers of George Washington were transferred by executive order dated March 9, 1903, from the Department of State to the Library of Congress. The large number and great importance of the papers in this collection, to which have been added the Washington materials already in the Library, have called for a series of calendars, of which this is the first. It deals only with the correspondence that passed between the General and the Continental Congress. It includes not only the letters themselves, but the papers and documents inclosed and references to the action taken upon them by the Congress. For purposes of history and biography they will always have a notable and imperishable interest, embodying in no small measure the history of the Revolution and the acts of the leading men of that time. The calendar has been prepared by John C. Fitzpatrick, of the Division of Manuscripts, and follows closely the methods used in the Calendar of the Franklin collection. It comprises 741 pages, and contains 31 facsimile reproductions of the writing of the members of Washington's military family, his secretaries and aids-de-camp. These illustrations will form a convenient guide for identifying the writing of such military letters of Washington as bear only his signature.

India Paper Edition, Red Letter Edition, Regular Editions, Sunday-School Scholars' Bibles

Nearly five years ago we were invited to become associated with those Bible publishers who are governed by an agreement to maintain high prices. We refused to do so. The wisdom of our refusal, and its importance to booksellers, becomes apparent when at this time we are able to say that our Bible business is entirely satisfactory, and Bibles of equal quality to ours cannot be purchased elsewhere at prices less than from 25 to 50 per cent. more than we ask for them. JUST THINK THIS OVER.

Any of our books can be purchased of us direct or of your jobber if more convenient to you. Don't pay Dictionary Trust or Bible Combination prices for Dictionaries or Bibles. Buy our books and make more money.
